ALL SIGNS POINT TO THE UNBOUNDED SUCCESS OF CANADA'S GREAT WESTERN STOCK SHOW; RACE MEET

Favorable Weather Will Assure for Edmonton the Greatest Exhibition Ever Held in the Western Provinces—Entries in the Stock Classes Show Increase of 100 p.c.

TOMORROW'S PROGRAMME

10 a.m., Edmonton citizens' band, Strathcona band, pipers' band and band of 101st Pipers play opposite Alberta Windsor, Cecil and King Edward Hotels.
10:30 a.m., band of the Great Parker shows plays on the streets of the city.
2 p.m., Fair is formally opened by Mayor Armstrong.
Stock judging commences.
Horse racing commences.
Vaudeville attractions, day-night fireworks and band music throughout the afternoon.
8 p.m.—Special vaudeville performance, the Great after-shows.

On the eve of the opening day of Canada's Great Western Interprovincial stock show and race meet, the fair grounds are today the scene of great activity. Erection of booths and sideshows on the midway, of the industrial buildings, unloading of many carloads of stock, and other sufficient activities demand the attention of an army of men, and a visit to the exhibition park this morning, when the clang of the hammer resounds from all quarters, and the stock being assorted and placed in the various buildings ready for judging tomorrow morning, forms perhaps one of the most interesting features of the whole work. The finishing touches are being given to the whole design of an exhibition which in point of variety, quality and number of stock entries is in the standard of the races, of the platform attractions, not to mention the most elaborate and expensively equipped industrial section, will prove to be the best that has ever been held in western Canada. Given fair weather, the directors of Edmonton exhibition association will this week achieve the triumph which the untiring efforts of the past few months have well-earned, and the name of Edmonton will become for the thousands of visitors who are flocking to the city, synonymous with all that is most progressive and aggressive in the life of a Western community.

Nearly 4000 Entries
Already the exhibits in the stock classes are almost one hundred per cent greater than were those of last year, while the increase in little short of two hundred per cent as compared with the fair of 1909. On Saturday night over 3400 entries had been received by the exhibition secretary, and others are still to come in. Last year the entries totalled exactly 2,000. In no other western fair have so many entries been received as in Edmonton this year.

Stockmen and horsemen from all portions of western and eastern Canada, and from the states, men known as the breeders of the very best in horses, cattle and all the other classes, are congregating in the city, attracted hither by the fame of Edmonton's fair grounds, and of the energy of the citizens who have made it their business to build up the premier race meet in the west. For the visitor to the fair to whom the platform attractions appeal with especial force, the association have secured in the Parker shows, the most varied and original corps of entertainers to be seen at the fairs of the Dominion, and a programme of fireworks unsurpassed in magnificence, is to be provided on three nights of the week.

Metropolitan Appearance of the Grounds

Last year there was some suggestion of the country fair in the rough and ready aspect of the grounds. Today the exhibition park, in the completeness of all its equipment, in the character of its well-graded roadways, its tree-shaded boulevards and its sidewalks, giving access to every point of public interest, is unmistakably metropolitan. From the time when the visitor enters by the south gate, past the well-kept, luxuriant flower beds, his eye catches no impression of the primitive. The stock buildings, shimmering in a new coat of white paint, with neat, white painted railings in between, are the most substantial structures of their kind in western Canada, and the best arranged. At the east end of the midway rise the towers of the industrial buildings.

First Cars of Stock Arrive President Campbell, Manager Harrison, Assistant Secretary Moore, Supt. Stewart, and the other officials of the fair, have been working almost without intermission for the past three or four days, completing the arrangements for the opening of the fair. On Saturday evening the first seventeen cars of stock arrived, fifteen from the Dominion fair at Regina, sent on by various exhibitors, and two from Lacombe. Since that time the arrivals have been pouring in continuously, the unloading platform by the tracks at the north end of the grounds, have never been described. Today the greater number of the 371 horses are being shipped into the grounds, 455 cattle, 139 sheep, 283 swine, 1025 birds in the poultry classes, and 190 dogs, and the task of the stockmen is no easy one. Even the right of the workmen's hammer is well-nigh drowned in the babel of canine and bovine voices.

Horsemen Live in Tents

Entering the grounds from the Willow avenue gates, the visitor's attention is arrested by the sight of a veritable encampment at the rear of the race horse stables. Here are no fewer than eighty tents, requisitioned by men in charge of horses and stock. It had been thought that the erection of new stables this season would have provided adequately for the accommodation of attendants. But the estimates of the association were too conservative. Every stall and every box has been occupied, and it has been necessary to convert one of the show horse stables to the use of the animals in the racing classes. Including the latter there are now five race horse stables, and these are overcrowded. Eight stables are in use for the accommodation of show horses, six for cattle, two for swine, while separate buildings are in use for exhibits in the poultry classes, in horticulture, and in dogs.

New Ground Rules

A number of new ground rules have been adopted this year. Automobiles may enter the park only by the Willow avenue entrance. They will be accommodated in an enclosure to the left of the entrance, by the superintendent's office, and any that may be unable to find room here may line up along the curb on either side of the main roadway leading to the directors' office.

Branch Bank

The latter has taken on something of the appearance of a bank. The Merchants' bank has in fact established a branch at the west viaduct. Other innovations of special note are the establishment of a barber shop, a C. N. R. telegraph office under the grand stand, and also a parcel checking office which should prove of great convenience to fair visitors. An express office will open at the grounds tomorrow. A local telephone has been installed, which will be in communication with the manufacturer's building, the show horse stables, the cattle

COST OF LIVING GREATER IN PARIS

New Necessities and the Desire for Luxuries Causes Marked Change

(Globe Cable Service)

(By A. W. L'Amoureux)
Paris, Aug. 14.—The Association of General Statisticians in France has recently published a volume on the cost of living in Paris. The working classes as well as the middle classes have not been faced with any sensible increase in the cost of food during the last forty years. But new necessities, and the desire for increased comfort and luxuries, have raised the standard of living in Paris as well as in London, while taxation has increased. The price of bread and meat is higher in Paris than in London, and this is due to the import duty which has been increased the price of bread except in years of plentiful harvests, and to the prohibition of the import of meat, which is justified on sanitary ground, but which is really a protective measure.

Sugar is Cheaper
On the other hand, the price of sugar, owing to the signing of the Brussels convention, has materially decreased. Sugar is a food of the first class, and if the duty has decreased, the amount of sugar available in France is much greater, so that the price is considerably lower. This has given an impetus to the various industries which use sugar as a raw material, and for the first time France has taken her place among the jam-producing countries.

Rents Higher
The price of wine has also diminished owing to over-production, and while the south of France has suffered, Paris has gained. There has no doubt been a gradual rise in rent, and the working classes of Paris have to pay more for lodgings in proportion, owing to the protective taxes on the raw material of the building trades, than the English working classes. But on the whole it is reassuring to learn that the cost of living in itself has not risen to any appreciable extent in Paris. Indeed, it is likely to decrease in the near future, owing to the gradual movement against tariffs.

NEW SECRETARY

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 14.—Secretary of the Interior Fisher has booked passage on a boat sailing tomorrow for Alaska. The purpose of the trip is to familiarize himself with the actual conditions in the northern territory. Special attention will be given to an inspection of the lands about Controller Bay and those along the Bering and Copper rivers.

BUILDING PERMITS TOTAL $151,140 FOR PAST EIGHT DAYS

LARGE NUMBER OF BUSINESS BLOCKS AND SCHOOLS OF RESI-DENCES BEING ERECTED

The first eight days of August has seen building permits issued in the city of Edmonton amounting to $151,140. This beats the record of the first eight days of July and the first eight days of June. The first eight days of July had issued permits amounting to $100,690, and the first eight days of June contributed $112,330 in permits.

The new business block of Hart Bros., calling for $17,000 to be expended at Jasper and Queen avenues, swells the August record. Permits have just been taken out by H. D. Burill to erect a house on Twenty-fifth street at a cost of $6,000; D. T. Vickers, to erect a house on Fourth street, H.B.R., at a cost of $3,000; W. J. York, to erect a house on Clave street at Eastwood to cost $1,200.

WORK STARTS ON HART BROS.' BLOCK

OLD BUILDING ON JASPER AND QUEEN GIVES WAY FOR NEW THREE STORY BRICK.

Work has commenced at the corner of Jasper and Queen's avenue, preparatory to moving the old Northern Crown bank building which is to be replaced by a modern six-story brick building for Hart Bros., clothing. Three stories are to be erected at this time and the additional three stories will be added at some future date yet undetermined. The foundations for a six-story building will be such as called for in a six-story block. The building will cost approximately $50,000.

This clothing firm will occupy the basement and first floor while the second and third floors will be devoted to offices. Warren and Goldsmith, contractors, have the contract for the three stories, and work will be commenced as quickly as the site can be cleared. Hart Bros. hope to be able to move into the new building early in the year as they are arranging for spring stock in proportion to their new home. Hence it will be necessary to occupy the new store before spring.

CARS MAY BE HERE NEXT WEEK

TWO NEW ELECTRICS FINISHED AND TO BE SHIPPED BY THE END OF THE WEEK

Two of the four new street cars that have been ordered by the city these many months, and which should have been here before now, are to be shipped from Ottawa for Edmonton. After part of the week, according to advice from the builders. The other two cars are receiving the finishing coats of paint and will be shipped at an early date. So the commissioners were informed by letter received today.

Quite a few matters of business were attended to by the commissioners in session this morning. City Solicitor Brown advised against J. H. Robinson being allowed anything to a sick bullock killed by the pound master. Mr. Robinson asked the city to pay $100 for the ox. The solicitor advised that the Humane Society be interested in the passage of legislation empowering the police to kill animals sick or injured beyond cure. Several matters pertaining to sewer and water service were referred to Commissioner Agar and the city engineer.

RACE MEET WILL BE RECORD FOR WEST

The better entry of race horses that has even been received in connection with any Canadian race meet west of Winnipeg is in the hands of the Edmonton exhibition association. Upwards of two hundred horses will have been entered before all entries have been placed on file. On Monday the time for receiving entries in the harness events closed, but a few days grace is allowed for horsemen who are resident some distance from the city.

DIARY DESIRING TO REGISTER SEEKING WRONG OFFICIAL

They Apply to Assessor McMillan to Register Under the Tenant's Act. City Assessor D. M. McMillan wishes to understand that those who desire to register for the Dominion election should go to Charles May, returning officer for this district, with offices on First street, in order to be registered. Many people have been going to the office of the city assessor for the purpose of being so registered, confusing Dominion registration with city registration. The city assessor is receiving registration under the tenant's act but this is not registration for the Dominion election.

In regard to applications for registration under the Tenant's act, Mr. McMillan says that many are taking advantage of this franchise privilege and are coming in by the dozens.

FAIR EXHIBITORS ARE MOVING TO GROUNDS

Exhibitors in the industrial buildings at the fair grounds are taking possession of their stands this week. Yesterday they commenced to move their exhibits into the grounds and to place them in the allotted spaces in the buildings. The exhibition park has become the scene of arduous activity, each day busier than the last.

DR. BLOW MAY RUN IN GLEICHEN

Emulating from Calgary is the report that in the event of H. H. Bennett, M.P., leader of the opposition in the local legislature and the prospective conservative candidate for that constituency in the forthcoming federal contest, being returned at the head of the poll, T. M. Twomey of Calgary will run as the party's representative for the local house. Dr. Blow, president of the Calgary college, which aspires to the status of an university, will be the conservative candidate in Gleichen.

CORRESPONDENCE

Editor, Edmonton Daily Capital:—
Dear Sir:—To rectify the misstatements current in the different daily papers and to place themselves in their true positions before the citizens of Edmonton, at a meeting held by the conductors and motormen on the night of August 12, 1911, it was decided to publish the statements published with regard to the proposed strike of conductors and motormen are false and were made public by some person or persons with malicious intent or with the desire to place the conductors and motormen in the wrong light before the citizens of Edmonton when under all circumstances they are willing to serve and oblige. There was never even an allusion at any of our meetings with reference to a strike.
Signed by the committee on behalf of motormen and conductors.

ST. GEORGES' SOCIETY

MEETS TONIGHT

A cordial invitation is sent out to all Englishmen to attend the meeting in Gifford's Hall, Newwood block, of the Edmonton Lodge of "The Royal Society of St. George," this evening. Mr. W. T. Campbell of "The Evening Standard" and "St. James Gazette," London, England, will be present and will give his fellow countrymen some interesting anecdotes of his experiences in the Imperial capital as "A Victorian Vagabond," under which title he has issued through the press a valuable book brimful of suggestions to those who are desirous of uplifting the unfortunate who have drifted into a down-and-out condition, perhaps for want of a helping hand. The St. George's executive are arranging for a good program of music, songs, etc. of the patriotic sort, and hope there will be a good attendance at this open meeting.

NEWPORT SOCIETY

GOES TO THE DOGS

Newport, B. I., Aug. 14.—The first dog show held here in several years was given at the Casino today under the auspices of the Rhode Island Kennel club. More than 1000 canine pets belonging to the fashionable residents of Newport were displayed. There was no place for an ordinary dog in the exhibition. A line of blue-blooded canine ancestors was the only ticket that insured admittance. Even class distinctions prevailed among the tiny and mals, the haughty Blenheim spaniels those named in honor of King Charles absolutely ignoring the breezy looking little English bulldogs and Boston terriers.

CONFERENCE OF SOCIALISTS

(Union Press Service)
Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 1.—Office holding members of the national Socialist party from all sections of the country have assembled here for a three days' conference to discuss the affairs of the party and to make preliminary plans for the next municipal, state and national campaigns. Victor Beers, the only socialist member of the congress, is to preside over the sessions. Among the other participants nearly all of whom have arrived in the city, are the socialist mayors of Butte, Mont.; Grand Junction, Colo.; Gonor, Idaho; Idaho; Berkeley, Cal.; Glend, Kas.; Flint, Mich.; and several other cities.

WILL BE HEAVY POLL
ON THE GAS BY-LAW

Indications are that the poll on the gas franchise bylaw will prove to be one of the heaviest of the year. Both sides are working hard, posters, press, and arguments for and against the proposed agreement with Cyrus S. Eaton have been freely circulated both on Saturday evening and this morning, and an energetic canvass carried on.
Estimates prepared by these canvassers place the probable vote at about 3000. This total will be made up, of course, largely by plural voters, who have two, three or four votes according to the value of their real estate holdings in the city. A two thirds vote is required to secure the passage of the bylaw.

As for the McKinley-Bellamy contest, the majority of the ratepayers are treating the by-election as something in the nature of a joke. In spite of the number of meetings that have been held by the opposing candidates, and the fiery nature of some of these gatherings, the general feeling is that the issues upon which Mr. McKinley and Mr. Bellamy are fighting are dead issues, and can have no real bearing on the future course of municipal affairs.

NEWS OF THE CITY

Messrs. Meyers and McDougall, real estate agents of 830 1/2 First street, have taken the agency for the sale of Clydesdale Township for their locality and were instrumental in closing out a number of sales on Saturday. The demand for this property has been phenomenal, especially among those who are familiar with the locality and the facts of the case regarding the general "lay-out" of the ground there and the situation of the railroad grade and depot site.
The suit offered by the Crystal Palace Clothing Store to the first man on Saturday to recognize himself in the group published in their advertisement on Friday was won by Mr. Otter Gable of 1245 Kinsdale, city. There is another two suit being given away today.

CIRCUMSTANCES WHICH WARRANT A LITTLE SHORT TALK

While The Capital seldom trespasses on the indulgence of its readers by talking shop, the present circumstances warrant at least a word.

The Capital with this issue graduates from the provincial class into the metropolitan, complete with thoroughly modern equipment and replete with the very best news services that money will buy, making it possible to produce the finest typographical effect in the city and to give the latest and most exhaustive news.

The Capital claims some credit for its enterprise in installing the first stereotyping press ever erected in the city of Edmonton, and it proposes to continue this enterprise by giving Edmonton the best paper.

The Capital is thoroughly alive to the appreciation with which this paper has been accepted by the reading public and the advertisers and it proposes to do everything possible to deserve this appreciation and extend its field.

The Capital has always tried, editorially and in every other way, to play fair with the public. There are no designing interests behind this paper and it has no retainer to fool the public for the benefit of any special privilege. It is untrammelled and fancy free and it always tries to give the public an unbiased news service and the full benefit of its freedom by looking at every question of public interest from a strictly public-interest point of view. Possibly the confidence of the public that this is the case has a good deal to do with The Capital's growing popularity. At any rate, The Capital intends to follow along the original lines in a larger and better form and it looks to the public for the support which will justify the enterprise it displays.

TALBOT DOES NOT KNOW HIS CHAIRMAN'S NAME.

A circular signed by Senator Talbot which claims that the convention called for August 16 is not properly authorized, and which is being scattered throughout the country, gives the name of Peter E. Lessard as the man who called the convention.

The party to whom it is intended to refer, no doubt, is Prosper E. Lessard, chairman of the Edmonton District Liberal Association for the past five years.

As president of the provincial executive, Senator Talbot is supposed to confer with the chairman of the various federal districts on all questions of importance to their particular district, such as the calling of conventions.

The circular makes it plain that far from conferring with the chairman of the Edmonton district, Senator Talbot does not even know his name.

As a matter of fact Senator Talbot has never called his executive together in years and to all intents and purposes it has been as good as dead. Certainly it has never had anything to do with the calling of any convention in the Edmonton district.

OLIVER'S SUBTERFUGE IS ALTOGETHER TOO THIN

In arising at this juncture to claim on behalf of the Oliver gang that he alone has the right to authorize the calling of a Liberal convention in this district, Senator Talbot places both himself and Frank Oliver in a most ridiculous position.

Senator Talbot has never yet, so far as anyone has been able to find out, had any hand in the calling of previous conventions in the Edmonton district. At the time of the last federal election campaign, when Frank Oliver was nominated in Mechanics' Hall, the same man who is now chairman of the Edmonton District Liberal Association was chairman then, and the same proceeding was followed in the calling of that convention as was followed in the calling of the convention for August 16.

Oliver found no fault with the convention at the time of the last federal elections, and Senator Talbot's name was not even mentioned. Now, when he knows that no representative gathering of Liberals in this constituency would place his name in nomination, Oliver rings in Senator Talbot as an absentee landlord upon whom he confers proprietorship of the entire Liberal interests of the province to name a candidate.

Oliver's subterfuge is altogether too thin to deceive anyone and his fear to face a fair convention is too obvious to leave him any room to claim the cloak and protection of the Liberal party.

JUST PARAGRAPHS

By the way, where are all those brave insurgents who played marionette for Oliver in the wrecking of a Liberal government

Last election Frank Oliver gave a great deal of attention—about $18,000 worth—to the southern constituencies. This election, however, he seems to have about enough unfinished business at home to occupy his attention, to say nothing of the SSSSSSS.

Oliver announces that he will not recognize the regular Liberal convention, but that he is quite ready to accept a made-to-order nomination from his hand-picked association. This conclusion has been come to no doubt after great deliberation and in full knowledge of the fact that it is the only thing he can do.

Self-Opinioned Barnaby

By Kenneth Harris.

Barnaby never read Shakespeare. He never read much of anything not pertaining to the various branches of what he called "sport"—or the stock market, which glorious institutions the Universal Genius somehow failed to anticipate. But if anybody had read to him the Apocryphal to Man, it is long odds that he would have taken it as a direct personal tribute to himself. Barnaby is bulky, and he distinctly approves of bulky men, and looks scornfully down from his seat of six feet three upon the unhappy undecided; he is pudgy and pink and he likes to see a fine, fresh color and decent epithets of the odorous French work, just as the pudgy-faced and lean cattle his disgust; he has a running bull-dog voice that he is usually proud of and he has money, which has surrounded him with parasites from an early age.

Perhaps you can imagine him filling a room with his magnificence, his legs set well apart, his chest well out and his hands in his trousers pockets. He will be dressed in splendor, ornamented gorgeously and groomed to the last grain. If you please him, he will nod in jovial approbation; if you enrage him, his smile will throw his plump cheeks upward until his little eyes are squeezed to slits, and if his peculiar sense of humor is aroused sufficiently, seismic rumblings will proceed from his remote interior, and people in remote corners will sit up and twist their necks.

He is Everything. If there is anything that Barnaby cannot do better than anybody else, you may depend upon it it's not worth doing. Not worth his while, at least. If there is anything that he doesn't know it is, briefly, but emphatically, "not." And he will discuss the subject with this blighting disqualification, from which there is no appeal and against which all argument is futile and futile: "Not! That's all it is: Not!"

Can you pull the wool over Barnaby's eyes? Well, I fear not. Wisdom or the Wisconsin variety has been vouchsafed Barnaby in overflowing measure. That is something beyond all doubt and dispute. And what Barnaby knows, he knows. There is a respectable wad of yellow-backed bills in Barnaby's breeches pocket that sustains his position in language loud, eloquent and convincing. Can you cover it? Not! Well, put up or shut up, one of the two. You would better shut up anyway.

Listen! Listen respectfully and admiringly while Barnaby instructs you concerning the laws and the prophets, or rather the prophet, for he is Barnaby, and the law is the breath of Barnaby's thick-lipped mouth in the ear of the pliant legislator, and the wink of Barnaby's pig-like eye. In the two towns that are Barnaby's, the towns where his toiling and spinning is done for him, you may see how thoroughly this divine ordination is recognized. There, like the centurion of old, he says to one, "Go!" and he goes, and to another "Come!" and he comes—that in hand and in all humility, and sometimes they come, being permitted, and companion, still humility, of this and that.

But Barnaby clocks them. "Not!" he says. "You will do thus and so." And of course they do it.

Can you imagine anybody having the insufferable gall necessary to doubt, deprecate and disparage such a being as Barnaby to his little face?

He Met a Poet.

It was at the club and the presumptuous person was a dreamy-eyed lunatic, by name, Treweek, and he had a occupation, poet. He was just returned from the west and was talking the Glasgow canal and dam, which work he had viewed from an adjacent mountain peak. "It is a wonderful sight, no doubt," he said. "I suppose it's the biggest and costliest piece of engineering up to date, but the Panama Canal, but for all the millions of money, and years of time, the incessant labor of armies of men, what a tiny scratch and blot it is upon that stupendous landscape! How little we amount to in the face of nature after all!"

Barnaby's pudgy palm, with the force of his heavy arm behind it, swung around and landed in Treweek's cheek in a resounding buffet.

"You insulting vagabond!" roared Barnaby, struggling against those who held him, to repeat the blow. "Let me get at him; I'll show him the kind of a crawling atom I am."

"We dragged him away and pacified him with high balls. And really Treweek ought to have known better. I suppose he didn't think about it being Barnaby."

DEFENDANT'S DEFENCE

BY WILLIAM F. KIRK.

(Copyright, 1911, National News Association.)

The Cincinnati sporting writers and the Cincinnati fans are sore at Clark Griffith because he has not given them a winning team.—News Item.

The pallid prisoner looked at the Judge.

His hands all cramped and his face a saffron.

"In all my time," the magistrate said,

"razing at criminals mentally dead,

I have never seen one worse than you,

Was there anything honest you used to do?

Why did you sink to a life of crime,

Taking a chance of doing time?

"I'd like to know what you have to say

Before I get nasty and send you away."

"I was decent enough," said the shivering duff,

"Till I managed the Cincinnati club."

Then the pallid prisoner told his tale

Of a job in the dark and a victim's wail.

He told how a writer with beer and jibe—

A typical Cincinnati scribe—

Had hounded him out of the league at last,

Just as his club got to going fast.

He told how he hid for the kanching tribe,

A writer who let the harrying tribe,

And he told how he finally caught the hack

And plunged his blade through the expert's back.

"Said the judge, 'I'll have to discharge you, Bub—

I, too, once managed a baseball club!"

SOUTHERN MAN HAS 5 HUNDRED ON HIS RUNNERWANTS A MATCHED RACE WITH FRED PARNEY—WILL BET
HALF THOUSAND

In a letter to the Capital Fred Brullette, a citizen of Pincher Creek, Southern Alberta, offers to back a southern runner in a matched race 100 yards against Fred Parney to the extent of $500 or any part thereof. Mr. Brullette does not state the name of the runner whom he is willing to back nor if he holds an amateur standing. Here is Mr. Brullette's letter in part: "I do not think it possible for your runners in the north to make such time. He had already spoken of the 19 1/2 mark. We have good runners in the south as you have in the north and we are willing to back that assertion with a bet of $500 or any part of it."

If Mr. Brullette has anyone he wishes to run against, Parney he might pay his expenses to Edmonton for the sport meet which he is to be pulled off in Edmonton in about three weeks, out of that $500 and put up the remainder at the track himself.

ARMOUR WRITES ABOUT CORINTHIAN
FOOTBALL TEAMEX-SECRETARY OF THE CITY FOOT-BALL LEAGUE HAS BEEN NEARLY ALL IN ACTION

The Corinthians have played, I believe, in every country in Europe, in South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, South America, United States and Canada. This is their first visit to Western Canada and it is to be hoped they will get a truly western reception. I remember seeing them play at the Island, Toronto, on their last visit, 1906, when they beat the pick of Toronto and district by 6 to 0. Before a crowd of 15,000, the game was played in the afternoon in a scorching heat; the thermometer registering 86 degrees at the time. On that occasion they had a brilliant forward line and their marvelous play was a great treat to the spectators. Towards, S. H. Day and B. O. Corbett, both English internationals, are newcomers of the team this time. S. H. Day was capped by England in 1905, against Scotland, Ireland and Wales. I saw him play against Ireland. S. H. Harris, another Corinthian, also played in this game. Ireland was beaten 5 goals to nothing. Day and Harris were responsible for the goals and were without doubt, the best forwards in the field.

H. Morgan-Owen, centre half-back, and captain of the team, is another famous international player, having played very frequently for Wales in international games against the sister countries. I saw him play on two occasions, in international games, when he was easily the star player in the Welsh defence.

I have not seen any of the other members of the team play, but as six or seven of them are Amateur English internationals and the remainder have played for either Oxford or Cambridge, that is sufficient guarantee for me to expect to see the best game ever played in Edmonton when they meet our All-Edmonton team.

J. G. ARMOUR.

EXHIBITION RACE MEET WILL START TOMORROW AFTERNOON

They are here, the horses which will race during the exhibition meet which tomorrow at the fairgrounds. One hundred and twenty-seven of the fastest and beautiful animals that ever planted their feet upon the turf of a race track will comp the 29 races of the meet. Few of the horses are known to Edmonton people. Over them have never been on Western Canada tracks before. Thirty-five or forty are all over the west, many of them being old favorites on the Edmonton courses.

The race meet at the exhibition last year, although there were few, if any, horses than those owned in Western Canada entered was a decided success. The spring race on May 24 and 25 conducted on the same track and with only Western Canada running was equally successful. For the meet this year there are almost twice as many animals. They have run on almost all the tracks of America, they have trained to the track and the track is in perfect condition.

Superintendent Stuart has had men working on the track for days getting it into shape. The Edmonton exhibition track is already known to horse men as the best in Western Canada and with the careful work which has been put on it should be fit for the times. Mr. Stuart confidently expects that times faster than 2:10 will be made. Some of the horses have marks as low as 2:10 and 2:11.

The horses are stabled in every available building on the grounds. The four stables which were used last year were too small this year in spite of several small ones which had been put on the rear of the harness horses' buildings. A building of constant supply of hot water has been erected close to the stables.

An army of attendants is camped near the stables. Dozens of small tents are field close to the stables.

WINDSOR BLOCK

Greeley Did Not Savvy the Baseball Future When He Issued Famous Dictum

Majority of Big League Ball Players Hail from the Southern States—Every Team Has Southern on Its Pay Roll
—Ty Cobb the Leading Light

Boston, Aug. 14.—When Horace Greeley was dishing out his famous dictum about the national pastime, he was not thinking about the national pastime, but any one will prove that he was, as he immediately charged Mr. Greeley with an error, which will, of course, "ring down his bells."

Mr. Greeley, the diamond sport never uttered the honorable dictum of Mr. Greeley. His "go west" stuff runs for its end look for the baseball south. When a gentleman man starts out on a ball club looking for players, he doesn't rush west, as Mr. Greeley advised, but instead he makes tracks for the nearest depot and does a full-on ride to the south.

Why the south? That's easy. For a very good reason that more stars have come from the south in the last few years than from any other part of the country.

One Everywhere
Almost every team has a southerner on its pay roll, and in the specimens from every team is winning players, the stores shipped back by the various series who are sent with the team, the fans have to put up with a lot of junk about John Jones and "this southern drawl," or Jim Smith, "the very young southerner."

It's pretty hard to single out a team either one of the two big leagues which hasn't a southerner on its bench.

The Boston Bunks have one in Jack Hall, who has all that "southern drawl" we read about. Jack came from down in Virginia. Buck Herzog lives down below the big and famous line, living a farm down in Maryland. John T. Taylor zips up on his desk of shovels about the nearest of southerners as ball players any time you mention him to, as he has one in Tris Speaker, who is mighty hard to even

The Georgia Peach
The greatest ball player of the age, if it since the game was first started, comes from down in Georgia. It's the Georgia Peach and every time he is a chance he hits down to the bottom, letting the north stay very much. Itself. Ty earns his living, and in either cities, but he shakes the Yankee dust off his boots immediately when the curtain descends on the championship seasons. Joe Jackson, the star slugger of the Cleveland, Naps, is a true southern cracker, and has brothers, sisters and parents down in Carolina.

Johnny Hayes, pygmy with the feds and formerly with the Boston Nationals, comes from below the Mason-Dixon line, but Johnny has been north so long he has almost lost his accent.

Young Walker, who has regained grand form with the Senators, comes from down there, and they dub him "Dixie" Walker when he first joined the team. He's been "Dixie" ever since.

Some Others
Jake Hubbard, who has started the whole baseball world with his aifty playing of the initial sack for the howly Dodgers, comes from down in Memphis.

Zack Wheat, wild violator of the willow, sprouted down in Dixie land. He played with Atlanta, New Orleans and a few more southern cities before he came to the big show. Nap, Rucker, also a star of the Dodger outfit, hails from Dixie.

Christy Mathewson, greatest pitcher the world has ever seen, was with New York, New York and Russell Ford, a star of the New York Giants, was with the Yankees until he got too road for the Yankees and was grabbed by Hal Chase's boss.

King Cole, the wonderful young fellow of the Cubs' pitching department, is a southern boy, while Charlie Smith, who was with the Boston Red Sox, is another. Joe Casey, catcher of the Tigers, was developed by Mike Pinch in the south. Del Gainer, now a star with the Cardinals, was made in Dixie.

Coulson, of the Dodgers, came from Nashville. Detroit's big pitching find, Faffie, was developed in the south. Josh Devore, of the Giants, is another. While Lindsay, recently bought by Cleveland, was in the Cotton States league.

Bill Steele, of Roger Bresnahan's pitching crew, was picked up in the south. Pat Newman, of the St. Louis outfit, glittered in Texas until he was yanked to the majors.

There are a host more, but it would take altogether too much space to give them all a mention.

Some grand ball players have come from the south, which shows that Greeley may have been partly right in his dope, but of late years the stars have been coming out of the south so fast that the coast has taken a back seat.

IOWA TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 14.—The best tennis talent of this and several of the neighboring states is represented in the sixth annual tournament of the Iowa championships. The winner of the singles will play the present champion, Fred Bailey of Des Moines, and winners of the doubles will meet the present title holders, W. S. Gilman and C. S. Carey of Sioux City.

An effective health prayer is the daily use of the tooth brush on rising and retiring.

OUTFIELDER DANIELS of the New York Yankees, who played a prominent part in the recent four-fold drubbing that Hal Chase's band meted out to the crushing Detroit Tigers. Daniels' big bludgeon was in evidence in all four contests. He slammed the ball lustily even when the great Mullen, Willett and Wild Donor took the mound, incidentally doing some brilliant capers in the field. Daniels is one of Chase's best hits.

ROLLIE ZEIDER IS A COMING STAR OF MAJOR LEAGUES

HOLLIE STARTED HIS CAREER BADLY BUT CAME INTO POPULARITY THIS SEASON

(Illustration by W. S. Gilman)
New York, Aug. 14.—Darius my recent "guy around the circuit" of the American League, I saw many things that were of interest, but one of the most striking was the way the new recruits of the White Sox looked. It is amazing how this fellow picks up top-notch youngsters. Chicago is enthused over the newcomers, who have been delivering a high grade of ball that has kept the team from flailing with the color candidates.

Ping Bodie No. Alone
While much has been said about the process of "Ping" Bodie, the sensational young out-fielder from the Pacific coast, the praises of Hollie Zeider have been left unsung. And, if the performances of a few weeks can be counted as any criterion, this youth is destined to become one of the greatest holding first basemen in the game. Tall and lithe in build, he is as swift as a cat and seems to have the makings of a star of the Hal Chase type. He is put up along the lines of the New Yorker and has the same nervous, anxious manner of doing things seeming to want them to happen before they do.

For weeks Zeider was "in bad" with the fans who made regular journeys to the ninth side park. He was hoisted and jerked until Duffy had to yank him out of the lineup. He was called a househead, ice wagon and numerous other unpleasant epithets. Thereafter every time a "bug" exploded his eagle-like countenance adorned the player's bench. But one day Honorable Hughes saw fit to shove the youngster in at first base. A howl arose, but Duffy "sat tight" and Zeider played the game. Zeider—a hot one came his way and he turned an impassable unassisted play. "Quack—another! That's third. The thing was repeated for four innings. The next session, Zeider turned inside out to stop a wild throw from one of his teammates across the diamond, and he beat the runner by a side to first. That day Zeider made good. He is still making good.

Result: He is now cheered lustily by the White Sox fans every time that he steps to the plate.

Very Peculiar
Peculiar, but it is just a man who was touted as a second baseman and shortstop should win his way into the affection of the fans by his play at a position absolutely foreign to him? But that is what Zeider did, and you can't find a White Sox fan who won't tell you that Zeider has played a remarkable febrile game ever since he was transferred to the first base.

Zeider has pulled some remarkable stuff at the initial position. He has scouted him through after low larvae and has saved many an error for the infielders by his clever work. Now is Zeider weak when it comes to taking balls thrown with the runner coming into the base. As a feller on ground balls he is good and covers a lot of territory in going after fouls.

On the ball field, Zeider is a quiet fellow, living the straight and simple and taboos absolutely the stuff that worked the ruin of Russ Hammond and Duke Wadell, once in his uniform, however, he is vim personified. "Pop" would be a better nickname for him than "Hollie."

Tyrus Cobb, the bright particular star in the Tiger team, which numbers several other stellar bats, is the sensation of modern baseball. His burst upon the sporting fragrant like a meteor, but unlike a meteor he is now just as dazzling and spectacular in his work as ever. It seems almost impossible that anyone could exceed his brilliant record which he made last year, in which he smashed all baseball batting records for many seasons, but if such a thing is possible, he bids fair to outdo it by his stellar work on far this year.

Cobb is a younger man than his two great rivals, Logan and Wagner, for the supreme honors in baseball history, but he may fairly be said to have outdone even their marvelous records in the relatively brief time in which he has been in the game. He is probably the greatest drawing card in the annals of baseball. He is a pastmaster of every art of the fielder, is one of the speediest men on the bases, and as a base stealer he has no superiors and only one or two possible equals. As a runner he is a wonder, and at the bat there is nothing that needs to be said. He is a pastmaster of every art of the fielder, is one of the speediest men on the bases, and as a base stealer he has no superiors and only one or two possible equals. As a runner he is a wonder, and at the bat there is nothing that needs to be said. He is a pastmaster of every art of the fielder, is one of the speediest men on the bases, and as a base stealer he has no superiors and only one or two possible equals. As a runner he is a wonder, and at the bat there is nothing that needs to be said.

no doing him. He is always two things ahead of them.

There is no stopping Cobb. There is no plan of action to be carried out to check him. When he is at his best in midsummer he is absolutely irresistible every player who ever went against him will admit it.

Cobb had led the South Atlantic league in 1905, in both batting and base-running. He had hit for an average of .326 in 103 games, and stolen 40 bases.

On joining the Tigers, he was used in the outfield, and showed up as a youngster of promise, but hardly one who in two years would be the greatest star in his league. Early in 1909 Cobb adorned the ledger. Injuries to members of the Tigers' outer garden corps allowed him to get into the fray, and he showed such all-around ability that Anson made him the regular right fielder. He finished the 1909 season fifth in hitting with an average of .329.

The real beginning of Cobb's fame commenced with the settling of the managerial reins of the Detroit club from Armour to Jennings in 1907. It was Rubeys who first saw the possibilities in this aggressive youngster, and made Cobb the star he is today. But Ty has repaid his lessons with compound interest, for though Rubeys has made a ball-player out of the "Homer," the "Homer" had done more for his manager; he has enabled him to crop three pennants.

FITZSIMMONS SAYS JEFFRIES IS ONLY MAN FOR JOHNSON

Fitz is Having a Great Time at His Summer Home at Dunellen

Dunellen, N. J., July 20.—"It will be many years before a 'white hope' is matchless who will be able to grab the world's heavyweight title from Jack Johnson," is the opinion of Bob Fitzsimmons, former ring champion who is now enjoying a two-month respite from stage duties on his Dunellen farm.

"The only fellow who can defeat Johnson is John Barretero, said Jeffries emphatically. "In my opinion, Jeff is the only living man who can lick Johnson. I believe if I could have him in for five or six months Jeff would be able to defeat two Johnsons in one night."

"Jeff is willing to take another whack at the negro," said Fitz, "but I do not believe he will ever fight again, as he is up against the game of 'My wife won't let me."

While Fitzsimmons holds out mighty little encouragement for the defeat of Johnson, he declares it can be brought about by development of talent.

"Fitz expects a young man from Cleveland to spend a few weeks with his farm, who he believes possesses promising pugilistic qualities, and, according to Fitz, the boy may prove a 'diamond in the rough.' Fitz's unknown is 18 years of age, six feet two and one-fourth inches in his stocking feet and tips the beam at the 220 pound mark. "He's had a nail and what a whale he'll be when he is 20 years old," remarked Fitz, as he exploited his protégé.

Fitz is enjoying life to the limit on his farm. The pretentious king of the ring is now unofficially dubbed "king of the kids" in the village. Since his return two weeks ago his swiftness of foot and his strength have started him thinking and the result was that he built a large swimming pool in the creek on his farm for the use of Dunellen boys, and on every afternoon five and a crowd of fifty or more youngsters may be seen splashing around in the pool.

POLO AT MONTREAL
Montreal, Aug. 11.—The eyes of the polo world are to be turned this week toward Montreal, where a contest for the Grenfell Challenge cup, presented by the Messrs. Grenfell, members of the English polo team, has been visited America last year, and intended to represent the polo championship of Canada, is to take place.

The polo club has not succeeded in playing any game, although they are still planning matches.

The Football League
In spite of these five misfortunes the season has been fairly successful. The football league has kept up a continual series of games all summer, and the class of soccer especially in the senior league has been decidedly good.

The race for the championship has been a close one, although Swifts have succeeded in playing marvellously good games only while the professional ball team is away from town, there being no other field on which it is possible to play baseball.

There are several tennis clubs in the city and all have been playing matches regularly for the season. There will be a big tournament held in August.

Cricket
Perhaps one of the most successful clubs in a quiet way has been the cricket club. They play a match every Saturday, and they are playing good cricket. Matches with outside teams have been played, and Edmonton has won. It is to be regretted that Edmonton does not get a fuller representation on the Alberta team, which has been playing at Indian Head.

The polo club started the season off well and have held fairly regular practices. They have the makings of a fairly good team. They are endeavoring to arrange some matches for fall.

The lacrosse club started the season with good prospects, but for reasons which have been given considerable publicity failed to stay with the game. Track and field athletics have not been as successful as they might have been, but any failure has been entirely due to bad weather. In spite of the unkindness of the elements, several records have been broken, notably the hundred yards, on a track several inches deep in mud when Fred Farney completed the century sprint in 10 1-3 seconds.

KEEPING TALK ON THE MINORS
The Orland-Pacific Coast league club has sold Buddy Ryan, a center fielder, to the Chicago Americans. Petersburg has fooled the Virginia league fans by giving them the front and giving battle to Norfolk for first place.

ALL SIGNS POINT TO THE UNBOUNDED

There is no settling of the exhibition upon which greater expense and care have been lavished than upon the industrial exhibits. Here, in the north wing, a Capital reporter touring the grounds this morning, saw exhibits of local manufacturers representing a total capital of over $1,000,000. Some of the exhibits are most elaborate in design, tastefully arranged, and all afford a striking object lesson in the industrial progress of this city. As one enters the north wing, the large exhibit of the Swift Canadian Co. first strikes the eye. The stand occupies the whole of the south end of the central aisle, and is supported on four large columns in blue and gold, the trade mark of the company being worked into the general design. Cured meats of various kinds, the finest products of the packing plant, are on view, and arranged in the most effective manner on the stalls. Immediately north of the Swift exhibit is that of the Western Vinegar Co., while adjoining is the Edmonton Concrete Company's display of the product of their works. A. E. Potter of the Edmonton seed house, has contrived an original type of exhibit. In the limited space at his disposal he has contrived not only to display innumerable seed samples, poultry and dog foods, and so forth, but in addition a miniature field of standing grain is shown. The W. H. Clark Lumber Co. occupy an adjoining stand, while the stand which comes next to view is that of the Strathcona Brewing and Malting Co., tastefully displayed to the view of the thirsty sight-seeing visitor. The J. J. McLaughlin company have a first-class exhibit, and the Great Western Saddlery Co., Ltd., place on view a well assorted display of products of their factories, in fancy and utility harness and leather goods of all descriptions.

At the southern end of the west aisle is the exhibit of Tuley's test, and above it that of the Edmonton Brewery and Malting Co., an array of bottles of "Edmonton Beer." The Shaples separator Co. come next, the Albert M. S. Co., with an exhibit of the product of the Edmonton mason's art, and then the Brackman-Kerr Co., who display the finished product of the grain fields of Alberta.

One of the most striking of the exhibits, as indicative of the advancement of Edmonton industry, is that of the Imperial Foundry-Machine Co. Castings of all descriptions, pulleys, metal and wooden, machinery parts, and in the line of domestic fittings, grate bars and other such castings, are arranged so as to afford a striking illustration of the variety of foundry products, while across the top of the stand the designs in large letters, "Everything in this booth made in Edmonton—patronize home industry."

Edmontonians have heard much of late of the household conveniences which will be made available with the advent of gas. At a large stand near the entrance to the industrial building, north wing, the Burnham-Frith Co. are giving demonstrations from day to day in the use of electrical household appliances. Cooking, ironing, carpet sweeping, all will be carried by electricity during the five days of the fair at the electric company's stand. In one corner will be a large washing machine, motor driven. Free lunches will be given to visitors at all times during the day. Gourlay, Water and Learning have an exhibit of high-class musical instruments, the Edmonton Tent and Mattress Co. stand immediately north, while other exhibits on the east aisle are those of the Brailorri Stationery Co., the Alberta Milling Co., the Great West Cement factory. At the north end of the building the Alberta Business college occupies a stand, and a stenographer will be stationed there throughout the fair, to transact correspondence in behalf of visitors. The Edmonton house and Elk clear house also occupy space at the north end of the building, where expert clear makers prepare the fragrant wood for the detection of mankind. The Brown Holloway Co., with samples of "Scot of Alberta" faultless flour, are also exhibitors in the north wing.

An unique exhibit is that of Revillon Brothers in the south wing of the industrial section. Here close to the entrance, they have constructed a Chinese pagoda, complete as a model with carved woodwork of every description. Other exhibits down the central aisle are those of the Imperial Oil Co., the Masters Piano Co., the Sprker White Co. (sanitary fixtures), and the Peirce Manufacturing Co. across the south end. Across the aisle from the Peirce company's exhibit is that of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., whose display of hygienic cups, and other vessels bearing the legend "to keep off consumption," is supplemented by a mass of free literature upon tuberculosis and its avoidance and cure. The Pliner Light Co., A. S. Griley, optician, the Hoover Manufacturing Co., with an exhibit of sail irons, the De Long Jewellery Co., and an engraving concern

The Last Word to the Ratepayers on Gas Agreement to be voted on Today

Every ratepayer who has the best interests of the city at heart will poll his vote today in favor of the agreement.

The opportunity is here offered for the city to secure the immediate construction of a modern gas works.

The agreement provides for the cheapest priced gas in Canada according to output.

The initial price is fixed at $1.48 net per thousand cubic feet, with a sliding scale which reduces the price as the output of the works increases, until ultimately the price will be 75 cents per thousand cubic feet.

The gas company has deposited with the city $10,000 in cash which will be forfeited upon a violation of any of the terms of the agreement.

Four hundred men will be given employment at once. The initial investment of the company of outside capital will be $500,000.

Each year for the next succeeding ten years the outlay of the company in extensions will be over $50,000.

The city solicitor and the bankers and business men of the city have expressed the opinion that it would be the height of unwisdom for the city to undertake any further extensions to its municipal undertakings, particularly that of a gas works, the operation of which is recognised as being entirely different to any other utility now operated by the city.

By approving the agreement today the city will have a gas service before next summer which will be unsurpassed on the American Continent. The reputation of the International Heating and Lighting Company absolutely assures this.

occupy the remainder of the south side of the building. Passing from south to north on the west side of the building, one passes first the large area occupied by the Alberta School Supplies Co., and destined in the form of a school class room, equipped with desks of modern design. J. S. Fry and Son have a large stand for the cocoa and chocolate exhibit, while the Saskatchewan Flour Milling Co. of Moose Jaw, Sask., also occupy a prominent position. Passing down the east aisle one sees the exhibits of the Singer Sewing Machine Co., with practical demonstrations of fancy machine sewing constantly in progress, the De Laved Separator Co., the McClark Manufacturing Co., W. H. Robinson, merchant tailor, occupies a stand, Heintzmann and Co., the H. A. Lister Cream Separator Co., P. S. Perrin and Co., biscuit manufacturers, the Canadian Handicrafts Guild, Ross Brothers, hardware, and the Alex. Hilpert Co., furriers, taking up the remainder of the space. The Canadian Handicrafts Guild has on view probably the finest exhibit of handicraft of every description ever seen in the west.

AUTUMN IDEAS

We are now prepared to show the newest Autumn ideas throughout our entire establishment. One of our ideas is that Quality shall always be the best; another idea we have is that no customer shall leave our store with a garment that is not perfectly fitted. That we shall not overcharge, but give a fair value to those who give us their confidence is also one of our ideas. We shall be pleased to show you the latest ideas in Autumn goods on and after Monday.

Advance Showing of Fall Costume Fabrics

Every lady is assuredly interested each year in the first glimpses at the materials which will compose the majority of the Costumes during the Fall Season.

This year it seems beyond question that Velvets, Velveteens and Tweeds will secure the lion's share of popular approval. Our buyers visit to the American and eastern markets has shown conclusively that this is so.

We have been fortunate enough this year to secure the exclusive control of some particularly stylish productions of leading Manufacturers and a cordial invitation is now issued to come next Monday and succeeding days to "size the situation up" and, if possible, to make a definite selection. We are absolutely confident that your only trouble in arriving at a decision will be the great wealth of choice which we are able to display.

As some idea of what awaits you, we append a few notes which it may well repay you to read carefully.

LOOSE SAILS HAVE BEEN BLOWN FOR MILLIONS

Fraudulent Contracts, Padded Accounts, Irregular Claims, and Illegal Transactions with Party Hoelers Have Taken Large Sums of Money from Treasury.

Washington, Aug. 1.—While the department of justice is busy demonstrating the soundness of the theory that "honesty is the best policy," Uncle Sam himself is often the victim of undesirable citizens.

Fifteen millions of dollars have been stolen outright from the United States government since the union of the states.

Last year alone the treasury department reported that of the funds supposed to be in the mints, sub-treasuries and assay office and United States depositories, there was a shortage of $1,585,154.34, and no one can estimate the amount the government has lost through fraudulent contracts, padded accounts, and irregular claims.

The most of this vast sum was simply taken from the government prior to the last few years indicate both that it is now harder to steal from Uncle Sam than in the "good old days," and that government employees have become more honest. Thieves through many a shrewd device have won a gradual tightening of the government purse strings through improved methods of accounting, but only at the beginning of the present fiscal year have all departments of the government been compelled to adopt a universal system of bookkeeping. Such a system was recommended by the commission appointed by President Taft to evolve methods of efficiency, and with the universal accounting system it is believed additional losses, possibly hereafter undiscovered, will be stopped.

Congressional investigating committees now probe the expenditures practically every department of the government may also make recommendations intended to prevent further losses. The perfect Uncle Sam's bookkeeping methods. Banks have regular examiners supposed to detect irregularities, but examiners must have special legislation each time a problem is conducted. United States mints and sub-treasuries, having vast sums of ready money in their vaults, have been the victims of the largest losses sustained by the government. Since the opening of the mint in San Francisco $13,557,96 has been lost in some instances, while the greatest single loss to the government was that of a cool million dollars from the New Orleans sub-treasury in 1887.

More recently the Chicago sub-treasury lost $175,000 in some mysterious manner, while the sub-treasury at St. Louis developed a shortage of many thousands of dollars about which almost as little is known as the distance was the money recovered and so far there has been no one punished for the theft.

In 1893 $13,426.56 in gold bullion was embezzled by a weighing clerk at the Philadelphia mint and of this sum over $12,000 was never recovered. On a recent count of the silver dollars stored in the mint vaults there a shortage of practically $1,000 was found. The million dollar loss from the New Orleans sub-treasury brought about a natural thorough investigation by special agents of the treasury department, which resulted in the recovery of about $200,000. An official connected with the sub-treasury was accused of the theft, but was acquitted, and of the million dollars stolen the net loss to the government still remains $680,891.53. This sum long ago was charged to the loss account of Uncle Sam.

Probably the most unique loss to the government came through the mint at San Francisco fifty years ago, when nearly $150,000 was supposed to have been literally blown away. The cause of the refinery was defective and when the government entered suit to recover the sum supposed to have been blown it lost the suit. Exactly $150,550 in gold and $1,776 in silver was alleged to have gone up the chimney because of the construction.

Disbursing officers in the various departments have been the means of large losses to the government, too. William Yeatman, disbursing clerk in the war department, through supposed payments on land adjoining army posts, and which it was supposed belonged to the government, managed to develop a shortage of $60,000. Not for many years was it discovered that the property for which Yeatman was supposed to be paying did not belong to the government and that the payments instead had gone to his pocket. When the government finally made these discoveries Yeatman was dead.

Thus comparatively recent years have furnished a list of losses to the United States who did abroad were taken charge of by the diplomatic agents of the government and turned over to the state department and were under the direct charge of the disbursing officer of the department. During the tenure of office of one of these disbursing officers, it was charged that since more than $100,000 disappeared. This loss resulted in the changing of the law so that now such estates placed in trust are fully protected.

Among the comparatively few convictions for embezzlement from the government were the cases of J. C. Bridgman, Indian agent at Fort Belmont, Mont., who died in 1900, was found to be short more than $100,000.

ALPS CLAIMING MANY CLIMBERS

Six Peak Scalers Killed During the Past Ten Days—Soldier Included.

(International News Service.)
Chamonix City, Aug. 1.—In one afternoon alone this week, the Alps have claimed six daring climbers who fell to their death while attempting to scale the more dangerous peaks.

At the great Mythen mountain, Franz Wehrer, a climber of Zurich, was killed near the summit. Not an hour later, Albert Wehrer, a composer also of Zurich, was killed near the same spot. The Mythen mountain took the life of Wolfgang Summer, of Balthofen, of whom only a hat and an alpenstock were recovered. While ascending the Dent de Morcles, a soldier fell from a precipice and was dashed to pieces. Meanwhile Herman Rapp and Joseph Whisker, of St. Gall were victims of the Shaffner, while gathering edelweiss. Both bodies were recovered after difficult and perilous rescue work.

The Psychology of Form

Being an advertisement for THE KEYSTONE PRESS

But published in the hope that it may Conduce in some slight way to an Increase of beauty in many places.

IT is a matter of common knowledge that certain forms appeal more readily to the eye than others. By a clever manipulation of light and shade and a proper partitioning of the component parts an advertisement may be made to arrest the attention and so please our aesthetic sense as to merit the careful perusal which all persons engaged in attracting the public attention so much desire. While on the other hand a haphazard assembling of equally clever matter may be passed over on account of the monotone appearance which it presents to the eye. So great is becoming the power of the press and so increasingly stupendous are becoming the expenditures for advertising matter that a discussion of the underlying principles which conduce to grace and beauty of form and consequently to interest on the part of the observer may not be out of place. More especially should such a discussion be of interest in view of the fact that the laws of beauty are universal and applicable to many of the constructive crafts as well as to printing and a more intimate working knowledge of them should result in increased beauty in many places.

An analysis for beauty of elementary forms would eventually lead us to the spiral or serpentine line as the one possessing the most grace. Hogarth's line of beauty, with which many artists are familiar, but few know the origin, is but a simple modification of the serpentine wave, the beauty of which is exemplified in winding paths or tortuous brooks. But as the curved line is, generally speaking, beyond the possibilities of the typographer, the discussion must be limited to an examination of the forms with which we have to work.

Given a certain amount of copy, the work of producing a graceful and pleasing design falls under three heads: The size and quality of the stock or paper on which we will print it; the general form or design which we will use, and the contrasts and gradations of tone which by proper selection of materials we may secure.

Before discussing each of these in detail it will be necessary that we have some standards or laws on which to base our acceptance or rejection of the various combinations which we may find it possible to use.

The first of these laws is fitness. By fitness we mean that the object must be designed with due consideration of the use to which it may be put. It must be large enough to avoid the appearance of skimpiness and yet not bulky enough to denote extravagance and waste. A dwelling which to our accepted standards appears too small for human habitation is a subject of mirth especially when situated in the midst of larger and more comfortable houses, while a similar house much reduced in size but designed to shelter dolls excites no comment. Similarly a horse with the body and limbs of a racer but the head and neck of a truck horse would offend the eye by its incongruity.

The second law is uniformity. Articles piled, stacked or placed uniformly are always more pleasing than similar things strewn haphazard. No further elaboration of this law seems necessary, save to note that while uniformity is greatly to be desired, it does not in itself contribute much to beauty. A straight line is a model of uniformity but is not of itself very beautiful.

The third principle is quantity, for much as we may disparage undue extravagance of size, it cannot be denied that bodies sometimes appeal us by their very magnitude. Large buildings and mountains command our attention; likewise a full page ad. will often receive more comment than the subject matter deserves.

The fourth law is that of intricacy. The active mind desires employment. The love of pursuit, merely as pursuit is implanted in our natures, consequently the eye has a sort of enjoyment in following the ins and outs of a design, no matter what form they may take and any combination of lines which will lead the eye a chase is assured of at least that much attention.

The fifth law is symmetry. Balance we must have, as the mind is always fearful of anything that has the appearance of toppling. A scale with only one arm would at once appeal to us as useless or a boat with out-hanging masts on one side would give us a sense of insecurity. Hence we desire completeness or at least some counter to overhanging weight.

But the last and greatest of all these laws is variety. Without variety we have little or no art and nature herself furnishes so many examples of the necessity of this trait that discussion seems unnecessary.

Returning to the question of material on which to work, the nature of the work generally determines the quality and physical characteristics of the paper we will use. It need not, however, determine the size nor the proportion. The work should be regulated by the possibility of receiving the subject matter set in a type which is easily readable and a sufficient margin allowed for design and variety of tone. The proportions are arrived at by different methods. With four possible forms to choose from we must at once eliminate the circle and the triangle, which, though both possessing beauty in themselves are not within the range of mechanical possibilities as a general rule. This leaves us the square and the rectangle.

The square, as will be seen from the accompanying illustration possesses some elements of beauty. It has uniformity, symmetry, may have fitness and can have quantity, but it lacks the very essential element of variety. It will be noticed that the oblong rectangle possesses all the good qualities of the square, but in addition has variety. Consequently the rectangle will be our choice. But if the rectangle is better than the square, rectangles of certain proportions will doubtless be more pleasing than others. Such is the case and here we must abandon logic and revert to observation and experience. Note the three forms above. The centre one will probably appeal to you as the most graceful. It has been chosen by so many people from among numerous similar forms, that its identity is no longer questioned and it only remains to determine the proportion as simply as possible. It has been found that the longer side is the diagonal of a square described on the base. Mathematically the square root of twice the square of the base will give you the right length for the side, or more easily, describe a square on the base or width of the side determined on and the diagonal will be the proper length. This is not a "golden section" which we will speak of later, but it approximates it very closely and for convenience in folding it answers the purpose of the worker in paper much better. This formula is well known to glass manufacturers, but of the many industries where it might be applied they seem to be the only ones at present using it.

For many reasons paper sizes and advertisements cannot always be made to conform to this law, but it must be remembered that the closer they approximate it, the more pleasing will be the result.

Now, having determined an esthetic proportion for our canvas, the form of the picture should next claim our attention. Variety is the real essential in this work. The space may be panelled to good effect, the panels may be contrasted with circles or ovals where cuts are used or squares may if properly arranged be used to advantage. If panels are used they should be made to conform to the law of the "Golden Section," that is, the side should be to the end as the side plus the end is to the side. This is a simple formula but it often works out in fractions and can only be approximated generally speaking, as for instance: 5:3:8:5. (Multiplying the extremes we get 25 and from the means 24.)

But the ideal form for a layout is the pyramid or triangle. It possesses uniformity, symmetry and variety, and cannot as a rule be passed over with a glance. Rather the eye will follow its outlines in an endeavor to find an end or the sharpest corner. In typography the pyramids are of course inverted, but the peculiar psychology effect remains the same. In support of this theory, one of the best works of sculpture the world has ever known gives us a notable example. In this great work "Laocoon Torn by the Serpents," the authors chose to be guilty of the absurdity of making the sons of half the father's size, though they have every other mark of being designed for scale, rather than not bring their composition within the boundary of a pyramid.

In conclusion we might say that while you may not be interested in artistic considerations, you owe it to yourself to get the most value possible for the money you are expending in advertising. The study of form has only recently come to the attention of the advertising experts and specific tests have shown that it has a value hitherto unsuspected.

In publishing this advertisement we have striven to make common knowledge we had on the subject of form, and we respectfully submit that a house which gives this much thought and attention to the detail of form must have other knowledge which is equally valuable and would be a pretty safe house with which to entrust your printing.

Our next article will be on Light, Color and Color Combinations with a special paragraph on color combinations in fabrics.

Committee Reports Irish Insurance Bill

Want Separate Fund and Separate Commissioners for Ireland—Think Unemployment Insurance Should Be Limited, Excluding All Migratory Laborers.

(Timothy P. O'Connor.)
Burlington, Aug. 1.—A meeting of the Nationalist party, at which Mr. John Redmond presided over an attendance of 48 members, considered the report of the committee appointed by the Irish party on June 1 last to inquire into the National Insurance bill as applied to Ireland. The party in June declared its hearty approval of the principle of the measure, but contemplated amendments to suit the special circumstances of Ireland. The committee submitted the following recommendations by way of addition to clause 5 of the bill: The Chancellor of the Exchequer having agreed that the Irish case should be exclusively dealt with by the committee.
1. That there should be separate Irish insurance commissioners, involving separate administration and a separate Irish insurance fund.
2. That as regards the whole of Ireland medical benefit should be eliminated from the bill. The reason for this proposal is that there is already in Ireland a system of medical relief for the poor which is generally speaking, efficient, and is paid for chiefly out of the rates.
3. That, as the greater part of the workers in Ireland who are covered by the bill come under Class I, of hazard, that is to say, are engaged in agriculture, the vast sickness, prevails, a smaller contribution by employers and employees ought to be substituted for the benefits provided by the bill.
4. That it is highly desirable that those industries should not have any burden placed upon them, and accordingly that those workers should be excluded from the operation of the bill.
5. That migratory laborers, such as rural farmers, who go from the west of Ireland to England to work for the harvest, and casual laborers should be also excluded from the operation of the bill in Ireland.
6. That persons working for their parents or other persons liable to maintain them should be exempted from the bill. This is an extension of the operation of a principle recognized by the bill in the case of all sons and daughters and other relatives who work for their parents or persons liable to maintain them, and who receive no wages.

7. That, as an alternative to the extension of domestic servants, the committee proposed that the Irish party has been suggested for domestic servants in Great Britain might be applied to Ireland. It was in this respect that domestic servants will be insured at a greatly reduced rate for all purposes except sickness, funeral, and unemployment.
8. That the health committee proposed to be constituted should consist of representatives of the county councils, including the councils of county boroughs, of the insured members, of the representatives of the local sanitary authorities, of the approved societies, and of other persons whom the county councils might consider proper to put upon these bodies.
9. That the minimum limit of membership for an approved society in Ireland should be fixed at 500.
10. That refugees from Russia, known in Ireland as "Madchen Asylums," should be exempted.
11. That the scheme of unemployment insurance should be limited to its operation in Ireland to the county boroughs, with power to the workers in the agricultural trades resident in the county boroughs to be included in the insurance scheme through the county council or town commission.
12. That special provision should be made for the benefit of the insured of small industries.
13. That the sickness benefit should be limited to the Irish insurance fund.
If these changes are made, the committee added, there will be such a radical change in the rate of contribution of employers and employees, as will make the scheme one which, as a whole, will confer great benefits upon employers and employees, in addition to the points mentioned, there are several others, especially in regard to friendly societies and trade bodies, which has come under consideration.

EDMONTON IS NOW THE MECCA OF THE RAILWAY BUILDERS

THREE TRANSCONTINENTAL LINES RACING FOR TRAFFIC

Capital City of the Province Now the Heart of the Most Remarkable Railway Development Known to the Present Century—Scores of Contractors Superintending the Construction of Hundreds of Miles of Grade.

Progress in western Canada as in any other part of the world is being made by the railway. The same applies to progress in the city of Edmonton. Here the railways penetrated what was then known as the northern wilderness. Edmonton was an outpost of the Hudson's Bay company. Now she is the centre of an exceedingly large and prosperous territory, the resources and possibilities of which are just beginning to be realized. By the construction of railways this marvelous change has been effected.

But the end is not yet. There is a vast country tributary to Edmonton that has not been reached by the iron horse. It is cut off from the markets of the world through lack of transportation facilities. The race for the traffic of this great territory, fertile and possessing untold wealth in minerals of various kinds, is now under way and is being witnessed in the construction of the G. N. R. line to Athabasca Landing and the Peace River country, and in the activities of the Canadian Pacific and G. T. P. P. considering survey parties to discover the most suitable routes by which to enter the great undeveloped agricultural areas to the north.

At present the G. T. P. has a party of surveyors in the country near the Hudson's Bay for a railway. Construction on this branch to the Peace river will in all probability commence next summer. The Canadian Pacific has been investigating the north country for years and it is safe to say that the grades on the various possible routes to the Peace River country and in the northern passes of the Rockies are better known by the engineering department of the G. T. P. than any other railway corporation. When this company finally makes its start for the north, no line will be lost in completing the line.

Peace River Line. The route map of the G. N. R. Peace River line, which leaves the main line at Duval, 30 miles west of Edmonton, has been resisted to a point just beyond the crossing of the Athabasca river, 100 miles from the junction of the branch with the main line. Fifty miles of this line will be built this year. Engineers are at work locating the line further north, and within the next year it will tap the very heart of the Peace River plains. The completion of the Athabasca Landing line of the G. N. R. this autumn will mean the opening of 5,000 miles of waterways on which the traffic of the north will be handled with more extensive facilities. Construction provides better facilities.

Means Much to Edmonton. These activities mean much to Edmonton beyond the value of property that comes as a result of the expenditure in the country of millions of dollars in actual construction work. They mean that the territory is opening up from which a constantly increasing volume of trade will flow through this city. The forces that brought Edmonton from the position of an outpost in a barren wilderness to that which she occupies today, as the centre of a vast territory, are now serving to make her great by developing the resources of the territory to which she has fallen heir.

The value of a country from a commercial standpoint always can be judged by the degree of interest displayed in it by railway builders, and from the fact that at practically every session of the provincial legislature and the Dominion parliament during the past few years there has been a scramble on the part of railway men to get approved route maps of lines tapping the north, it can be safely inferred that Alberta's great hinterland possesses wealth untold. It is not only the three railway companies that already have extensive systems in the Canadian west that are planning lines for the north country. New companies have been formed and charters have been granted to corporations whose first projects will be development lines in the northern areas where the trapper has held sway since the white man first knew them.

Number of New Companies. Among the new companies that have been formed for the purpose of railway development in the north are the Pacific and Peace River railway, the Pacific, Northern and Oninqua railway, and the Hudson's Bay, Peace River and Pacific railway. Construction work on all these lines will be commenced with a view of reaching the Peace River coast through one of the northern passes in the Rocky mountains.

The first of these railways has approved a route map for a line of the first-named railway company, from Edmonton to the Peace River, and a fifth makes close connections with the branch from the Gateway City, the traffic returns for the three roads now in operation between this city and Winnipeg. The fact that four lines are in Edmonton daily, direct from Winnipeg, and a fifth makes close connections with the branch from the Gateway City, the traffic returns for the three roads now in operation between this city and Winnipeg. The fact that four lines are in Edmonton daily, direct from Winnipeg, and a fifth makes close connections with the branch from the Gateway City, the traffic returns for the three roads now in operation between this city and Winnipeg.

But the great advantage to which Edmonton looks forward as a result of the railway building now being witnessed is that of a position on a short transcontinental line.

The completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific and the main line of the Canadian Northern will mark the real commencement of her growth and prosperity. These roads will furnish an outlet for the products of the north country, both east and west. The fact that they lead through the greatest natural pleasure resort of the Dominion, Jasper Park, will draw a large tourist trade to Edmonton. The east gradient, over which they cross the mountains, will give them supremacy over all other Canadian lines in the matter of handling freight through to the Pacific coast.

With the completion of these lines Edmonton will be no longer at the end of the road. She will be on the main highway from ocean to ocean over which the bulk of the transcontinental freight and passenger traffic will pass. That Edmonton will reap a benefit from the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific line through the mountains, long before it connects up with the Pacific section. As soon as it reaches Teles Juan Cache, 19 miles west of the summit of the mountains, this city will become the wholesale distributing point for the rapidly developing Port George country. The expensive land from Ascroft to Rock Creek on a rough and rocky wagon road, over which thousands of tons of freight have been transported at a cost that is almost prohibitive, will be a thing of the past. All freight will be transported to Teles Juan Cache over the line of the G. T. P. from Edmonton. From that point it will be taken down the Fraser in scows to be distributed where it is required by the settlers and prospectors that are flocking to the country.

Already extensive coal deposits along the mountain section of the G. T. P. are being developed, and the product of some of the mines will be on the market for use during the coming winter. Among the companies whose properties will be tapped by the G. T. P. are the Yellowhead Pass Coal and Coke company, the Mountain Pass Coal company, the Pacific Pass Coal fields, limited, and the Jasper Park collieries. The property of the Pacific Pass Coal Fields Limited will be served by the branch of the G. T. P. now under construction from Medicine Hat, 10 miles west of Edmonton. The company is now running 250 tons of coal per day and when the line is completed to their property, shipments will be made immediately. Several other companies have been formed to develop coal areas at different points along this branch line.

The Canadian Northern line from Jasper through to the Brazeau will also open up vast coal deposits. It is expected that this line will join the main line from Edmonton at a point near the Yellowhead Pass.

Increase Telegraph Lines. Between Winnipeg and Edmonton have been increased during the past year. Early in the spring the installation of a new wire between Winnipeg and Edmonton was completed, giving a better commercial service to the towns along the line. Another wire was strung also from Edmonton to Vegreville and down the Calgary branch to the local steel, to be used in operating the construction trains running on the branch.

The growth of the railway equipment in Edmonton during the past year, however, will be small indeed, compared with that to be anticipated with the extension of the line to Athabasca Landing and its operation, and the completion of the main line west and the branch to the Peace River country. Edmonton, instead of being at the end of the line will then be the centre of the G. N. R. of traffic activities extending over a wide and fertile territory, just as she will be for the G. T. P. To accommodate the change the great facilities will have to be doubled many times over.

G.T.P. IS BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE
Laying Out Up-to-the-Minute Shops and Yards—Erecting Palatial Hotel.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway company is gradually increasing its investment in Edmonton, up to the present time the company has had done any building expenditure in the matter of large expenditure in buildings in the city, but they are now embarking on a scheme for the erection of a palatial hotel on McDougall avenue overlooking the valley of the Saskatchewan, which will involve the expenditure of upwards of a million dollars here. This is being proceeded with this summer. It is confidently expected that the next big item of expenditure on the National Transcontinental's Edmonton programme will be the erection of shops at Calder, where the railway yards are now established. Sufficient land has been acquired there for the accommodation of all necessary buildings and trackage in connection with such an industry, and with the completion of the line to the coast, shops will undoubtedly be required here. An announcement regarding the company's intention to commence shop building operations on this property is expected in the near future.

Hitherto the company has confined its operations to the construction of a round house and repair shop at Calder, the establishment of a store department there and extensions of the trackage facilities in the yards.

A $100,000 Roundhouse
The erection of the 18-stall round house and repair shop. Workmen to the number of 150 are now employed in the plant and this number probably will be doubled before winter sets in.

IN THE WORLD OF WOMEN

Why all Women Should Have a Right to Vote

Dorothy Dix Gives a Few Crisp Reasons Why She Believes in Woman Suffrage—Thinks It Would Ensure Much Clearer Politics

By Dorothy Dix

A woman who asks me why I believe in giving women the ballot, and what good it will accomplish to grant women the right to vote.

I believe that women should be given the right of suffrage:

Because taxation without representation is tyranny.

Because all just government must rest upon the consent of the governed.

Because America can never be a real democracy until all of its people, whether male or female, participate equally in the government.

Because it is eminently unjust that one-half of the people should be ruled by the other half, simply because one half is male and the other is female.

Because the accident of sex should not be made a variable element in placing the noblest and most intelligent women in the same class as the most degraded men.

Because no man can any more represent a woman at the polls than he can in a military shop.

Because men and women are not alike in strength or mentality. They have different needs and need different representation in the government.

Because there are no more women exercising women in the United States, and these women have a vital interest in a voice in determining the conditions under which they work and for their own protection.

Because the class that furnishes three-fourths of the high school graduates, and only 2 per cent. of the criminals will make desirable citizens.

Present Government Unjust.

Because just as it takes a man and a woman working shoulder to shoulder, with every faculty of heart and head brought into play, to make the ideal home, so it will take men and women working together, side by side, giving the best of both masculine and feminine qualities to make the ideal country. A solely masculine or feminine world is unthinkable. A solely masculine environment is impossibly unjust.

Would Ensure Clearer Politics.

I believe that women will have the same effect upon politics that she has upon society; that she will elevate it, purify it, humanize it. The very first result of woman's suffrage in Colorado was to take the primrose and the yellow flag out of the back rooms of saloons into the school houses and churches, and to remove the polling booths from boot-black establishments and such places to respectable quarters.

Would Ensure Clearer Politics.

I believe that the very fact that woman's range of vision is largely personal, and that she will probably look at the man more intently than she does at the issue, will make for the purging of the kinship sleeve went, but the law of probability seems to be in favor of carrying out the decree this time. It is safe to predict that the autumn will bring a change in the sleeves, but how radical that change will be there is no telling.

Just what the popular sleeve will be remains to be seen, but it would not be advisable to have a new frock intended for autumn use, made on the kinship line which dominates summer comes. It is no less true that the very which waist line, though seen, everywhere, is undoubtedly losing position, and it seems likely that the model line will be found; that is, at the natural waist line—even if it does not, as some rumors have it, change itself still further.

Summer Cloaks.

Summer cloaks and wraps of all kinds are more than usually good this year, and they run the gamut from the severe and most conventional of tailored dress coats to the most fantastic of little mantles and short coats. The reversible coat, which was an unusual thing at the beginning of the season, is often now both in satin and in wool and has its practical value. The woolen models are invariably of two-faced cloth, such materials being supplied in great variety and beauty by the foreign manufacturers. The reversible coat of satin is made both in the double-faced satin and in satin of one color lined with satin of contrasting color, the latter being, of course, considerably the warmer of the two and therefore less satisfactory for hot weather purposes.

Velvet is Popular.

Velvet appears upon many of the coats in satin, tulle, chiffon, etc., but it is a rule used sparingly merely to give effective relief. The white double-faced satin with soft color on the under side makes up into delightful coats, the big collars and cuffs showing the colored side and touches of black velvet or heavy lace serving as additional trimming.

Double-faced Time broadcloth is lovely, too, in white and color. In place of black satin, which used to be extremely fashionable for long coats, French makers now often use various shades of light blue, beige, bronze green, taupe, etc.

Semi-transparent long coats of colored marquisette or chiffon embroidered in self color or bordered by self color or satin or velvet are good looking when worn over white or harmonizing colors, and one of the novelties of the season is the linear long coat, whose fine foundation is usually almost hidden by inset laces and embroidery.

A QUESTION

"Was her marriage a success?"

"Really, I don't know what anybody's got."

PROUDEST HOUR OF A WOMAN'S LIFE

Every One Has Different View, Some Worth Considering—Others Not

(Copyright, 1914, by the American Journal-Examiner.)

What is the proudest hour of a woman's life, asks a curious one of a busy of women.

There is silence for a moment, then one speaks:

"The proudest hour of my life was when I graduated with the honors of my class, and won a scholarship at college."

Nothing else ever gave me such a sense of satisfaction as that; because I was a poor girl, with my own way to make in the world, and that meant much to me. All that has come since then has been more or less mixed with trouble and difficulty, and disillusionment; but that was an hour of pure, unalloyed joy and pride."

Another speaks:

"The proudest hour of my life was when I paid all the old debts left by my father, who died before he could settle the affairs of a dishonest partner. My father was not in fault; yet there was a shadow over his name through the unfortunate association."

"I lifted that shadow; and it was my proudest hour."

A third speaks:

"My proudest hour was when the nurse told me I was the mother of a son. I had three daughters; all lovely girls, and welcome to both parents; yet, like every primitive woman, I wanted to be the mother of a son. That was my proudest hour."

The fourth is a human butterfly; here to money and position, and her proudest hour is in accordance with her life:

"I fear I have never done anything which gave me great pride," she says, "but fate has done some things for me which were gratifying to my nature. I never remember to have felt more satisfaction than when I was presented at court, and saw many admiring glances turned upon me. There were people in my own land who had tried to make me feel that their position in society was higher than mine. This honor I received from royalty settled that matter forever in my mind. I was really very proud of my success."

The fifth is an artist; wife of a noble workman, and mother of fair children. She speaks:

"My proudest hour was when my picture received the highest praise of any in the exhibition. Then, indeed, I knew I was making good with the talent God gave me."

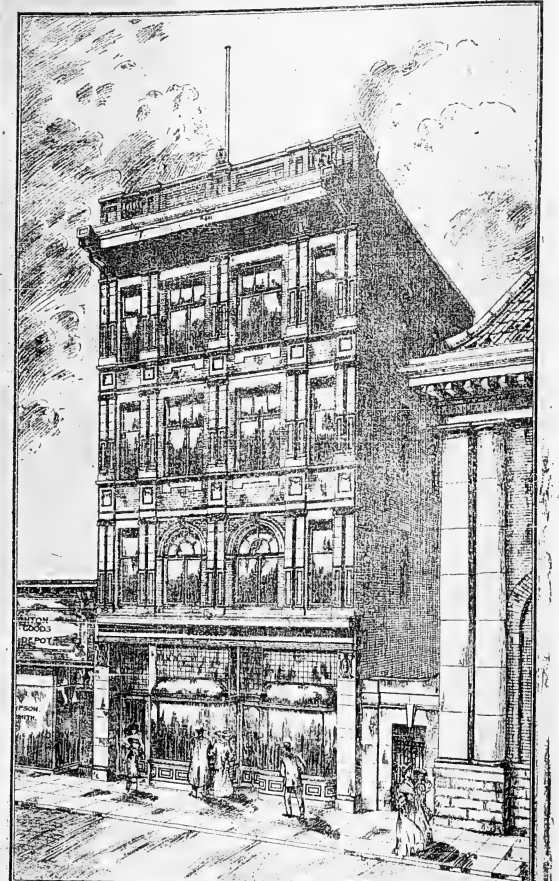

The sixth:

"When I succeeded in conquering my rebellious worldly heart, and gave myself unreservedly to God by becoming a member of the Salvation Army, I experienced my proudest hour."

And last of all spoke the seventh:

Coming Autumn Will See Many Changes in Styles—Velvet Becoming More Popular Each Year—Summer Wraps Above the Ordinary Length

Some fashion authorities have expressed the opinion that the coming autumn will bring many important changes of fashions. They say that the prosperity of the manufacturers and dealers in dress goods demands a decided change in the fashionable silhouette. It is claimed that only by such a radical change can the business be made profitable again. The depression in the business of the manufacturers and dealers was due not only to the fact that the fashionable dresses required an unusually small amount of material, but also to the fact that owing to the retention of the slender silhouette a number of women were enabled to wear their old gowns for several seasons without being actually out of style.

FRANCE UNGENEROUS WITH DECORATIONS TO WOMEN

But One Who Gave Special Assistance to French Troops During Franco-Prussian War Is Especially Remembered, After Many Years, by Government

(International News Service.)

Paris, Aug. 10.—France is not very generous with her decorations to women, but the other day a number of officials of the republic in top-hats and tri-colored sashes attached a memorial plate on the wall of a little house in Bievres, the former home of a woman who won the Cross of the Legion of Honor by her protection during the Franco-Prussian war, and whom a member of the government has just named as the German enemy considered she was but a ordinary telegraph operator.

On the memorial plate stand only 11 had sent out to examine the wires, the words "Juliette Dadi lived and died in this house," and no more words are necessary, for every child in France knows who Juliette Dadi was.

When the Franco-Prussian war was declared, just forty-one years ago in Bievres, she was employed as a telegraph operator in the little town of Philiviers. She was then only 20 years old, and in her diary, which is in the possession of one of her Parisian friends, M. Hene Thion, she tells of what she did for her country in the simple words of a true heroine.

I made a copy of a few of the entries made by this noble woman:

"20 September, 1870: The Prussians scouts entered Philiviers, and I notified the committee of national defense at Tours.

"21 September: A squadron of Uhlans arrived here, and having telegraphed this fact to Orleans, I succeeded in detaching my apparatus and hiding my records. As the door of the telegraph station was guarded by sentries, I hid my Morse apparatus under my cloak and walked out without arousing the enemy's suspicion.

"September 24: The Uhlans have departed and I have again established connection with Orleans.

"September 27: Prince Albert of Prussia has arrived in command of an army corps composed of Bavarians and the Death Head Hussars. I wanted to inform Orleans, but the office was invaded by several officers and I was glad to get away with my apparatus through a back door, the Germans cut all the wires, but overlooked one connecting with Orleans, so that I was able to telegraph secretly every night all I could discover about the plans of the enemy.

"Prince Albert's army corps remained here until October 3, when he established his headquarters at Orleans. Philiviers being then free from German troops, I had a wire put up to Montargis, where it connected with the wires of the military headquarters at Tours. A few days afterwards a French army of 10,000 men came to Philiviers for three days and nights I was sent for and receiving messages without a moment's rest.

Construction work is being proceeded with rapidly on the new hotel building under erection by the Northern Hotel Company on the corner of N. Mayo avenue and 11th street. The building will be equipped with thoroughly modern arrangements throughout and when completed will furnish a creditable addition to the number of well managed hostilities already established in the city. An effort is being made to have the building finished in time for occupation by November 1st. Construction work will recommence shortly on the four-story addition to the Kinsella hotel a license for which was granted by the provincial license commissioners in session at Edmonton.

WOMAN PASTOR AT LAST ACCEPTED

At Geneva by Local Synod Has Been Preaching Four Years

(International News Service.)

London, Aug. 10.—An English lady pastor, the Rev. Gertrude Petford, well known to Leicester and Birmingham, is the first woman to be accepted at Geneva under a decision of the local synod to admit women as pastors, and to allow all parishes full liberty to choose qualified women clergy.

As many of the parishes in the Canton have been without a clergyman for years it is thought the casual posts will be generally filled by women, though the stipends are low. This pioneer is Miss Petford, who obtained her degrees in Germany and England. Since January last she has been the minister at the Watford Road Baptist church, Small Heath, Birmingham. She took her M. A. degree at Edinburgh university, and later studied theology for three years at Manchester College, Oxford.

For four years she was minister at the Free Christian church, Leicester.

SOCIAL SEASON IS HOPELESSLY DEAD

(International News Service.)

Paris, Aug. 10.—The social season is now hopelessly dead, and will not come to life again for another three months. The first of August is the usual limit allowed by fashion to its victims to disappear from Paris with its horde of strangers, its crowded boulevards and noisy motor buses.

Obviously, one cannot live by vacation alone, and there have to be further visits to Paris to attend to business; but, theoretically, later families with pretensions to a social existence are proposing under a tree within sight of the Alps though actually it may only be in sight of the burnt-up chestnut trees of the boulevards.

Cabinet Officials Are Grilled By Committee

ACTIVITY AT FAIR GROUNDS

The grounds of the Edmonton exhibition association are taking on an appearance of real activity this week preparatory to the exhibition which opens next Tuesday. Yesterday the headquarters of the association were removed from their office on Second street to the exhibition grounds and entries are beginning to pour into the office. Purchasers of privilege space are settling on the ground and some of the booths are already under construction.

The grounds are in good shape for the exhibition, sidewalk construction has been completed to all the buildings and the grass all over the grounds has been mowed. A number of the places that were mud holes at the time of the last exhibition are covered with a layer of sand and even though the weather may be wet next week it will be possible to move about the grounds with very little inconvenience.

Finishing touches are now being put on the two buildings that have been erected on the grounds this year, and by the opening day everything will be in splendid shape.

President Taft the Only One to Escape Being Brought Before Investigating Boards of House—Is Exempt Through Custom and Courtesy

(BY JONATHAN WINFIELD)

Washington, Aug. 10.—Never in the history of the government have cabinet officials and administrative officers been so closely tied to their posts of duty as since the house of representatives made good on its promise to start an investigation of every department of the government service.

These cabinet members who have not already been placed on the grill by some house investigating committee are momentarily expecting to be called. Records are being raked over, much data compiled, and testimony has been obtained at the command of the democratic investigating bodies, each of which has been clothed with plenary power to compel the attendance of any witness desired.

Secretary of State Knox has appeared twice before the house committee investigating the state department. Under officials of the state department have been upon the witness stand time and time again, and the committee has but lately started to probe into the alleged irregularities of administration.

The attorney-general has been before the house committee on expenditures in the department of justice and has been required to tell why the department permitted a settlement of the sugar trust customs frauds in New York, and, in addition, why the attorney-general has spent so much of the people's money in paying his fees to trust lawyers, such as Frank B. Kellogg, Henry L. Stimson and J. G. McVey.

The secretary of the navy has likewise appeared before the democratic committee, which is prying into the affairs of the department presided over by Mr. Meyer. The committee is not through with its investigations, and reserves the right to subpoena the secretary again at any time.

Secretary Nagel has appeared twice before the committee, which is considering a resolution demanding a thorough investigation of the immigration service. The secretary is also subject to call by the committee on expenditures of the department of commerce and labor, which is just now attempting to ascertain the truth of charges that the department has permitted the promiscuous slaughter of seals on the Pribilof islands, in Alaska.

Secretary Fisher has been placed on the list of witnesses to be examined by the house committee on expenditures in the interior department, which is now investigating the Controller Bay scandal. The secretary has been before the committee already and is to be in readiness whenever the committee desires his testimony.

Secretary McVey has paid one visit to the house committee investigating the treasury department. The supervising architect, assistant secretaries and others connected with the administration of that department have also been examined and all of them may be recalled.

Chief Clerk Wood, of the postoffice department, spent eight days on the witness stand before the committee in President Exempt.

Courtesy and custom exempt the president of the United States from appearing before an investigating committee of congress, but, were it not for this, it is probable that President Taft himself would have personal and direct knowledge of the thoroughness of the several probes started by the democratic house.

It has been forty years since any systematic investigation of the new administration of the various departments has been attempted. Before the November elections, the democratic promise that if they were placed in power to the house they would undertake a wholesale investigation of the red tape and the waste alleged to have been fostered through continued republican rule. At the time the threat was not taken seriously, but no sooner had the democrats come into power than the machinery of investigations was put in motion, and the various committees began to vie with one another in the thoroughness of the probes.

BELIEVE TUNNEL UNDER CHANNEL NECESSARY

Would Prevent Foreign Fleet Cutting off England's Food Supply

(International News Service.)
London, Aug. 1.—When the people of England a few weeks ago found that one single labor leader, in the person of Lancelotti Wilson, of the Sailors' and Firemen's union, was able to starve the great shipping firms of the country into an unequalled surrender, they began to realize what might happen to the proud sons of Albion if the presence of a German fleet in the North Sea should scare the food laden vessels of Scandinavia away. England's joy in its insular position rapidly diminished. She began to wonder whether the long-delayed tunnel, under the channel, would not be a good thing after all, in times of strike or war, and numbers of men prominent in public life have stated that they think now is the time to build it.

There are not only commercial, but military reasons in favor of it. In case of war, it would be a great asset to have the tunnel, both from the point of view of armed co-operation, as well as from that of provisioning the "little island" against the famine that stares it in the face in the event of the least interruption of sea communications.

Nothing more epoch-making could happen to Great Britain than the construction of this iron road under the strait. It would, it takes it, play a vital role in the development of Africa, and people would be week-enders in Algeria, if not at the Cape. But its principal and immediate value would be the arrival in bulk of the goods from the continent and vice-versa. Flowers and fruits from the south of France could arrive in Covent Garden from their refrigerating vans as fresh as when they were gathered, whilst potatoes and onions from Scotland's manufacturing centres could be distributed with rapidity, without breakages and intermediate haulages, to the various continental markets.

THE PUBLIC CHURCH OF ST. NICHOLAS CONDEMNED

Sum of 25,000 Needed to Restore it to Proper Condition

(International News Service.)
London, Aug. 11.—The historic church of St. Nicholas, Deptford, has been condemned as unsafe by the London county council, under the dangerous structures act, and an appeal is made for $25,000 for restoration.
The history of the church is bound up with the Spanish Armada and its defeat. It was in this church that Sir John Hawkins lived and devoted his energies to fitting out the ships of war. In this church, the admirals of the fleet met to worship before setting out to meet the foe. Here Byrn and Pope (the diarists), and Sir Francis Drake were constant worshippers. In this parish Evelyn discovered trinitro-glycerine, the world-renowned wood carver, and some of his greatest work is still to be seen in the old church, including his magnificent representation of Ezekiel's vision, "The Valley of Dry Bones."

Westminster Abbey of Navy.
The church is rich with associations in the history of the British empire. It is the Westminster abbey of the British navy. Within its walls Peter Pett, the inventor of the frigate, the precursor of the modern cruiser, lies buried. Many of the greatest naval heroes find their resting place there. William Hawkins brother of Sir John Hawkins, Edward Fenton, the notable Elizabethan explorer, who commanded the admiral's flagship in the fight with Spain; Frobenius, Sir Francis Drake, Captain Selkirk, and many of Devon's naval notabilities are also buried here. Also within its churchyard rests Sir Marlowe, the celebrated dramatist, and contemporary of Shakespeare. Under its shadow, Peter the Great, the emperor of Russia, learned the art of ship building.

WANTED TO KNOW NAME OF ACTRESS' MILLINER

Took Great Fancy to Singer's Hat and Letter is Summoned to Prison Box.
(Globe Cable Service.)
Berlin, Aug. 11.—The Princess August Wilhelm, wife of the Kaiser's fourth son, attended a performance recently of "The Chaste Suzanne," a popular opera, when she took a great fancy to a hat of enormous proportions worn by Fraulein von Pelras, the leading lady.
The princess summoned the singer to the royal box, and after congratulating her on the performance said that what she principally wanted to know was the name of the actress' milliner.

INNOCENT MAN DOES PRISON TERM

Convicted of Murder, Does 17 Years, Then Guilty Party Makes Confession

(Globe Cable Service.)
Paris, Aug. 12.—After serving 17 years' penal servitude for a crime he did not commit, Charles Michaud, farmer, of Morat, in the Crouse department, had his innocence legally established at the assize court at Bourges.
Michaud lived close to an elderly man, who was found one morning with his throat cut. On his arrest he strongly protested his innocence, but a number of witnesses declared they had seen Michaud in the neighborhood of the murdered man's house at the time the crime was committed, and Michaud was sentenced to penal servitude for life.
After 17 years of his term had gone by, another convict confessed to his fellow prisoner that he was the murderer. Michaud demanded a revision of his trial, which was granted three years ago. This has just been carried out, and after hearing had lasted two days the jury were clearly satisfied that he was innocent, and he has accordingly been set at liberty.
Michaud received a great ovation on leaving the court. For his long period of undeserved punishment he has received a gratuity of $6,000.

GENERAL PROVISIONS OF THE ACT OF ALGERIAS

Provides That French Troops in Morocco Are to Be at Disposal of the Sultan—Total Strength of Police Force Not to Exceed 2500

(Globe Cable Service.)
London, Aug. 12.—The general act of the international conference at Algiers in 1906 relating to Moorish affairs set forth in its preamble that: "Inspired by the interest which attaches to the reign of order, peace, and prosperity in Morocco, and having recognized that this desirable end could only be attained by means of the introduction of reforms based upon the threefold principle of the sovereignty and independence of his majesty the sultan, the integrity of his dominions, and economic liberty." Equality have resulted, on the basis of which has been addressed to them by his sherrifian majesty, to assemble a conference at Algiers in order to arrive at an understanding respecting the said reforms, as well as to examine the means of providing the resources necessary for their application."

Article 3 sets forth that:
"In order to assist the sultan in the organization of the police, Spanish officers and non-commissioned officers acting as instructors, and French officers and non-commissioned officers acting as instructors, shall be placed at his disposal by their respective governments, which shall submit their nominations for the approval of his sherrifian majesty."
The governments of the countries to which the instructors respectively belong reserve the right to recall them and to replace them by others approved of and suggested on the same conditions."

Organize Police Force

These officers and non-commissioned officers, the document proceeds, shall for a period of five years from the date of the ratification of the act of the conference give their services to the organization of the sherrifian police force; to be responsible for the instruction and discipline of these forces; superintend the administration of the force and the issue of laws, which shall be in the hands of the sultan; and they shall give technical assistance to the Moorish authorities invested with the command of these forces in the exercise of that command. Regulations for the proper working of these matters were to be drawn up and submitted to the diplomatic corps at Tangier.

The total strength of the whole effective police force was not to exceed 2,500 men nor be less than 2,000, and would be distributed, according to the importance of the parts, in detachments varying from 150 to 600 men. The number of Spanish and French of-

ART IS CONNECTED WITH WATCH BOXES

(International News Service.)

Paris, Aug. 12.—Art is heretofore to be connected with watchboxes. The ministry of finance having to renew this supply, decided some time ago that as not every Frenchman had leisure to study the pictures at the Louvre, the opportunity should be given him of studying them on his watchboxes. Some of these have hitherto been ornamented with the heads of the famous generals of the revolution. The generals will now have to retire, and make way for the Henri Braults, the Van Dycks and the Versailles of the Louvre. This price is to remain the same.

EXHIBITION PROMISES TO BE THE BEST EVER HELD IN THE CANADIAN WEST

Stock Entries for Fair Break All Previous Records—High Class Race Meet and Up-to-the-Minute Attractions—Dominion Fair 1912—History Association

Without some extended treatment of the progress and development of the Edmonton Exhibition Association, the date of whose annual fair is to be held on August 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19, is now rapidly approaching, no special edition of an Edmonton newspaper is complete. The Edmonton exhibition has for some years stood out as the one most strikingly alive and active of Edmonton's public bodies, and one whose efforts have been crowned with the most unqualified success.

Just now the public mind is occupied mainly with the prospect of the fair to be opened next month. That all previous records will be broken, that the attendance, if present indications form a fair criterion, will be little short of double that of last year, that the entries in almost all classes will be doubled, while the attractions of all kinds will be infinitely superior to any that have previously been seen in Western Canada; all these facts have a special significance to the Edmontonian who is interested in the growth in wealth and general prosperity of his community.

During the past three or four weeks, while publicity has been given through the local press to the preparations of the association, the stock entries, the races, the fireworks, the platform and other attractions to be provided by the Big Show, the expenditures upon the improvement of the grounds, in beautification and in increasing their usefulness, and the special provisions which have been made for the transportation of the vast throngs who will flock to the capital city and to the fair grounds during exhibition week, all these have received special treatment in the columns of the Capital.

Dominion Fair in 1912. But, while the prospects of the exhibition to be held three weeks hence overshadow for the moment all the other aspects of the association's work, and even the Dominion fair of 1912 upon the preparations for which the directors are already engaged, is overshadowed in the public mind by the monopoly of the immediacy of the event of the present year, a glance backward over the long history of the association, tracing the evolution from primitive beginnings of the strenuous and energetic organization of today, may not be out of place.

History of Association. The history of the Edmonton Exhibition Association, and of the less powerful organizations which formed the nucleus, extends back over a period of twenty-eight years, in days which are but a dim memory to many of the oldest of Edmonton's old-timers, days when the humming metropolis was an outpost of civilization, scarcely mentioned in the school geography, and associated in a vague way in the mind of the average reader, with the dictum of a certain French Louis apropos "Arrière de nous," which formed an impassable barrier to any but the most adventurous, between civilization and the third-rate Bay Trading station of the great Yukon's Land of the North. To write the history of the exhibition association is to contribute a very important fragment to the history of Edmonton and of Northern Alberta itself.

First Race Meet 28 Years Ago.

Twenty-eight years ago, Edmonton held her first race meet upon the old grassy track, laid out in a cleared space in the bush, which in those days covered the whole of the area between Third and Fourth streets and north of Jasper to the present railroad tracks. Later in that same year, the first agricultural exhibition was held, down in front of the old Columbia house, on the bank of the river near the junction of Jasper and University streets. The society formed in that year was the forerunner of the Great West International fair and race meet of today. The pioneers of the movement did not know that they were making history, but that their primitive efforts were to be fruitful in the years of the great 1911, in the biggest exhibition and race meet in a commercialized world. As it has been with pioneers of all time past, possibly a few had some presentiment of the great organization that was to be evolved from their primitive nucleus.

But to the great majority Edmonton was a trading post without prospects of greater future. The old-timer had often on deeper insight into the meaning of Edmonton's position, and dreamed no more of a glorified commercialized Edmonton, and the departure of the glamour of trade, romantic frontier life from the people of the old world themselves.

Edmonton Day Celebrated.

In those days Edmonton day was more locally celebrated than it is today. The old-timer at least declares that it was observed in a truer holiday spirit than prevails today. But perhaps that was because the settlers of those times had found patriotic or religious holidays the only breaks in the monotony of life which for social purposes did not, be remarkable. When artificial means of amusement did not exist, when theatres and classical music and the round of social amenities of a modern city were unheard of, the holidays that everybody celebrated were of especial significance.

Pioneer Grand Stand.

In the pioneer days, the grand stand on the old race track stood upon the spot which may now be located as the corner of Athabasca and Third, while the half-mile race track took up one or two cleared blocks of Hudson Bay reserve land, extending as far north as Peace avenue.

Then programs at that time, there was none. A number of races were arranged for, and all were "free for all." If a man wanted to compete in a foot race, he simply got on the track. If he wanted to test the prowess of his pony, all he needed to do was to come to the starting point at the right time. Everybody had a wager on every race.

Track Surrounded by Weeds.

A grassy track moved out of the long weeds that surrounded the grounds was the race course during the first five years of the Edmonton fair. The track was crudely graded, and in the 180's a fairly good track. Judged by the old-time standards had been made, each race was an event to be seen by the whole town. Business was scarce, and aside, and every inhabitant of the vicinity to the town would flock to the grounds as soon as the announcement was made. If a grand stand seat could not be procured, an old wagon, or the shoulders of an obliging comrade were requisitioned.

Agricultural Show.

The agricultural show was held in the rear space on Jasper avenue, near the old Columbia house. William Walker, proprietor of the hotel, and father of the sitting member in the provincial legislature for Fort Saskatchewan, Frank Walker, M.P.P., was one of the pioneers of the exhibition.

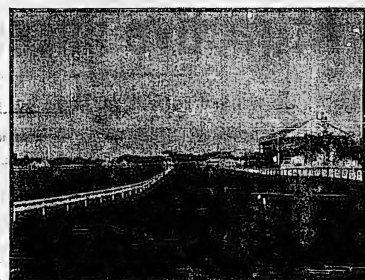

A. G. HARRISON, Manager of the Edmonton Exhibition Association. Mr. Harrison has had charge of the laying out of the grounds and the perfecting of plans for the Big Fair, which opens August 15.

with Mr. Laurier's aid, and in that year the first exhibition was held there.

From this year dated a long period during which the association was hampered by the ever-present financial difficulty. To make ends meet was their constant anxiety, and several times it appeared that races and agricultural fair alike were destined to perish through the bankruptcy of the association. The society offered the grounds to the town council for $20,000, but the offer was declined, and Messrs. McDonald and Second, respectively, bought up all the shares on the grounds, selling the land to the city.

Roads and Boulevards.

Of the roadmaking, boulevarding and laying of sidewalks, a very large portion has been completed. From the main entrance at the southwest corner of the park, a well laid gravel road passes between boulevards which have been seeded this spring, and avenues of elm and ash, with the smaller trees (1900 have been put in this year), have been planted. In front of the directors' offices is a pattern garden, while the park-like appearance is maintained in every portion of the 80 acres of the grounds by extensive boulevarding and the continuous rows of trees.

Grand Stand and Home Stretch of Racecourse, Exhibition Grounds

H. O. Co. Withdraws Grounds.

The fair and races continued to be held at the original grounds until Tommy Laurier received a note from the Hudson Bay company to the effect that the grounds would be no longer available. Then a search for new grounds was necessitated, but the $700 in the treasury was not enough to cover the purchase price of suitable new grounds.

Laid Out New Track. It was in 1900 that Arthur G. Harrison, the present manager of the Edmonton Exhibition Association, took out the race track at the foot of the hill.

In 1907 for $60,000, or three times the figure at which it had been offered previously.

Financial Thorns. Still the society was compelled to tread a path strewn with financial thorns. The citizens appeared indifferent to the annual shows, and each year the society came out with a deficit.

It was in the year 1909 that A. G. Harrison, then secretary of the board of trade, was appointed to its present position as manager of the association, and it was decided to go into the exhibition business on a large scale. The city had purchased 147 acres in the east end of the city for the purpose, and when after the fair in 1909, it was decided that new grounds were needed, the park property was turned over to the association. Eighty-seven acres were set aside for exhibition grounds, the balance for a recreation park, and both remained under the one management.

Present Grounds Opened. It was with the fair of 1910, the first to be held on the new grounds, that the new chapter in the history of the association commenced, and this spring by receiving financial autonomy from the city council, it assumed the status of a metropolitan organization.

Plans were accepted for laying out of the grounds last year, but it will not be until 1912 that these will be finally carried out, though the greater portion will have been completed before the Dominion fair in August of next year.

The present grounds cost the city $37,000, or about $175 an acre. They are valued today at a 1000 an acre.

Last year the citizens voted $170,000 for the purposes of the association. This year a total of $175,000 was voted, and up to the present time the money expended by the association amounts to a figure considerably over

A Straight Business Talk

Since engaging in business in May, 1910, as realty brokers and financial agents, it has been our constant aim to merit the confidence of the investing public. In order to realize this ambition we have, at all times, endeavored to give our best service and unbiased opinion both to vendor and purchaser, landlord and tenant, lender and borrower.

The measure of success which has rewarded our efforts to the present time assures us that methods of fair dealing and interest in our patrons are correct methods; and we are pleased to believe that the confidence placed in us by large investors from many parts of America and the Old World is indicative of a future of large commercial usefulness in the City of Edmonton.

After having laid the cornerstone of straightforwardness upon a foundation of stability and financial responsibility, we have established departments to meet every requirement of our line of business.

We propose to remain in the City of Edmonton; we have faith in its future and confidence that we will be needed; we solicit your patronage; we are in business to serve you; we invite your closest investigation—we are here to satisfy you with our references.

We submit below an outline of some departments in which we have been most active, and which have assumed very satisfactory proportions since we opened our doors for business.

Loans

We represent Loan Companies and are prepared to advance money on good security at lowest current rate of interest. We give the borrower courteous attention and prompt response to his requirements. We handle private funds for investment in safe enterprises. The service of our Loaning Department is at your disposal at all times.

Fire Insurance

Every wise business man insures his home, business block, and in fact, all of his possessions against such a possible contingency as fire. We will insure your buildings, stock, or household goods in some of the largest Companies that are now represented in the West, and, at all times, special attention will be given so that you will be continually protected. In business blocks we always endeavor to give you expert advice in order that your rate may be reduced to a minimum.

Phone No. 2666, state property you wish to have insured, and you will be protected immediately.

Rentals

This is the age of concentration, centralization, of specialists and efficiency; the investor, the financier buys, builds and provides for revenue, but he has neither the time nor inclination to attend to details of leasing, of wear and repair, the collection of rents and disbursement of running expenses. We have a Rental Department which is prepared to handle your property; some of the largest revenue bearing properties in the city leave their entire management to this department, while many small places of business and of residence are also handled herein.

We are not only in a position to save you time and money, to efficiently administer your rent-bearing property, but also to secure you desirable tenants, and keep your premises occupied and in order. If you are the owner of revenue-bearing property, whether you live in or out of the city, we can save you time and money in finding tenants, collecting rents, and looking after the maintenance of your estate. Our references will assure you of our reliability, our business methods of our promptness in rendering accounts. Make us your estate agents; we will make your interests ours.

Real Estate

Real Estate is a business wherein the broker must, at all times, study the interests both of the vendor and purchaser, and be able, at any time, to give advice regarding the transaction of a deal that will insure security to both parties concerned.

Investments in Real Estate have laid the foundations of a great many of the large fortunes that have been accumulated by parties who have had sufficient faith in a growing city to invest their savings, and, having invested, to stay by their own convictions. These fortunes have been made in Chicago, in Minneapolis, in Winnipeg and in all western cities which have been so favorably endowed by their location as to make them a natural centre for distribution. Edmonton enjoys the advantage of a location of this nature. The great wave of progress and prosperity has been passing westward, and that wave has reached the City of Edmonton. That same wave transformed Fort Dearborn into the present metropolis of Chicago; that wave is transforming the Fort Edmonton of a few years ago into the most prosperous and most talked-of city in the Dominion of Canada, destined to be the great metropolis of the northwest.

Who is there that will dispute the fact that Edmonton will have a population of 125,000 people in 1920 and who is there that will make the statement that Edmonton will discontinue to grow after reaching a population of 200,000? Bearing these facts in mind, why should you not reap a certain amount of benefit from the development which is inevitable? In the early days when one of the members of the Northern Investment Agency, Limited, arrived in Edmonton with Revillon Bros. (it might here be mentioned that Mr. Theodore Revillon is one of the firm of the Northern Investment Agency, Limited, at the present time) the city at that time was centred around the place now occupied by the Alberta Hotel. Norwood, Glenora, Inglewood and many other beautiful residential sections of today were then unheard of.

No one will dispute that this city has had a great development, nor that it has a great future. As the outcome of careful observation—although all parts of the city have been developing very rapidly, and that, with a reasonable exercise of judgment, it is hardly conceivable how an investor can go far astray by investing in any part of the city—we feel that in so far as residential property is concerned, the West End offers admirable opportunities for securing enhanced values. As an evidence of our faith in this regard, we have pleasure in announcing to our friends and the general public that we have reserved a particularly attractive subdivision located in Westgrove and known as Westgrove Park. We secured this on very favorable terms, which enable us to place these lots with our clients at prices far less than any other adjoining property, thereby creating what may be characterized as an assured opportunity for remunerative investment. Since it was first announced that these lots were available—some two weeks ago—the investing public, realising the unusual opportunity that was being offered them, and practically without any advertising on our part, purchased two-thirds of this property. Our prices on these lots range from $250 to $400; call at our office, make your selection before this opportunity passes.

Our faith in the splendid future of Edmonton as a great commercial centre impels us to believe that the shrewd investor in a large way must realize the possibilities in central property. To this end we have sought to become conversant with inside values, and to interest our clients in business sites that must yield a harvest of future profits. Our success in this respect is attested by the fact that some of the most valuable property sold in this city during the past twelve months has been sold by this Agency. Having members of our firm who are well-known in financial circles throughout the entire American continent and in Europe, we feel confident that, whether you wish to buy or sell, we are in a position to advise and to secure buyer and seller.

Veterans Of The Civil War Celebrate Anniversary of Famous Battle of Bull Run

Boys in Grey and Blue Who Fought at Manassas Foregather on Historic Battlefield—Genuine Spirit of Brotherhood Prevails in Celebration

(International Press Service.)

Manassas, Va., Aug. 19.—The blood-stained sward of Bull Run is again peopled with those who with bitter hatred and feverish anxiety awaited the break of dawn fifty years ago today to commence the first battle of the rebellion. But instead of mingled, curses and prayers; instead of the nervous tread of sentries; the fevered restlessness of foreboding; the rival camps of the blue and grey house men hoveled soldiers recalling incidents of days gone by and preparations for the rigors of the coming day of the Manassas National Jubilee to be held tomorrow on the semi-centennial anniversary of the bloody battle of Bull Run.

Elaborate preparations have been made for this unique gathering. The president of the United States, and the governor of Virginia will be present to deliver addresses, with commanders-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Confederate Veterans, and distinguished soldiers and statesmen from every part of the United States. The town is decked with confederate and federal flags, and the streets swarmed with visitors, bent on witnessing the most unique ceremony in the history of post-bellum reunions.

Martial Spirit Evident.

Everywhere the martial spirit is in evidence. Tolerant veterans, through sidewalks brilliant with the uniforms of officers and privates of the present day. The old Harry farm house, with its ash-riddled walls, is gay with bunting, and hundreds of visitors, both old and young, keep the caretaker busy with their questions, while old soldiers, the light of youth for a moment shining in their wrinkled faces, tell tales of daring deeds performed on Henry Hill.

It is here that the most impressive sight of the day will be witnessed. The time shattered remnants of the federal and confederate armies, at 12 tomorrow, will issue forth from camps pitched in the same positions occupied by the opposing armies fifty years ago, and slowly tread the blood-stained, bullet-punctured turf till they and their "children" with mutual hand clasps and well wishes instead of the singing bullets and wild curses that greeted their charges fifty years ago. At this ceremonial the veterans will participate of a love feast commemorating their reunion, and will be further regaled with an especially prepared series of motion pictures, showing stirring battle scenes and peaceful pictures of later days.

At 2 p. m. the veterans will return to this city, and at 4 forty-eight ladies, representing the states of the union, will clasp hands and sing the Manassas National Jubilee hymn, especially written for the occasion. At 4 the veterans will be addressed by President Taft and the governors of Virginia, and at 6 Manassas and surrounding country towns will open their doors to visitors and veterans alike.

POLICE UNEARTH COIN FACTORY

(International News Service.)

Baltimore, Aug. 10.—The police have discovered a counterfeit coin factory in a building belonging to a certain Valeriano Pastor. The factory contained machinery and tools of the most perfect description, and it has been turning out false money for many years. It will be remembered that during the war a few years ago of fifty-two vessels of the British navy, three sacks of false money were seized, and the crew, it being impossible for the paymasters to detect the difference between them and the legitimate coins.

LASTING EFFECT OF SAILORS' STRIKE

Steps Will Be Taken by Political Leaders to Prevent Return of Discard

(International News Service.)

London, Aug. 10.—A long time is bound to pass before the wounds inflicted by the sailors' and firemen's strike in England will heal, and the political leaders, as well as the press of England, will probably be given plenty of chances to curio a stupidity which closed their eyes to everything but the coronation and not then overlook the dreadful significance of the strike. That millions and millions of pounds were lost is really a matter of minor importance. England will soon get over the material losses, but what far worse is this: The easily won victory has made hundreds of thousands of English sailors and longshoremen see that they are a power which cannot be overlooked or neglected. Temporarily they have declared themselves satisfied, but in time they will raise more demands, perhaps such that the employers cannot possibly meet, and then will come the next strike, which will completely paralyze the trade of England and cause much misery and starvation as Great Britain has never before witnessed.

It would have been a fair wiser policy of the employers if they had avoided the recent tug-of-war, when they were not absolutely sure of their own superior strength. As it is, England never knows when another sailors' strike may come, a strike which, if it is carried to extremes here, may grow to become a national calamity, because followers under the absolute control which one finds in the German labor union.

INTREPID HUNTER MEETS HIS DOOM

Details of Gerald Langdon's Death Furnished by His Wife

(International News Service.)

London, Aug. 10.—Full details of the death of M. Gerald Langdon are given by the East African Standard which is printed at Mombassa, and has just reached England. M. Langdon was one of the most daring and experienced elephant hunters. He made a pig game shooting expedition with his wife into the wilds of the Belgian Congo, and it was there that he perished.

Mrs. Langdon was not with him on the fatal day, but was in camp some distance away, when news reached her through some natives that something terrible had happened to him. She instantly set out to his aid, accompanied only by natives, and reached him at the height of one of the fearful tropical storms common in the Congo. She found him lying in the bush in excruciating agony, without teeth or covering. It was extremely difficult for her to ascertain what had occurred, as he had only natives with him. But there story was that he was firing at a bull elephant, when he was charged from behind by a cow elephant which he did not see.

The animal gored him in his back and tossed him furiously. The tusks pierced his back and passed right through his body. It was in this plight that he was found. Mrs. Langdon, with heroic courage, rendered all the aid that was possible. Then followed a terrible forced march of twenty-four hours back to camp, the agonizing suspense of which was increased by the native bearers losing their way in the dark. Runners were sent on by the natives to obtain medical assistance, but on the third day, before further help could reach him, Mrs. Langdon died, and his body was taken to Nairobi and is now returning to Europe.

(International News Service.)

Langdon, a great cricketer, and shaken in health, made her way to Nairobi and is now returning to Europe.

BUSINESS FAILURE LEADS TO SUICIDE

(International News Service.)

Berlin, Aug. 10.—The well-known Berlin pianoforte factory, Carl Hille, has stopped payment. The liabilities are estimated at nearly $50,000. A recent failure, it now transpires, was connected with the present smash, and ten to fifteen more are expected as the result. Pauline Quandt, owner of a pianoforte business who had invested her entire fortune of $20,000 in Hille's concern, committed suicide yesterday. Hille, who has been for some years in great financial difficulties, put himself in the hands of extortionist money lenders, and this brought about the final catastrophe.

GRAVEYARD MIRACLE EXCITES WONDER

(International News Service.)

Paris, Aug. 10.—Great excitement prevails at Oran (Algeria), owing to an alleged miracle which occurs daily in the cemetery there. A few days ago the rumor spread that the figure of an angel surrounding one of the tombstones, had moved assuming a different attitude from that designed by the sculptor. Large crowds flocked to the graveyard the next day in the hope of seeing the figure move, and since then the cemetery has been the scene of their pilgrimages. Most of the people who visit the cemetery come away convinced that they have seen the angel actually move.

Reasons Why Edmonton Should Have Gravity Water Supply From Pigeon Lake

The Pigeon Lake scheme proposes to furnish Edmonton with clear, cold absolutely pure, fresh, soft water, direct from nature's finest Reservoir, the best in the world.

It means for this City: A reliable water supply; lower insurance rates on every dollar's worth of property in the city; more and better water at a smaller cost; a decreasing price with an increasing consumption; supply uncontaminated, free from germs or bacteria, a promoter of perfect health.

No machinery to break down and no filters to clog. The natural, easy, rational, sane system of water supply. Read what Engineer Galt, the best water expert in Canada has to say about this great scheme:

In compliance with your instructions, I have been carefully looking into the question of the availability of Pigeon Lake drainage area as a suitable source of water supply for your city and now beg herewith to report.

The area which is situated about 15 miles more or less to the south-west of Edmonton, comprises fully 100 square miles of catchment surface, 10 per cent. of which covers the Pigeon Lake.

Although my calculations of first on the basis of a total annual average precipitation of 18 inches, after allowing for losses due to absorption and evaporation, make it appear certain that a continuous flow of about 20,000,000 gallons per day could be got, I thought it best, in the interests of all concerned, to make a certainty, double, safe and sure, and therefore recommended, as you know, that a weir be constructed and the measurements of actual run-off tabulated and compiled.

These measurements have been utilized in formulating a curve plotted, which I herewith attach as fully illustrating and explaining better than I can do in words the whole situation in a nutshell.

You will note that the period of surplus run-off from Pigeon Lake extends approximately from April 1 to October 1, or six months in all, when it practically ceases and is dry for the other six months, or the balance of the year.

Like in Computing

We were rather late, unfortunately, in constructing the weir and beginning to take readings, as the surplus overflow had really commenced in the beginning of April, whereas our readings only started on May 3. Still, I have assumed an approximate curve for April rising from 0 to 30 millions daily flow line, so that the percentage of error, if any, must be very small when reckoned in the total.

The precipitation for the year from October, 1908, to September, 1909, at Edmonton was equivalent to 11 inches of rain, doubtless one-fourth of which was in the form of snow, thus showing that last season was considerably drier than what the average for 20 years shows, viz. 18 inches. But how it compares with the driest on record is hard to say. With such a large storage supply in the lake the fluctuations over a number of years, including a cycle of dry and wet periods, would not disturb the continuity of average supply, as it would make up in the wet period just what was lost in the dry one.

Average, Eighteen Millions, a Day

This variable plotted curve, as per diagram attached, which averages fully 15,000,000 gallons per day, for the year 1909, warrants the assumption that an average flow of 18 million gallons daily can be taken as a safe basis to go upon, or enough therefore for a district population of 200,000 people.

I take pleasure, therefore, in presenting this feature of available supply as a safe and proper foundation to go upon when considering and discussing the project from a practical engineering and financial standpoint.

The question of suitability of the water, from a sanitary standpoint, as to quality, is of first importance, but I relegate this to the provincial health authorities, who have in any case of report and pass upon it.

Good Water for Cities

Personally, I believe it will be found to be good water for general domestic purposes, and as it can be secured and kept as a forest reserve, its purity can be maintained and no contamination ever threaten it.

It is a long way off, of course, and the cost of first initial expenditure cannot well be less than $2,000,000. Taking 8 per cent. to cover interest, sinking fund and operating expenses, etc., the annual charges would be $160,000. This would mean using say, five million gallons of water daily, at a rate of nine cents per 1,000 gallons, to meet expenses.

Now, what are the conditions? Your city at present must be using about two million gallons daily, and it is not unreasonable to assume that, at the end of, say four years hence, which should easily cover the period of installation of such a system, the total consumption, including Starbuck, would in all likelihood, about reach this amount.

Undertaking Profitable

Above this amount, and as the years go on, the undertaking would be quite profitable, even at a considerably reduced rate for water; in fact, it would be a valuable investment for all time and well worth every dollar spent on it, even if it should ultimately run up to a total of $3,000,000 in making available the full supply for 200,000 people.

At the first go off, it would hardly, perhaps, be advisable to make the supply main large enough over its entire length to deliver the full supply, but no doubt it would be wise policy to make a long section of it, which would be under little pressure at the upper end, the full capacity leaving the balance to be duplicated in future years.

It must be understood from this report that I have not closely examined into an exact location for pipe line, also details of construction necessary in such an undertaking, because same would involve a considerable amount of time and money and that the object of this report is merely of a preliminary nature to establish the feasibility of the project from the engineering standpoint.

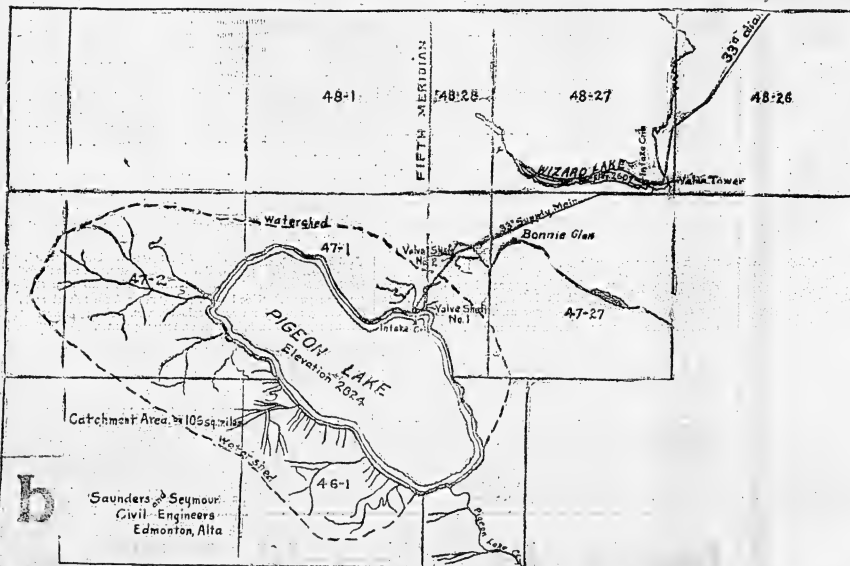

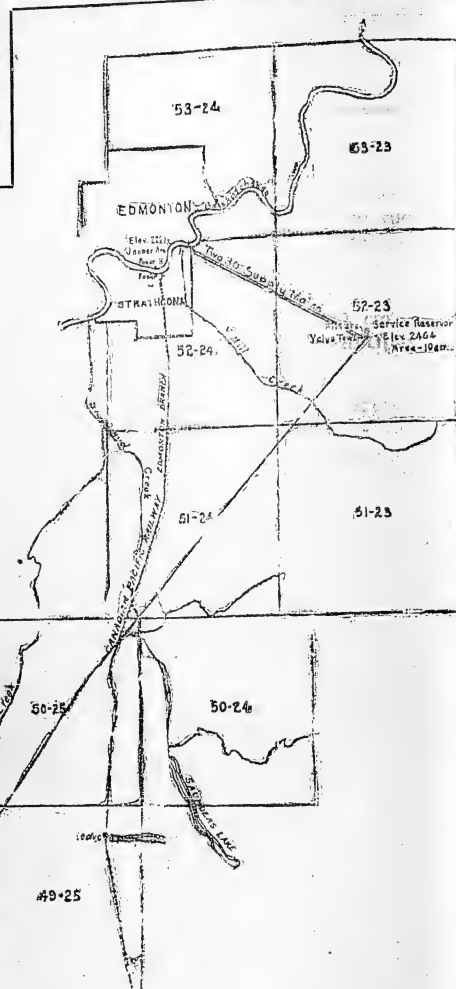

Supply Can Be Supplemented

There are other drainage lake districts to the west of Pigeon Lake which might be profitably utilized in the future to supplement Pigeon Lake, and the policy of the council seems a wise one in view of the great strategic and geographical importance of Edmonton, to continue making investigations into all possible sources of water supply, not only for domestic use but general power development in the interests of the people.

I think I have given your honorable body all the useful information necessary to consider the project from any standpoint, but if I have omitted anything, or further information is desired, I shall be only too pleased to respond on hearing from you at any time.

I have the honor to be Yours obediently,
JOHN GALT.

THIS is a proposition which will come before the Rate-payers in a New and Revised form which they cannot afford to reject.

If you are a public-spirited citizen you will look very carefully into this.

A Perfect Running MODEL showing the entire scheme in detail, will be exhibited in the Imperial Shoe Store window corner Second and Jasper on and after Friday, August 11th.

BERLINERS SPEND THEIR IDLE MOMENTS OUT DOORS

Although Residents of Great City Find Way to Devote Time in Open Air Recreations, and Demand Has Caused City to Teem with Outdoor Life

Is Good Feeder

An observant foreigner once remarked that the Berliners seem to be organized for reading and drinking. It must have formed the impression in summer time, for life in the Kaiser's capital during this season revolves conspicuously and unmistakably around the inner man. The devoted crowd to be seen where food and drink are dispensed. If you catch an acquaintance hurrying to an appointment it is almost certain that he is going to eat. SOCIETY WOULD REMODEL ATTIRE

(International News Service.)

Berlin, Aug. 12.—A "Men's Dress Reform Society" has been founded in Berlin, with the object of bringing masculine attire to a higher hygienic standard. The society professes against the "starched shirt front" of the starched shirt front, the cast-iron rule of black frock coats for weddings and funerals alike, and the general system of dress which involves the wearing of many ill-fitting garments, each overlapping the other.

The society is greatly in favor of knee-breeches for everyday wear, in place of conventional trousers, which, its members declare, require great skill in cutting and are a source of considerable trouble to the wearer. Stiff collars and cuffs are also taboo. The society recognizes, however, that the fact is going to be a hard one, particularly as the leaders of fashion—high officials, society men, and others—are creatures of convention and will not of their own accord so outside the beaten track. The first propaganda will, therefore, be made among men of independent standing—for instance, writers, artists, physicians and sportsmen. These clothes will be carried along by force of development, and will thus make the reform style of dress finally possible.

Among illustrated books of travel to be brought out by the Macmillan this autumn will be "Hilways and Hways of the Great Lakes," by Clifton Johnson.

COTTAGES BECOME THE MOST DESIRED

APARTMENT HOUSES BEING SUPPLIED BY SMALLER HOUSES IN LARGE GERMAN CITIES

(International News Service.)

Berlin, Aug. 12.—In its desire to overshadow any other city in Europe in rapid development, the city of Berlin has greatly overreached itself and home-owners and speculators who a year or two ago could not put up buildings fast enough are now bitterly complaining because they have to pay taxes on their new built houses, while they find it impossible to rent them. There are at present more than 55,000 flats standing empty in Berlin and its suburbs, according to an official report just issued. Of these flats $3,887 are in Berlin itself and over $1,000 of them consist of two rooms and a kitchen, intended for workmen's families. The workmen, however, are more and more adopting the American system of building small houses for themselves outside the city limits, and are encouraged to this by building societies, railroads and trading companies alike. If the movement continues to grow in a few years all the "winter houses," that is to say, tenements in rear of the palatial buildings that line the main streets of the city, and which are all vacant every year, will be empty and the well-to-do people will have to pay enormous rents to make up for the loss on the empty houses in their backyards.

The society is greatly in favor of knee-breeches for everyday wear, in place of conventional trousers, which, its members declare, require great skill in cutting and are a source of considerable trouble to the wearer. Stiff collars and cuffs are also taboo. PRESENTS TRAVELS BY PHOTO ALBUM

(International News Service.)

Berlin, Aug. 12.—"Memories of My Journey" to India—William, Crown Prince, is the title of an album of photographs just published in Berlin, depicting various scenes from the recent expedition of the German crown prince.

The volume of 72 photographs is elegantly printed and arranged, and bears its title on the outer cover in facsimile of the prince's handwriting.

Every one of the 72 photographs, with the exception, of course, of those on which he himself is shown, was taken personally by the royal traveler, and in his compilation of the work, the prince has taken the greatest care and trouble.

The photographs are so arranged as to give a complete review of the prince's travels, and clearly indicate what most interest the heir to the German throne during his sojourn in the British Indian empire.

A note on the flyleaf of the volume states that the proceeds of the sale will be devoted to the benefit of families of German soldiers, who lost their lives in German South West Africa.

Hardships Endured By Mail Carrier of North

Heralds Who Bring News of the Outside World to Settlers of the Farthest Hinterland Suffer Many Privations But Always Do Their Duty

Between Athabasca Landing and Fort Resolution, Great Slave Lake is a distance of some 1,200 miles by trail that must be covered in foot with dog teams three times both ways in winter with the mail. This trail country borders on Athabasca Landing and the mail team starts from here.

There are five men in the world who have an opportunity of communicating with nature like the mail runners of the north. And one of their number-of-fact existence from day to day on their long, perilous winter journeys, these hardy pedestrians are very unconscious of the opportunity. However, that may be, when they have to sleep at night after night beneath the canopy of heaven in weather sometimes at 50 degrees of more below zero.

Will Has Many Charms

The lure of the wild has certainly many charms. Many lives are lost every year for the want of a match, perhaps on these long winter journeys, "the wild does." Nature is sometimes very severe, and so are the winters of the north, though beautiful. Yet, severely have the men of nature arrived and rested from a distance of 1,200 miles covered in one long, lone month when they are delighted to begin their hard task over again.

Descendants of Braves

As most of these couriers are descendants of the good primitive Indians of the northland, who used to live by hunting and fishing, no doubt that accounts for their pleasure to travel on foot. Once the average Cree or Metis in this locality an axe to do a full day's work and he will be tired before evening, but put him on portage or drag him a flat boat against the stream, requiring twice the labor and this good man of simple life seems never to tire. This shows once more that love in our work lightens our burden. A Metis is never so happy as when he follows the occupation of his ancestors.

Does the open air, fresh bacon daily made, hammock on the trail, the absence of shelter and anxiety for weeks at a time agree with the health of this professional dog team driver? Well, look at him for an answer. Is he not the picture of courage and robust manhood? Only for the vicious "free-water" of the white man that suggests a cent specimen of physique he would be. To those who are afraid of outdoor air and plain living, look at this lone traveler for a lesson.

Fine Type of Mail Carrier

Mr. George Louit mail carrier to Fort Resolution, is a fine type of this class, and the arduous work of civilization they will meet him on the trail.

the more hospitable you will find him. If he, too, should meet a lonely pedestrian in the northern wilds what a contrast to that of the comfortable civilization at home.

But the mail carriers' books of nature are not the only ones that we study, which is open to him even when the snow and the stars are his only candle light is a very inspiring volume indeed. Does he not hear the wolves howling at night? Does he not find the footprints of the moose and caribou? Does he not surprise them in their hands? Does he not cross rivers and brooks on beaver dams? Does he not hear the owl hoot in the night? And what a man will say to himself when he has not a gun, especially when a silver or jet black fox will cross his path only these hardy pedestrians can tell. Yes, the mail runner of the north has an opportunity to commune with nature, and be a part in his dreams if not in printed books.

Look through your window at night when the frost is on the pane, and see the snow whirling outside. Perhaps your room is furnished in luxury, and you are using electric lights even in this new north. Do you not see a weird contrast of outdoors with the bright comfort of your home? Well, then, while you are reclining on your easy chair reading and your pink check, little del and freckled young men are playing around you, this man of nature, one hundred miles from the nearest shelter, is trying to kind a fire in the bush to weather which makes his coal collar a mass of ice. How true it is that life on earth is full of strange contrasts. But such is part of God's plans.

When the frying pan is soon sizzling with bacon and hammock, while the dogs asleep. In the calm of the evening the snowflakes are falling thick and fast, the faithful dogs are curled up beneath a thick mantle of white. How beautiful are the snow flakes as seen from the camp fire or by moonlight. The jack pine boughs bend gracefully with their load, but when the morning comes and that same snow drops on the neck of the tired voyager, and it may be a lone missionary, this beautiful snow does not feel so poetic as it looks.

This lonely man has now made his bed of boughs. The inner man has been satisfied. Perhaps a prairie chicken roasting over the fire was a part of his bill to fare. He complains of no headache from too close atmosphere. He dries his socks, he puts on dry ones. It is possible the misad-ary taught him to say this evening prayer. He looks up to heaven and sees the works of God. Does not the firmament and the immensity of space in a lone land remind him of a supreme being? If lifting up your minds to God in prayer, do not, the regions of the wild when life hangs on a thread by the severity of nature make us pray? Yes, this prayer by nature and by training has been said, and the Lord of all he surveys rolls himself in his blankets for a well-earned rest. The top cover of his bed does not exclude of lace; oh, no, frivalties of fashion play no part in the hard necessities of life.

Well, the waking hour comes long before daylight. There is more stretching of the frying pan, hot tea and fresh fried bannocks; the frozen dog harness must be studded to, the dogs are made ready, and sometimes the frozen mittens are not so nimble as the bare cold fingers to handle the ropes for stage.

The dog team is now ready and more with all accompaniments. And with the snapping of the whip and the familiar command "hitches," the dog team is speeding away towards the horizon.

Is it too much to say in conclusion that in twenty years hence this trail to Fort Resolution may be replaced by the railroad. It is pointing that way. And if this dream of dreams by night and by day from year to year in this vast unpopulated country bordering on Athabasca Landing could tell us of the home he is pointing the way to for the future generations as he has done for a century past what a volume of hopes could he lay open before the sanguine tiller of the soil and the builder of Christian homes.

ROYAL BATHERS CREATE SENSATION

WHILE TRAVELLING INCOGNITO GAIN SOUTHERNITY OF THE HANDSOME COUPLE

(International News Service.)
Shanghai, Aug. 10.—A tall, fair-haired, merry-eyed young man who will have been remembered here as the one hour forty minute bathers, together with his companion, had completed a fortnight's visit to this place.

During their two weeks' stay the pair became known familiarly to visitors as "the handsome couple," and they were full of their skylarking on the sand and how they had made friends with bare-legged children and with old bathers.

Amongst the latter were Mr. Jack Lowman, a hotel proprietor, and Messrs. Langdon, a bathhouse proprietor, and to each of whom the couple gave valuable presents. These consisted of gold badges encased with a royal monogram, and Shanghai framed that the Langmans and visitors were none other than the Prince and Princess Frederick of Germany, the Kaiser's second son and his wife.

Every day at 10.30 a.m. the Prince and Princess, who, of course, were incognito, left the hotel for the bathing, and for more than an hour and a half would spend in the sea.

Once the machine got stuck, and the effects of the bathing machine horse proved vain until the Prince literally put his shoulder to the wheel, and exerted a strength which provoked the fond admiration of a hostess who was bathing on, brought the machine out of the sand into which it had stuck.

Bangor, Aug. 10.—The Bashaw has received a letter from Mulei Hedi ordering the immediate dismissal of all British officers who may be professes of nations other than France. He has also promulgated an order nullifying that any officers who may authorize the sale of land without demonstrating that they do not belong to the Machine will be punished according to ancient custom by having their right hands amputated. The promulgation of this barbarous decree has caused great indignation here among the Europeans.

RAILWAY EMPLOYEE HURLED TO DEATH

While Bathing in the Frodoalunga is Carried Over Precipice by Rushing Torrent

(International News Service.)
Berne, Aug. 10.—Four employees of the federal railways were bathing in the Frodoalunga torrent, when a man named Morgenthaler was caught in a current and carried over a cascade, being hurled into space over the precipice called the Salto Morto (the Leap of Death), about 1,000 feet high. Ten years ago an Englishman met with a similar accident there.

Joe Tinker, hunting veteran ancestor of the Chicago Cubs and one of the bulwarks of the Chance defense. Tinker is the most consistent man in the Cub infield, both in guarding his position and in wielding the bludgeon. Not once in the last six years has he batted above .300 for an entire season, but on the other hand, not once has he fallen below .250. It seems about time that this veteran would crack, but little Joe shows no indications of fulfilling the custom of other old-timers. He is still in the hunt, and don't you forget it.

New Cure For Consumption Is Being Investigated

John Burns, President of Board of Trade of Great Britain, Asks that Medical Enquiry Be Held Into the Discovery of a Bradford Man

(By W. Hamilton Holmes)
London, Aug. 10.—A curious experiment in consumption cure is being made at a place near Bradford, where live bait is habitually bred from horseflesh for anglers. It is stated that the cases arising from the resultant disease are deadly enemies of the tuberculosis bacilli, and so remarkable have been the results on a group of patients suffering from consumption that Mr. John Burns has asked that a medical inquiry shall be held, and on these instructions from the President of the local government board, Dr. Kaye, the medical officer of health for the West Riding, and Dr. Jackson, the district officer of health, with Alderman Ford, chairman of the Health Committee, and other experts, will go as a visiting commission to the place of Mr. Burns.

Jerusalem Falls is the name of the small holding on which the strange business is carried on. It lies in a dip of the hills, between the hamlets of Thurton and Denholme, and hither during the last few days there has been an endless procession of visitors who have heard of this extraordinary new treatment for consumption.

Many Yorkshire doctors have come to Jerusalem Falls to see the patients, but so far, although admitting that the treatment shows good results, they will not pledge themselves to the influence of horseflesh. A highly favorable report has been given, however, by Mr. F. W. Matherham, the Bradford city analyst, who, at the request of Mr. Burns, had samples taken of the game. He reported after analyzing 100 cubic feet of these fumes that they appeared to be "moderately antiseptic but also germicidal."

Fumes Kill Bacilli
His report contained: "This confirms the opinion which I expressed as to the action of the fumes. These fumes evidently when inhaled cause in conjunction with tubercle bacilli, their vitality, or may even kill them, while, according to the investigations of other, these fumes do not injuriously affect the human organism."

Mr. Bryan states that a well-known Leeds man has offered to provide £50,000 for the foundation of a sanatorium for treatment by means of the fumes. If the report to the local government board proves favorable.

Building For The Year Will Pass Half-Million Mark

Alberta College and Many Other Important Public Buildings and Business Blocks Completed During the Year—More Permits Issued

Strathcona, Aug. 1.—When in time comes the history of the city of Strathcona, but shortly to be named South Edmonton, comes to be written, the many important contributions to the health and metropolitan aspect of the city which have been effected by the building operations of the year 1911 will be given peculiar prominence. While the actual total for this year will show a substantial increase as compared with 1910, it is rather the character of the educational buildings which will be completed this year, and of the public buildings which are to be undertaken this fall, if not actually brought to completion, that will call for especial comment.

Present indications are that the year's building total will pass the half-million mark by a considerable margin. While the season has been an active one to date, some of the largest undertakings are yet to be carried out, and the fall will find the contractor busier than they have been for years past.

Building Permits to Date.
Up to June 30, the total value of building permits issued in Strathcona was $211,883, but this did not take into account many of the large structures which are to be completed during the year. It included the new postoffice, now being erected on Whyte avenue, and a new school building, now under construction on the corner of First street east and Third avenue north, which the Dominion government has agreed to construct at $300,000. These two buildings will form the contribution of the Dominion government to the building total of the year. The postoffice will be one of the most imposing of the city's new buildings, and in conjunction with the numerous other substantial structures which are being erected on this avenue, will add much to the metropolitan aspect of the city. The building will be of brick with 75 small stone finishing. It will be three stories in height and will have a frontage of 56 feet 9 inches on Whyte avenue and extend back a distance of 75 feet.

New Hospital.
This fall also a start will be made on the new hospital, to be erected near the university grounds, which is now under construction at a cost of considerably over $100,000. Plans for this building

AGGRESSIVE BOARD OF TRADE HAS CONTRIBUTED TO THE UPBUILDING OF CITY

Publicity Campaign of the Past Few Years Has Been Productive of Satisfactory Results—Board Joins Development League

Strathcona, Aug. 1.—Year by year the work of the Strathcona board of trade is growing in importance. The growth is keeping pace with the development of the city. As the city becomes larger and more important, and those of its business men broaden out, a natural consequence is an increase in the duties of the board of trade, and those who are looking after those interests, namely, the board of trade. Last year the Strathcona board of trade was given by the city council an initial grant of $2,000 to cover the expenses of its work. This year the board was increased by a supplementary grant of $250 to cover unforeseen expenses. This year the initial grant was $3,000. It is being expended in a general campaign to advertise the advantages of the city from the point of view of all desirable residents.

Early in the year, the Strathcona board of trade cast its lot with the Central Alberta Development League, pledging itself to the contribution of $1,500 toward the expenses of the league. As a result of this move the board will be enabled to have its exhibits, the board is carrying on as extensive publicity campaign as ever.

Publicity Campaign.
The publicity campaign inaugurated in the spring with the publication of 5,000 copies of an eight-page folder, descriptive of Strathcona and the surrounding district. As the same time a large number of return postcards were issued, which have brought many enquiries to the board of trade headquarters regarding various features of the city's growth and the agricultural advantages of the district. These have been followed up with more literature.

About the middle of June another large pamphlet of 28 pages was issued by the board of trade secretary. It was a thousand copies of this booklet have been circulated.

While an extensive publicity campaign has been the main work undertaken by the board of trade, it has been active on other lines. The board of trade city council in appointing a committee to consider the matter of annexation with Edmonton was unanimously endorsed by that body and its members have done everything in their power to further the work of the committee. Two of the members of the

STRATHONA'S ASSETS

According to the estimate prepared by Secretary-Treasurer Fox, Strathcona's assets are $307,839.11. This figure, however, is a somewhat misleading one, as it arrives at the estimate the numerous assets owned by the city were taken at their original cost, which was in the majority of instances but a small percentage of the value of the property today.

SOME FARMERS ARE PROSPEROUS

Districts Tributary to University City Will Profit by Bountiful Harvest

Strathcona, Aug. 1.—The possibilities of the agricultural districts tributary to Strathcona are being demonstrated more and more each year as each successive harvest is completed, and the products of the fertile farms commence to pour into the market in the shape of great loads of wheat and other grain, and drives of fat cattle, sheep and swine.

But this season the Strathcona district promises to excel itself, extra-early in the shape of great loads of wheat and other grain, and drives of fat cattle, sheep and swine.

Among residential and office buildings, the season has been an active one, both in the business and residential districts. Whyte avenue has been the scene of greatest activity, and here a considerable number of new business blocks and other substantial structures have been erected.

STORES AND OFFICE BUILDINGS

R. A. Hurlbert is erecting a $20,000 store and office building on the south side of the avenue, between Main and First street east. On lot 14, block 41, while on this avenue a $10,000 store building is being put up by B. Morrison. The street car station, for the purposes of a general grocery business, The Commercial hotel is being considerably enlarged. The sum of $10,000 being expended by the proprietor, S. Swank, upon the improvements.

Whyte avenue buildings, now in conjunction with the numerous other substantial structures which are being erected on this avenue, will add much to the metropolitan aspect of the city. The building will be of brick with 75 small stone finishing. It will be three stories in height and will have a frontage of 56 feet 9 inches on Whyte avenue and extend back a distance of 75 feet.

ASSESSMENT UNDER SEVEN MILLION

Tax Rate Has Been Lowered Continuously During Past Few Years

Strathcona, Aug. 1.—Three forms of assessment were recognized under the Strathcona system, which in this respect identical with that of the city of Edmonton. The most important is real property, the second, business, and the third, personal property. The city of Strathcona has consistently reduced the business of floor space tax, until today it is as low as the taxation of land, a very insignificant source of revenue. This year the land assessment is $7,151,330, and the business assessment $1,000,000. Property exempted from taxation is assessed at $60,000, bringing the total assessed for the city to $7,151,330. Last year Strathcona realized from municipal taxes a total of $1,000,000.

Tax Rate Decreased

The Strathcona tax rate has been decreased at the rate of two mills per annum for the past three years. In 1909, the rate stood at 20 mills, in 1910, it was 18 mills, and in 1911, it is 16 mills. The rate for the year 1911 is 16 mills, for the year 1910 it was 18 mills, and for the year 1909 it was 20 mills. RAILWAY FACILITIES OF CITY ARE UNSURPASSED

Great Increase in Passenger and Freight Traffic Has Necessitated Many Improvements in the Train Service This Season

Strathcona, Aug. 1.—Although from the early days of the town until the present time, Strathcona has been served by but one direct line of railway, the lines that have been made with in the past few years in the matter of improving the railway service into the city have been truly remarkable. As recently as 1907 Strathcona's train service consisted of but two daily passenger trains, one arriving and one departing. At present eight daily passenger trains arrive and depart over the line, and it is probable that within the near future the number will be increased to ten.

Until quite recently improvements in Strathcona's railway service were confined to the line to Calgary. The line to Calgary was improved by the construction of a new bridge over the river, and the line to Edmonton was improved by the construction of a new bridge over the river, and the line to Edmonton was improved by the construction of a new bridge over the river.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS ARE BEING EXTENSIVE
The city has profited in many ways by the gradual increase of the railway traffic to the south and east. As each new line was opened, the city has been able to add to the equipment at the terminals and to the number of men employed in the service. This increase in the number of men employed in the service of the railway has been a great benefit to the city, as it has provided a large number of jobs for the unemployed.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS ARE BEING EXTENSIVE

Strathcona, Aug. 1.—Both in the nature and extent of the local improvements, the city of Strathcona is well known, a year in which a construction programme has been carried out on a scale of improvements calculated not only to meet the city's present needs, but also to provide for the future. The city's present needs are being met by the construction of a new bridge over the river, and the city's future needs are being met by the construction of a new bridge over the river.

School Board Carries a Very Progressive Policy

Concession in Strathcona Schools Necessitates the Erection of New Buildings—Improved Facilities Will Soon Be Available

Strathcona, Aug. 1.—The present year will witness a marked advance in educational work in Strathcona in the matter of an increase in the number of pupils in attendance at the schools, the facilities to accommodate them and the number of teachers employed. Last year a new two-story four-roomed brick school building was opened in the east end of the city to take care of the school children in the district east of Mill Creek. It will probably be necessary to put a third teacher in this school at the opening of the fall term. Last year only two rooms of this building were occupied. When the school term opened in June there were about 100 pupils in attendance there. The school is filling up rapidly as the district becomes more settled. It is expected that within the next few years the building will prove inadequate to meet the demands of that section of the city for school accommodation.

Close to the heart of the city the congestion in the premises of the school building is being relieved by the erection of a temporary school building at a cost of $5,000 on a full acre of land purchased last year in the fringe estate. This building will be ready for occupation with the opening of the school term. The school board has no longer to be necessary to build a new school building. The school board has no longer to be necessary to build a new school building.

When classes are started in this building it will no longer be necessary to have the school system in the school building. The school board has no longer to be necessary to build a new school building. The school board has no longer to be necessary to build a new school building.

Increased Number of Pupils

The increase in the number of pupils in the schools of Strathcona will make it necessary to increase the teaching staff by the hiring of at least three new teachers. The school board has no longer to be necessary to build a new school building. The school board has no longer to be necessary to build a new school building.

MODEL PRISON WAS FAR TOO EXPENSIVE

(Globe Cable Service.)
Pekin, Aug. 12.—There has been a model prison in Wuchang, but it has turned out to be far too expensive. It was lighted throughout with electricity, and the food given to the prisoners was better than what they got at home, so that a great many became permanent residents. So it has been resolved to reduce the expenditure to a considerable sum monthly, to remove the electric light, and to withdraw a number of the inmates. Five food each prisoner will in future eat two bowls of coarse rice, and will also provide his own clothes. This disapproves a model prison, and the scheme which it superseded is resolved in its stead.

STRAY PROJECTILE CAUSES CONFUSION

Shell Supposed to Have Come From Vickers Guns and Maxims' Works.

(Globe Cable Service.)
London, Aug. 12.—A stray bullet, having landed at Bradford the other morning, which created great consternation in the district.

At 10.30, a number of women were working in a field in Trevelyan, which leads direct to Wilmington Heath. A mile to the west from where the women were employed is a black wood of high trees. Suddenly they heard a loud, unusual noise, "like a fast train," said one of them, coming from the direction of the wood. They looked up and saw a small dark object coming towards them high over the tree tops. It approached rapidly, growing larger and larger, the noise at the same time increasing in volume till it gave out a shrill sound that grazed and terrified them.

The object crossed the mile in a few seconds, and passed directly over their heads at a height of 10 feet. Then it suddenly dropped down almost at a right angle, and sank to earth in an adjoining field.

A man who was working in a sand pit there saw its approach, and clambered out of the pit to find to see it strike the ground, rising a great cloud of earth. The man ran up to the spot, and recognized that the object, which was still warm, was a dummy or unexploded shell, with the fuse protruding from the end of it. The opinion locally is that the missile came from Swanton, which lies about 1½ miles behind the wood over which it first appeared, and where Messrs. Vickers, Ltd., the ordnance manufacturers, have built for practice. The theory is that they were trying a particularly "active" gun on the range, and that owing to a slight error, the dummy was misjudged.

AMUR RAILWAY IS BUILT BY CONVICTS

LABOR DIFFICULTIES ENCOUNTERED IN CONSTRUCTION OF LINE

(Globe Cable Service.)
St. Petersburg, Aug. 12.—The Amur railway, the only constructed under difficulties—difficulties of climate, difficulties of soil, and, above all, labor difficulties. Most of the workmen are convicts. They appear to have given satisfaction on the central and western sections, but in other places the state of things that exists, and has been witnessed by ex-Siberian (Dobrovol'ski), is almost incredible.

It is hardly, for example, the work is directed by the third prison board, which has no knowledge of the place, the people, and the soil. It is full of drastic measures against the men. If a convict is disobedient, the officer, in command simply orders the revolver in the fellow's face. Prisoners were occasionally taken to work. M. Dobrovol'ski says, "being very hard at work, although they were suffering from scurvy in an advanced degree. The food is very bad, and the work is very hard, and the men are very tired." The prisoners in which the men or soldiers there, are considered to be very hard, and the work is very hard, and the men are very tired.

GOLD IS FOUND IN BONNIE SCOTLAND

KLONDIKE EXPERT IDENTIFIED THE REAL THING IN KILDOON CAMP

(Globe Cable Service.)
Glasgow, Aug. 12.—A tiny leaf of gold glittered in the sunshine of Kildoon Camp when the sluice boxes in the Duke of Sutherland's experimental sluicing camp were opened for the first time.

Gold, pure and unmistakable, and of the quality, was there. But Mr. Wilmott, the Klondike expert, who is in charge of the operations, was not able to give his official report on the result until it has been submitted to the duke.

"You can say that I obtained a good sample of gold," said Mr. Wilmott, after the "wash-up," which he himself carried out most carefully.

"All I can say is that if we got the same results from a claim we were prospecting in the Klondike we should regard it as hopeful, and should continue operations there."

AUSTRIAN PEASANTS SUPERSTITIOUS

DELIVER DOCTORS HAVE THE RIGHT TO KILL TWO PATIENTS EVERY YEAR

(Globe Cable Service.)
Vienna, Aug. 12.—A suit for libel brought by an apothecary in Palau, Syria, against a young peasant, reveals an extraordinary superstition prevalent among the apothecaries and doctors. They believe that apothecaries and doctors have the right to kill at least one man and one woman every year in order to make medicines out of their bodies.

An accidental movement of the apothecary at Palau, Herr Kobermayer, when giving medicine to a boy named Putz, led the latter to believe he was going to be killed. He ran away with such a great fright that he fell ill. The inhabitants believed his story, and boycotted the apothecary, who was at length compelled to prosecute. Putz was sentenced to fourteen days' imprisonment, but his parents, who spread the story, were acquitted on the ground that they had acted in good faith.

TO EFFECT REFORM IN MALE ATTIRE

Scotch Society Will Seek to Eliminate Unnecessary Folds and Excesses in Men's Clothing

(Globe Cable Service.)
Berlin, Aug. 12.—A "Men's Dress Reform Society" has been formed in Berlin, with the object of bringing masculine attire to a higher hygienic standard. The society's protests against the "air-light" and "air-light" of the starched shirtfront, the cashmere robe of black frock-coats for weddings and funerals, and the general system of dress which involves the wearing of many light-colored garments, each overlying the other. The society is greatly in favor of knee-length frock coats, and of a more practical, and less expensive, style of dress.

The society recognizes, however, that the rights going to be a hard one particularly as the leaders of fashion—light-colored, society men, and others—are creatures of convention, and will not of their own accord go outside the beaten track. The first propaganda will, therefore, be made among men of independent standing—for instance, writers, artists, physicians and sportsmen. These circles will be carried along by the force of developments, and will thus make the reform style of dress society possible.

RUMOR DENIED BY RUSSIAN MINISTER

M. KOKOVITSEV Says Report of Large German Loan is Incorrect

(Globe Cable Service.)
Berlin, Aug. 12.—With reference to rumors circulating during the last two days in Berlin and Paris to the effect that the Russian government had opened negotiations with a leading group of German financiers for a loan of $100,000,000, the St. Petersburg correspondent of the "Magdeburger Zeitung" telegraphs to his journal that M. Kokovitssev, the Russian minister of finance, denies the truth of such rumors, and that the only negotiations now in progress are for a private railway loan under state guarantee.

On the other hand, it is learned from an entirely trustworthy source here that negotiations are actually proceeding not for a loan of $100,000,000, but for a first installment of a loan of $300,000,000, which will probably be followed by other installments from the same source. The term "private railway loan" is used, however, to disguise the fact that the Russian government itself is in sudden need.

VALUABLE ASSETS OF SISTER CITY

What Strathcona Has to Show for Her Civic Debt—Many Improvements

Strathcona, Aug. 12.—Apart from the general local improvements and the public utilities, here are a few of the properties which Strathcona has to show for her municipal debt. Five halls, land and buildings, 926,223.50, with an additional $5,500 voted this year for new fire halls and equipment; city hall, $21,776, with $2,500 additional spent on improvements this year; Mill creek viaduct, $35,000; market land, building and seales, $14,875; parks, $56,000, exclusive of parks donated by Dr. A. C. Rutherford, assessed at $9,000, the Alameda park property, $5,000, and the Athletic park purchased this year at a cost of $27,387. At the end of last year the sum of $15,000 was invested in the city hospital. This has been increased this year by the issue of debentures amounting to $25,000 for the erection of the new hospital.

Appropos the parks mentioned in the above statistics, it is worthy of note that Strathcona now possesses 63 acres of land, and devotes exclusively to park purposes. Of this, ten acres were donated by Dr. Rutherford, 8 acres by Mr. Alameda, while the Riverside park comprises 22 acres and the Athletic park, 25.

In public utilities Strathcona's investment has increased from $168,000 in 1907 to $215,565 in 1911, the city having built up during that period a waterworks system which is now on a paying basis, and an electric light and power system which gave a surplus at the end of December, 1910, of $123,671, showing that at this stage in the history of municipal ownership in the University City, considering the subject entirely from the point of view of the commercial pros and cons, the results have more than justified the advocates of the principle. For, while profits during the initial stages of an enterprise of this kind are not expected by private corporations operating under a franchise, the public utility itself becomes of immense value as soon as the profit-making stage is reached.

Addition to Power House.
This year debentures have been issued by the municipality for the sum of $265,000 for power house extension and machinery, and improvements of the electric lighting distribution system.

Waterworks Revenue.
The waterworks revenue for 1910 was $21,752, and the revenue of the electric light and power department, $35,703.37. From 1907 to 1909 the water consumers have increased from 1,000 to over 200 in 1910. 1911, while there are in the city today in the neighborhood of 700 consumers of the electric light department. A very satisfactory day has been built up by the department.

At the present time the capacity of the electric light and power plant is 270 kilowatts, and this is being increased by the installation this year of an additional 400 kilowatt unit, at a cost for machinery alone of $60,000.

its form of municipal taxation, in its strict adherence to the principles of municipal ownership of public utilities, the southern city has adopted a policy which is very wisely adapted to the simplification in a measure the powers of municipalities.

Strathcona's Civic Debt.
Strathcona's civic debt stands at the present time at a total of $1,200,000, of which $115,000 is investment in public utilities, and $885,000 chargeable to general debentures. The present amount has seen a greater increase in indebtedness than any previous year in the city's history. This has been increased by the issue of new debentures totalling $100,000, as the city's debt as it stood at December 31, 1910, of $885,000. Looking back over the longer period which has elapsed since Strathcona was incorporated in 1907, it will be seen that the city's debt has increased by the issue of debentures and investments which have been carried out during the five years, are in the order of $1,200,000.

At the end of 1907, when the city was incorporated, the city's debt was $121,700. Today's total is six times as large, representing a rate of increase of over 100 per cent. per annum. Local improvement debentures issued to date total $25,257.

Growth of the City.
That the growth of the city in population and wealth has been commensurate with these phenomenal increases in municipal debt will appear from an examination of the assessment figures of the city for the year of incorporation, for 1910, and for the present year. In 1907 the rateable property of the city was assessed at $2,164,291; in 1910 the figure was $5,171,011; while this year the assessment as revised stands at $7,231,330 of rateable property. The foregoing portion of the city has been unimpaired, and, in fact, only about 10 per cent. of the value which the city is empowered to levy for the purpose of raising the rate of debentures.

The sinking fund stand at $30,310.24, $10,200.00 in respect to general and $20,110.24 to special debt service debentures.

Issues of Debentures.
The charter provides that the city may issue debentures for general purposes, up to a total of 20 per cent. of the assessed value of the city. The issues are unaffected by the issues in respect to utilities, which are revenue raising, or in respect to the sewerage system. Of the total indebtedness of the city, $1,200,000 is invested in the electric light and power plant and waterworks, and $284,110 in sewers, so that the city is actually secured by the assessment of $7,231,330 in $1,200,000, a balance of $6,031,330 being left. This sum might be borrowed by the municipality, before the charge in the charter which is intended to safeguard municipalities against extravagance and unwise finance, would come into operation.

The knowledge that the finances of Strathcona are on a solid foundation, that the city has pursued a progressive policy, and that its credit ranks high upon the money markets of the world, are facts which a brief analysis of the civic statistics of the past few years most convincingly demonstrate. CHINA MAKING STENOIOUS EFFORTS AGAINST OPIUM

Nation Realizes That Future Depends Upon Rescue of Teeming Millions from the Blight of the Opium Habit, Which Has Been as a Fetter Upon the National Growth and Development and Kept People on the Brink of Starvation

(International News Service) Wash., Aug. 13.—Papers recently filed with the Department of State by Minister Calhoun at Peking along with a great mass of diplomatic correspondence, indicate that China is making strenuous efforts to wipe out the traffic in opium. China has been waging this war for years in the face of discouragement and temporary financial loss. It is estimated that the acreage devoted to opium revenue to the government will be about $20,000,000. Many government officials, it is said, are determined to the use of opium for many years, save up their lives in order to assist the government to further its campaign for the suppression of the traffic.

China Awakens to Her Danger

But China has begun to realize that her future rests largely upon her ability to rescue her teeming millions from the blight of the opium habit. She is trying to shake off the habit which has bound her to her past, which has kept her people hovering on the brink of starvation, has diminished their energy, banished national ambition, and put her behind Japan in the march of modern progress. Owing to the vast tracts of Chinese soil which were given up exclusively to opium, the Chinese have been without breadstuffs and have suffered depopulating famines when the available food supply was lessened by any reason. The vitality of her people has been diminished, not alone by the opium habit, but also by her poverty, and, in addition, even in normal years. It is this condition which the Chinese government is struggling to overcome.

Against the immediate loss in revenue from the destruction of the poppy fields, the government is struggling, says Minister Calhoun, the ultimate gain to the nation which must come from planting the soil in foodstuffs, restoring its population to a normal degree of efficiency.

Will Mean an Immense Financial Gain

One of the State Department files on the subject says: "China has estimated the result of her abolishing the trade somewhat, as follows: Gain to the people of a total annual expenditure in cash for opium of $15,000,000, which yield from land given up to the poppy when planted in wheat, cotton, and other crops will be at least $21,025,000.

600, which, added to the expenditure for opium, means an annual saving of $16,025,000. The average revenue to the government from opium is about twenty-eight cents a day. The lowest estimate for loss of revenue capacity from the use of opium is seven cents a day. As there are something like 25,000,000 male opium smokers this will mean an annual saving of $17,750,000.

Added to this financial summing up is the desire on the part of the leading Chinese to develop according to the vast possibilities of this remarkable country. With opium no longer supporting the lives of her people and clamoring for their pauper earnings, China feels that she might have a chance to develop as Japan has developed.

China, Mr. Calhoun says, has done remarkably well, during her three years probationary period, which ended December 31, 1910. The agents of reform were met in the remote districts with actual violence, with hoses and bayonets, and the law had to be enforced with blood. But into a thousand valleys and hamlets, into the most remote provinces, and even to the defiles of mountains, the agents of progress have made their way, with results that speak well for China's future.

Cultivation of Poppy Declines

Many of the twenty-one provinces have ceased poppy cultivation entirely and in all the percentage of decrease is large. In many places other crops have taken the place of the poppy, and this will be the case over the entire area, a mercurial substitution for the security of food crops in China has made the price of food almost beyond the reach of the miserably poor, while the adjustment of the industrial relations, including rents, leases, credits and mortgages, has been revolutionized by the destruction of the poppy. The officials claim that the reduction in cultivation has reached 60 per cent, and that the individuals claim 90. The British consuls acknowledge from 25 to 40 per cent, and the American consuls from 50 to 60 per cent. It is unfortunate, the correspondence says, that China, owing to her previous loss of a single legation. St. Peters and the Reformation. But both under Emperors and under Pope Rome ascribed the intensity and romance of nationality to the story of her world-wide supremacy. For more than two thousand years she was never a city, like Athens or Florence, resting her fame upon the achievements of her own people. Throughout the splendor of its Renaissance, as of the empire, she leveled contributions upon the world, and aroused its jealousy, so that the building of St. Peters was an immediate cause of the Reformation and the loss of half her spiritual empire.

Rome Renews Her Youth No doubt the modern Romans remember this. Rome is alive now, not as a world-capital, but as the capital of United Italy. She is what she was before the Romans conquered Carthage and what she had never been since until Victor Emmanuel entered her gates. That is the fact which has made the monument, towering over all the monuments of the past, is meant to symbolize. Without that past Rome could never have been what she now is; but she will not live only in a past which she has outgrown. Foreigners respect these pretensions of the modern Romans, and meet at their attempts to express their present in art.

No doubt the monument to Victor Emmanuel has many faults, but it has this great merit, that it is alive, and in spite of some triviality and vagueness of modern detail does express the spirit and pride of modern Rome. It proclaims to the world that Rome is once more a city of free citizens and mistress of her own destinies. But she is also the capital of United Italy, and Italy has no long been united that even now, after forty years of union, this fold position is a source of some difficulties.

A City Tells The modern Romans, when they stand before the monuments, think of themselves as a city-state, as other Italian cities think of Rome as their rival. Rome also regards herself as the capital of her state and expects them to contribute to her own prosperity. Hence there are jealousies often expressed with some bitterness. But these, no doubt, will gradually pass away, and Rome will realize that she cannot be both a capital and a city-state; and the other cities will lose their sense of her unfair rivalry. The intense life of Italy in the past rose out of the conflict and competition of independent cities. The problem of modern Italy is to preserve or revive that intensity without conflict, to combine a local with a national patriotism. The very name of the monument, of Victor Emmanuel shows that it belongs to Italy and not merely to Rome, and that the Romans take an Italian, not a Roman pride in it.

Will Limit Importation Within a year a great world-wide opium conference will be held abroad at which representatives from the various exporting and importing countries will be present. Measures will be passed at the conference limiting the amount of opium imported into any country by opium-producing countries. This, taken together with the strenuous steps of the Chinese government, seems to insure a lessening of the traffic and an elimination of many of the "big game" in this country and other foreign countries where Chinese have migrated to any considerable extent.

Old Roman Law

The later emperors made laws against the destruction of old buildings and the use of their materials in the building of new ones. They thundered against the impety and voracity of the plunderers of the past, and their thunder against the impety and voracity of the modern Romans that it must be remembered that, if Rome in the fall of ancient civilization had remained unspoiled by its past, it would never have been the Eternal City and unique among all the cities of the world, through the changes and catastrophes of history, it has, out of its primacy in the past, developed some kind of primacy in the present, and expressed them all in the monuments of successive ages. POPE HAS PROVED HIMSELF TO BE A PRACTICAL MAN

Many Fast Days Are Being Eliminated Because People Are Too Busy and Have Not the Time to Observe Them—Likewise Considerable Attention Is Being Paid to Politics—Many Old-Time Customs Not Observed

(International News Service) Rome, Aug. 13.—Eight years have elapsed since the death of Leo XIII., and in nothing has the pontificate of his successor differed more markedly from that which terminated on July 20, 1903, than in the partial attitude toward Italian politics. Leo XIII. maintained to the end the non-expedit, which enjoined upon all Italian Catholics the desirability of abstention from the polls at political elections. Now, however, the "Observatore Romano," the official organ of the Vatican, urges the Roman Catholic organizers to work hard during this summer recess, especially in the south of Italy, in order to prepare the illiterate voters, who will be solicited by hundreds of thousands by the suffrage, when Senator Giolitti's reform bill passes, for their new functions.

Term "Liberal" Loses Its Meaning

It is also learned from a private source, that the Pope has taken great care in all recent appointments to ecclesiastical vacancies in the southern provinces; that good organizers and administrators should be selected. There is all probability the Cardinals and the Societies—the former in the south, the latter in the industrial north—will be the chief organizers by the pope's "lean in the dark." Indeed, it has been suggested that that attitude toward the vote will result in either of these two extreme parties. Should the Catholics do well, then Senator Giolitti would make an alliance with them against Socialism; as he did at the last two general elections; should the Societies, his present allies, gain the preponderance among the new voters, then he would remain faithful to democratic principles. In either case, the losses would be moderate; however, indeed, the term "liberal" is becoming in Italy a word of scorn, and is being used by the Catholics to describe those who accept as a political principle the proposal of universal suffrage. The acceptance of this is a new thing.

To Decrease Number of Fast Days

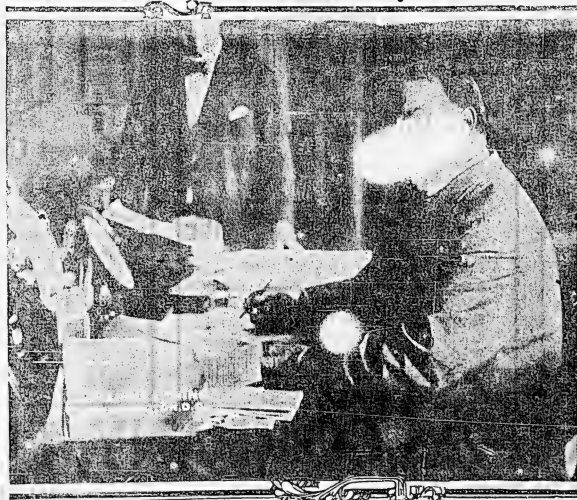

The Pope has tested a very important main principle, in which he orders the diminution of fast days. The object of Pope X., as he is expressly said, is a very practical one. Modern life, so runs the papal document, is becoming daily more expensive; consequently those who have to work for their living find the constant interruptions caused by the too numerous saints' days a hindrance to their labor. However, the rapidity of modern travel is a hindrance to the fast days, in some of which they find themselves handicapped. If they are Roman Catholics, for the fast days competitors do not observe so many fast days. Accordingly, the pope orders that the feasts of St. Joseph (March 19), of the Nativity of St. John Baptist (June 24), and of Corpus Domini (Thursday after Trinity Sunday), should hereafter be celebrated on the following Sunday. Should, however, the first mentioned fall upon a Sunday, they are to be celebrated on that day. It is further left to the discretion of the Ordinary to transfer the celebration of the feasts of the patron saints to the Sunday following the day in which they fall. The express admission of the desirability, to meet what the Papal Latin describes as the "multitudo temporum et civis societatis conditiones" is very noteworthy, because it shows that Pope X. is a practical man who is well aware, as an ex-patriate priest could scarcely fail to be, of the changed state of the world today.

Old Roman Law

The later emperors made laws against the destruction of old buildings and the use of their materials in the building of new ones. They thundered against the impety and voracity of the plunderers of the past, and their thunder against the impety and voracity of the modern Romans that it must be remembered that, if Rome in the fall of ancient civilization had remained unspoiled by its past, it would never have been the Eternal City and unique among all the cities of the world, through the changes and catastrophes of history, it has, out of its primacy in the past, developed some kind of primacy in the present, and expressed them all in the monuments of successive ages. When only a few years ago Edmonton and Strathcona had but a tri-weekly passenger service over a single line of railway and was nearly 200 miles away from a main line there are now no less than 22 passenger trains passing daily in and out of the railway stations of the Twin Cities. The change from the infrequent communication with the outside world that was in vogue in the early days has been brought into effect very gradually and there are few residents who realize today just how well off Edmonton and Strathcona really are in the matter of mail and passenger service.

Following is a summary of the Twin City passenger service as brought into effect with the summer schedule of the three roads:

LOSES ONE LOT POLICE CHIEF FINDS ANOTHER

Will Buy Lot 37, Block 10, H. B. R., on Eleventh Street for the Sum of $2,000

Because the lot he desired to purchase for a police station was sold before he could gain the bargain, the chief of police has selected another location and has been authorized to buy lot 37 in block 10, H. B. R. located on Eleventh street south of Jasper. The purchase price is $2,000. This is considered a very fair bargain. The police chief says he prefers the site to the one he got left on. The city commissioners have authorized the chief to make the purchase. The funds are from an appropriation made at the first of the year for the purchase of various sites for police stations.

STARTS RESECTION OF TEN THOUSAND DOLLAR GARAGE

P. M. Warden has taken out a building permit for the construction of a $10,000 automobile garage. The building is to be erected on Eleventh street, block 11, H. B. R.

WEEK WILL SEE A COAL SUPPLY

Wreck on Morinville Line Stopped Delivery, But Difficultly Overcome

Four cars across the track on the Morinville branch, thereby cutting off the coal supply coming from the Banner Company mine and the Cardiff company's supplies, shut off several cars of coal en route to the city power plant on Friday and Saturday. The city commissioners rose to the emergency and arranged for several cars of coal from other points, thereby preventing the outage between supply and demand at the power house from coming any closer together. During this week there is all kinds of coal scheduled to reach the power plant and several weeks' supply will soon be on hand and ahead.

STEEL IS LAID TO THE MCLEOD

Can Proceed No Farther with Work Until the Bridge
Has Been Completed

Steel on the Brazos branch of the C. P. R. which branches off from the main line at Haysville, 16 mile west of Edson is now laid to the McLeod river, six miles southwest of the junction. It will be impossible to carry the steel farther than this point until the McLeod river bridge is completed. The plans for this structure and all the foundation work on the banks are complete and the erection of the steel superstructure is expected to commence in the near future. The grade is ready for the steel for some 20 miles beyond the river.

FIVE HUNDRED FEET OF SIDEWALK LAID

Grounds to Get There Under Favorable Circumstances

A considerable force of men in the engineering department has been at work today laying 500 feet of sidewalk on Alberta avenue along Exhibition grounds property. Had not this been looked after that stretch of 500 feet would have had to be trod upon by the public. That this stretch of sidewalk was necessary was called to the attention of the commissioners Saturday and it was given immediate attention.

WANTED COPYRIGHT OF HIS ARCHITECTURE

But Failed to Make His Case Stick
When Similar Work of Other Was Shown

(International News Cable)
Paris, Aug. 14.—The strongest copyright, even debated case before a Paris court today when it was asked to decide the controversial copyright of a house.
An architect at Boulogne-sur-Seine, and built several apartment houses on a piece of ground belonging to him, and had devised an original facade of colored bricks. He, at least, considered it original, so when the houses were finished he had a plate, with an inscription placed on the walls, to the effect that the facade of the houses was his property, and imitations were prohibited.
Seeing a building in Paris, sometime afterwards, which had just been completed, the architect thought that the facade, years ago of colored bricks, was nothing but an imitation of his own. He began a lawsuit against the owner and the architect for infringement of the copyright laws, but, soon afterwards, he died.
The judge, however, continued the lawsuit, which has now been decided by the court.
Three experts were called. They agreed that the facade of the houses at Boulogne-sur-Seine was peculiar, and might even be subject of the protection of the copyright laws; but, on the other hand, the house built in Paris was equally original, and there was no proof that it had been copied from the others. The architect's heirs, therefore, lost their case.

FOOT TRIPS TO AUGMENT THE AUTOMATIC FENDERS

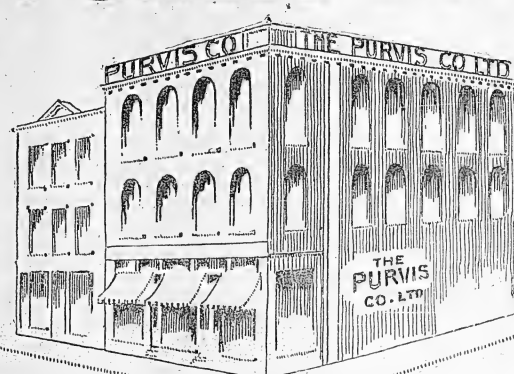

When the exhibition rush is over and there is available additional safety devices are to be provided on the street cars. Besides the automatic fenders now on the cars, an apparatus will be arranged so that the fenders can be triggered by the motorist by striking a pedal a kick with his foot.

BUILDING FRAME STORES OVER ON FIRST STREET

Crafts, Lee and Gallagher, really men of this city, have taken out a building permit to construct a building First street between Isabella and Clara streets, to be used for store purposes. The building is to be at work and is to cost $2,000.

INVESTIGATION WILL UNCOVER THE INSTIGATORS

House Committee of Congress Will Find the Recent Attempt to Oust Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Chief of Chemistry Bureau, Was Plot on Part of Food Manufacturers

(By Victor Elliott)
(National News Wire)

Washington, Aug. 14.—Before the house committee on expenditures in the department of agriculture, reaches its inquiry into the circumstances, he had the recent attempt to oust Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry, in the department of Agriculture, and the facts concerning the appointment of the Benson board of consulting scientific experts, the hand of the food dupers will be clearly revealed. That is the prediction made by close friends of the pure food champion who insists that the attempt to depose Dr. Wiley of his position is but one of many similar attempts made by food manufacturers who wished to continue the use of chemical preservatives, popularly known as "dopes," in defiance of the pure food law.

The campaign against Dr. Wiley began almost immediately after the passage of the food and drugs acts, to be more accurate, as soon as he handed down his decision condemning the use of benzene of soda as a preservative in foods. At that time Dr. Wiley was in the hey-day of his glory. He had been heralded to the world as the great pure food champion, and as the climax of his efforts for nearly twenty years Congress has just passed a pure food bill which practically placed the enforcement of the law in the hands of the Bureau of Chemistry.

Dr. Wiley conducted what was known as a "poison squad" for a number of months, and, as a result of his observations declared against benzene of soda. Secretary Wilson, together with the Secretaries of the Treasury, and of Commerce and Labor, approved Dr. Wiley's work, and, along in 1907 issued a bulletin prohibiting the sale of foods preserved with benzene of soda after January 1, 1908.

At once there was a tremendous outcry from manufacturers who wished to continue the use of the coal tar products in their foods. At that time they did not dare touch Dr. Wiley openly, but they brought tremendous political pressure to bear upon the then President Roosevelt and Secretary Wilson, which resulted in the organization of the Benson Board, composed of Dr. Ira Benson, President of Johns Hopkins University of Baltimore, and four other distinguished chemists from as many as 15 universities, with Dr. Benson acting as president.

Congress never contemplated the organization of such a board and its legal status has been frequently questioned. It was necessary for the "dope" to have some such agency, and through the Benson board they achieved their purpose which was the overturning of Dr. Wiley's ruling against benzene of soda. The high character of Dr. Benson and his associates precluded the possibility that they were in any way unduly influenced in reaching their decision. Dr. Wiley found against benzene of soda, first, because its ingestion in small doses, if repeated daily, was likely to be injurious to health, and second because it was such a powerful chemical preservative that with it filthy and decomposed vegetable substances could be used in the preparation of foods, the decay being arrested by the benzene of soda.

When the matter was referred to the Benson board, that body was called upon to pass only on the question of whether doses of benzene of soda were injurious to health. That question they investigated carefully, and reported that small doses were not injurious, but as the question of the use of benzene of soda as a preservative in foods was never referred to them, the Benson board never passed upon it, and has never favored or condemned its use as a food preservative. Dr. Ben-

MRS. C. ELLIS P. HUNTINGTON, widow of the railroad builder, and one of America's richest women, who is reported to be seriously ill at her New York home, on fashionable West Fifty-seventh street. Although the report is denied, the fact that Mrs. Huntington was extremely ill seems to have started on account of an operation for appendicitis.

son was careful to point this out on the stand before the investigation committee, because his board has been repeatedly placed in the attitude of conceding benzene or soda as a food preservative by the manufacturers who still use it.

The findings of the Benson board, though not in any way, touching upon the question of the preservative in foods, was sufficient for the purpose of the manufacturers, who wanted to use it, and who had such powerful political influence with the last administration, and consequently Secretaries Wilson, Garfield and Strauss issued an order in which manufacturers were permitted to use any quantity of benzene of soda they pleased in preserving foods, with the stipulation that the amount used should be stated on the labels.

Dr. Wiley, however, was not yet to be continued to be benzene of soda as before, and he was backed up by the American Medical Association, the American Institute of Homeopathy, and medical associations national, state and local, all over the country. Most important of all was the Association of State and National Dairy and Food Commissioners, which in 1907 passed resolutions strongly condemning benzene of soda, and endorsing Secretary Wilson's attitude. About that time stringent orders were issued mandating Dr. Wiley.

The administration of the food law was taken out of the hands and placed in those of Senator McCabe, and Dr. Wiley was forbidden to talk for prohibition, to lecture on the subject, or even to discuss the matter. McCabe traveled around the country and secured delegates to the Benson convention of the Dairy and Food Commissioners, and Secretary Wilson had Dr. Benson and all other members of the Benson board there at the expense of the department. All the members of the board made speeches favorable to benzene of soda, as did Secretary Wilson, with the result that a resolution endorsing the drug was carried through by a narrow margin.

Wiley was present as a delegate, but Secretary Wilson prevented the doctor from speaking. Practically the same thing happened in Indiana, where the manufacturers using benzene are trying to force the sale of their goods upon the prohibition of the state health officer. Secretary Wilson paid the expenses of members of the Benson board to induce them to attend, and the manufacturers, and against the state, but refused to let Dr. Wiley testify for the state until the Indiana Attorney-General obtained a writ from the Columbia courts.

ROME TO BE CITY OF THE PRESENT

Erection of Emanuel Monument Is a Source of Displeasure in Parts

(Globe Press Cable.)

By O. Di Ripoli.

Rome, Aug. 14.—In the Victor Emanuel Monument, which has been erected in Rome in this year of Jubilee, the Romans insist that their city belongs to the present as well as to the past. The position, the size, and the character of the monument, have all been resented by foreigners, for whom Rome is the great city of the dead, and who wish the living Romans to be mere caretakers of what the past has left to them. They complain that the monument dwarfs everything near it and is an arrogant rival even to the dome of St. Peter's and indeed it is true that in any wide view of the city the monument and the church are now the two chief landmarks.

Symbol of the Spirit of the People. But the Romans themselves are not content that Rome should be a city for tourists and students. They regard it as their own city, which, in its triumph over time, has taken on a new life as the capital of United Italy. For them the present means more than the imperial or papal past; and they are determined that the past shall not be tyrannical over them. The monument is a symbol of the determination and the spirit of a people who, not being over-rich, are ready to make such huge material sacrifices for this expression of their pride in the present and their confidence in the future ought to be admired. The Romans have always had a passion for building. Good and bad Emperors, good and bad Popes, were possessed by it; and that passion has been destructive as well as constructive. Because of it many precious monuments, such as the old Basilica of St. Peter's, have been destroyed; but without it Rome could never have become the city of all ages that she now is.

TO PROMOTE THE CAUSE OF SCIENCE

Stronger Impulse and More Systematic Direction to Scientific Inquiry to Be Stimulated by Purpose of the Meeting of the British Association

(Globe Press Special Cable.)

London, Aug. 14.—In accordance with a decision arrived at two years ago the British Association for the Advancement of Science will hold its annual meeting this year at Portsmouth.

MRS. ANTHONY J. DREXEL—Because of the delicate health of her daughter, Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel has announced a postponement of her annual trip to Scotland. She will spend the summer in her London residence.

The biannual gathering will take place in the Town hall on Wednesday, August 30, and the concluding meeting will be held on the following Wednesday. During that period the association no doubt will do something to further the objects for which it exists—namely, to give a stronger impulse and a more systematic direction to scientific inquiry; to promote the intercourse of those who cultivate science in different parts of the British Empire with one another and with foreign philosophers; and to obtain more general attention for the objects of science and the removal of any disadvantages of a public kind which impede its progress.

It is rather remarkable that Portsmouth, the first naval port of the British Empire and with a situation in close proximity to the Isle of Wight and the New Forest, which are not without scientific interest, should be chosen. Its first welcome to the British association, though that body has existed for eighty years. The first five annual meetings of the association were held at York, Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburgh, and Dublin, and since then most of the great cities and towns of the United Kingdom have been visited. Moreover, meetings have been held in such far-away places as Toronto, South Africa, and Winnipeg. Australia has been mentioned as a possible meeting-place, but owing to its great distance from this country nothing practical has yet come of the proposal.

At the inaugural meeting of the young assembly Sir William Ramsay will assume the presidency in succession to the Rev. Professor T. G. Bonner. It is understood that after discussing the nature and constitution of radium and various other elements he will bring the subject within the domain of practicality by considering whether the best use is being made of the sources of energy available.

Herr Maximilian Harden Says Count's Airship Ideas Not His Own

(International News Service.)

Berlin, Aug. 1.—Herr Maximilian Harden, the intrepid and talented editor of the "Zukunft," who has always been known for his forthright attitude in blasting the popularity of the Kaiser's friends and the nation's idols, has declared war against "the great man" Germany has produced in this century, Count Zeppelin.

The veteran airman's star has not been in the ascendant in recent times, thanks to the setbacks that have pursued his dirigible enterprises, but Harden is relentless, and is now out to prove that Zeppelin's best ideas were those of another man.

Harden has discovered some ancient court records to show that it was one David Schwarz, an impoverished Austrian miner, who first thought of aluminum as material for airships. Schwarz had so thoroughly convinced the Austrian war office of the practicability of his theory that it voted him $75,000 for experiments. Just as the experiments had reached a stage promising definite success, Schwarz died. Count Zeppelin, it appears, watched these experiments, and some time after Schwarz's death a group of the count's financial backers acquired the Austrian engineer's patents. "The Zeppelin airships, which have fired the imagination of the German race for the past three years," says Harden, are the result. The brilliant editor of the "Zukunft" gives chapter and verse for his assertions, and publishes a demand from Count Zeppelin, which leaves the essentials undisputed.

GIRLS' NAMES

What They Mean—Famous People That Dore the Name—The Name in History, Literature, Etc.

The link-up in the names of Esther, Hester, Estelle, Betty, began in pre-modern periods, continues to the present, few knowing that all have the same root and meaning.

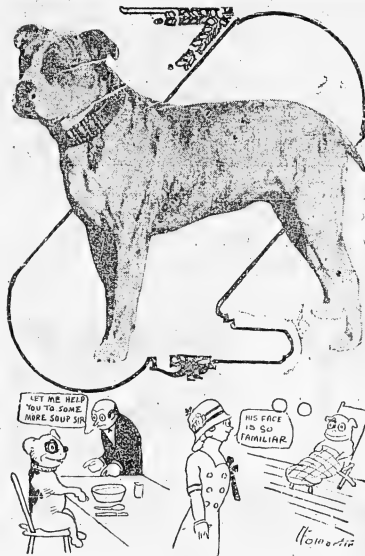

The Persian name Esther means star. The original Esther had many pages devoted to her in scriptures. She made her beautiful, since Abscure, "set the royal crown upon her head and made her queen instead of Vashti."

The yellow cowbird is Esther's emblem, "my divinity" her significance. The Roman ladies like the name as well as to adopt it bodily, adding only a final "e," Estera. "This drove the Roman invasion of Britain naturally became Hester, owing to the habit of dropping and adding "He," which brings in a little nearer to the present day form of the word.

Our English forefathers, it seems, abbreviated Hester into Hester and then into Hettie, but not to be outdone by the makers of "Hettie," the droppers of them turned Estera back into its Hebrew form and subsequently into Estee.

The Germans stopped using the name after Martin Luther declared against the book of Esther. The present French form of Estelle is derived from the liberal translation of the Persian name; Estelle, meaning star. The Spaniards and Portuguese also translated the Persian name and made it Stella until the appearance of the famous Spanish pastoral, when Estrella became popular. It was continued so in all Latin speaking countries.

Berlin wrote "Esther," a play of great lyric beauty, ranking among his best. The success of the play made the old Biblical name popular as

This is the tenth voyage de luxe that Dan has made. His master, Daniel Luytjes, happens to be a bachelor banker of New York, and spends all his leisure in travelling around the world with his dog. Before the comrades sailed, Mr. Luytjes declared that Dan had already travelled 80,000 miles, during which he has made four trips to Europe. Dan is worth $10,000, and he has already cost his master in travelling expenses alone more than $3,000. His present trip will cost in the neighborhood of another $1,000.

SHAW ADMITS THAT HE IS A GENIUS

Letters Put Up at Auction, However, Discount Statement and Admission

London, July 1.—Bernard Shaw admits he is a genius. Everybody has realized that for some time, but few people realize that Mr. Shaw once admitted there were limitations to his genius. The admission, however, that there are, or at any rate were, limitations to Mr. Shaw's genius is found in a letter written by Shaw to Oscar Wilde, which was put up for sale at auction, Sotheby's yesterday. In this letter Mr. Shaw says:

"I hope soon to send you my play, 'Widow's Honors,' which you will find tolerably amusing, considering that it is a farcical comedy. Unfortunately, I have no power of producing beauty; my genius is the genius of intellect."

Other letters written to Oscar Wilde, twenty-nine in all, were sold at the same time that Mr. Shaw's priceless admission was offered to the public. Among the letters are Swinburne, Keats, Burns-Jones, Sargent, Miss Ellen Terry, Millais, Mrs. Langtry and Whistler.

Whistler had evidently seen Wilde in his "aesthetic" period, walking in Chelsea wearing a coat "befogged and wonderfully befogged." He writes:

"Oscar, how dare you. What means this unseemly carnival in my Chelsea? Before these things to Nathan, and never again let me see you masquerading the streets in the combined character of a degraded Kosuth and Mr. Maudslayi."

Some of Oscar Wilde's most important manuscripts in prose and verse were offered at this sale. The manuscripts include "The Soul of Man," the picture of "Paranoid," "The Florentine Tragedy" and "The Sphinx."

Manuscripts by Carlyle, Jane Weldon Carlyle, Swinburne, E. E. Russell and Stevenson were also sold. Besides some rare volumes of sixteenth and seventeenth century literature.

Travelling Inspector in his hand, the square of the village. Most amusing thing happened today. I was questioning the class, and asked a boy who was named "Haniel," and he answered, "P-p-please, sir, it wasn't me."

NOTORIOUS THIEF CAUGHT IN BERLIN

RUSSIAN MERCHANT IS VICTIM OF A WELL-KNOWN CRIMINAL

(The Press Cable.)

Berlin, Aug. 1.—The Berlin police arrested under unusual circumstances this week one of a long-smelted thief, a Russian merchant named Babynovitch put up at a small hotel in the city, which is principally frequented by his own countrymen. Being a light sleeper, he was awakened at 2 o'clock by a slight noise, which he thought was caused by mice. The window was open, and in the faint light of the moon he saw a tall, white-haired beard standing motionless at the bedside. At first petrified with fright, Babynovitch recovered after a minute of uneasy sleep, and switched on the electric light, whereupon the ghost faded out of the door. Babynovitch was too terrified to give an alarm, although he discovered the hankies with which his pocketbook had been filled. He looked at the floor, the pocketbook having been taken from under his pillow, where he had put it for safety. Next morning he acquainted the police, who sent a detective to investigate. He decided that access had been obtained by the open window, and the room being on the third floor staircases led to an adjoining room, which had been occupied for some time by a Russian Pale calling himself an actor. Search revealed a wall safe, and several large boxes of powder. The man, who calls himself Jaska, declares that he is a sound sleeper.

Had Many Alluses.

It transpires that he has many alluses, and a story telling ear. His favorite tale is that he is a political prisoner escaped from Siberia. In this role he visited a well-known doctor recently, who gave him money, Jaska, during the doctor's momentary absence from the room, stole a number of visiting cards, which he passed off as his own, at another hotel. The police believe that Jaska was concerned in a hotel and jewel robbery in Switzerland some time ago, his black eyes and swarthy skin being characteristic of the thief who escaped.

Much Valuable Data Will Be Prepared During Next Few Years on the Science of Seismology—Savants Met Recently in Manchester.

London, Aug. 1.—The annual conference of the International Association of Seismology was held this year in the Whitworth Hall of Manchester University under the presidency of Professor Schuster. The meeting was attended by representatives of Great Britain, Canada, the United States, and nearly every European country.

Professor Schuster, in his address, touched on the question of the prediction of earthquakes remarking that even if the knowledge of seismologists should allow them in future to make predictions of equal certainty to those of the meteorologists, the dangers of the prediction might outweigh the benefits.

A seismologist would not be justified in creating a panic and dislocating trade by predicting an earthquake that failed to take place. The association had to deal not with catastrophe but with unobscure movements of the soil to which the vibrations caused by a city's traffic were as the waves of the ocean compared to the ripples on a pond. Two types of short waves were frequently observed. One had been traced to the wind, which seemed to create waves over an extended land surface just as it did over the ocean. The others, which occurred in periods of from five to ten seconds, were more difficult to trace.

Due to Waves of Ocean.

It had been suggested that they were due to waves striking the shore, and an interesting test upon that point is being carried out on the Yorkshire coast. Recently the question of the stability of the whole structure had come into prominence. The tidal deformation of the earth had been traced and had brought to light the curious result that the earth appeared to resist a change of shape in the directions of north and south less than the east and west.

Professor Love suggested that the want of symmetry in the rigidity was apparent only, and that the absence of rigidity was caused by the attraction of the tide waves in the North Atlantic and its accompanying excess pressure on the bottom of the sea.

Professor B. Becker, director of the Central Bureau of the association, said that observations conducted in a well-known area, Potsdam, at a depth of about 25 metres showed that at Potsdam the deformation of the body of the earth was greater in the northeast direction than in the southwest. He proceeded to describe the results of observations made in mines in Saxony and Bohemia, and suggested that new stations might be established.

Appoints Commission.

The conference appointed a commission to consider the establishment of observation stations as suggested by Professor Becker in consultation with the Finance Commission. Dr. Klotz (Canada) moved that a commission be appointed to discuss the possibility of securing uniformity in seismological bulletins, by which he believed all stations would be benefited, and this was also agreed to.

Count Tiza, believing that his wife had been studying contemporary literature with too much ardor and was carrying out some of the frocks permitted in modern literature, submitted to the best of grace that he could manage. The doctor, who is a value of a consul, never left the side of her friend, and at midnight the two ladies left the bedroom and took a passage in Tanager without any explanation of their intentions.

Cred of his role of neglected husband, Count Tiza returned to Hungary and visited a distant estate in order to escape being questioned by friends of both families. Countess Tiza has now returned from her journey, and her husband promised to forsake her escape if it would be with him without further trouble.

The countess, however, refuses to go to her husband's home, and he has now been proceeding against her in the divorce court on the ground that their marriage contract had not been fulfilled.

The Track on Which the Der-of Famous Tracks

In the beautiful county of Berkshire and situated among the pre-venerable of rural England, lies the famous race course of Ascot. From the state you may obtain a fine view of the Derby course, with its yellow, flat-strewn goals and splendid trees. The New Mile, which is exactly 1 furlong 166 yards, is quite strikingly at the head of the course. The course is a fine one, with its own entrance with iron rails, through which the race is run.
On either side of the straight mile are residences half hidden in trees, and the occupants of these houses, who have been in the city for years, watch the two of these races each day, which are run down this course. The main course is nearly two miles long and undulates throughout its white-rail fence. The stands are numerous and magnificent, and above all towers a tower which claims the quarters and quarters of the race. The course is open to the public, though of course it costs
a considerable fee to enter the stands, and the chief enclosure is very superb ground, and hard to gain admission to unless one's influence is great.

While Epsom Downs, where the Derby and Oaks are run, is the scene of the greatest race in the world, still the programme otherwise does not compare with Ascot, where the main course is nearly two miles long and undulates throughout its white-rail fence. The stands are numerous and magnificent, and above all towers a tower which claims the quarters and quarters of the race. The course is open to the public, though of course it costs

and the chief enclosure is very superb

Talking about cups, there is a story about Lord Rotherby, which has been told before but which will bear repetition. Some thirty years ago Lord Rotherby was interested himself in trying to improve the Edinburgh race meeting and he made the value of the Edinburgh Cup considerable. He announced one year a gold horse, called Gantrevise, which had won the previous year, beating the st. Leger winner, Grasskniver. Lord Rotherby, having a fair chance of winning, drove into the Edinburgh stables, who was manufacturing the cup, several times, to make suggestions as to the design, but unfortunately when the race came off Gantrevise broke down, and a Mr. Brown, who was a contingent apparently very little settled, took him for, knowing that Lord Rotherby was very anxious to win, he went to him after the race, and offered him the trophy in line. What Lord Rotherby said is not recorded.

At The Scout Editor's Desk

At a recent meeting the western federation of scouts passed a resolution condemning in principle and practice the boy scout movement which has gained considerable headway in the states where federalism is strongest, stating that the organization was under the control of the capitalist class and that the boys of the country might grow up to defend them against the interests of the oppressed labor slaves and to further their hold upon the wealth of the world.
While the resolution itself is severe,
by worthy of the serious attention of any thinking man it affords a good opportunity to explain what the scout movement really is. A great many people and among them quite evidently the federation of scouts, do not know the first principles of the scout organization. Too many people confuse it with military troops and military training and here are sure to find it a preparation for warfare. A reading of the scout laws will dispel this idea.
Here are the Scout laws:
A boy-scout is
1. Tolerant of the beliefs of others and reverent towards those things which he believes.
2. Loyal to his country, his family, and his friends.

Most notably, and also the troop-units having you and that Scout.
Colonel Seely, military history applauds, then pinned the medal on the Scout's breast, and the Scout's him. He also handed over to him the warrant for the award.
English Scouts.
A remarkable feat of pluck and endurance has been accomplished by an office-year-old Boy Scout named Percy McMillan, who left London, England, on a bicycle, at 12.4 a.m. on Saturday at 12.4 a.m. on Saturday on a bicycle, with a letter from the editor of the local "Chronicle" to his father, and the "Daily Mail," and reached the London office at 11.57 p.m. on the same day. On starting the day, which was compounded on another bicycle by his father, hoped to complete the journey of rather more than 200 miles within the twenty-four hours. As will be seen he did it with a bare three minutes to spare. The exact time at the various towns en route were as follows:
Manchester 1.15 a.m.
Stockport 2.05 a.m.
Macclesfield 2.15 a.m.
Leek 2.40 a.m.
Stafford 3.55 a.m.
Wolverhampton 4.25 a.m.
Birmingham 5.15 p.m.
Barnley 12.15 p.m.
Haverly 1.10 p.m.
Doncaster 2.20 p.m.
Sheffield 2.50 p.m.
Stony Stratford 3.50 p.m.
Hemel Hempstead 8.02 p.m.
London 11.57 p.m.
London Daily Mail office 11.57 p.m.

The Scottish Scouts have again distinguished themselves in the British work. This time it has been the 8th and 15th North Edinburgh Scouts which have done well.
A letter, dated 10th March, from Edinburgh, caught the eye of the other companies and far away, at once gave the alarm, and started to help in pulling it out, while one of them even telephoned the office to call up the fire-brigade in Edinburgh.
The two troops, under Southdowns Inke and Walker, set to work in an orderly way to get furniture and valuables of the burning house.
They removed chairs, beds and straw, and horses to a safe distance from the fire, and passed buckets of water on to the burning roof.
There was scarcely any water supply, but the Scouts drenched a little stream that ran near, and in this way got some water, and prepared a supply ready for the fire-brigade when it arrived.
The fire-brigade (which) stated that it was largely due to the Scouts and to the absence of wind that the whole fire was not burnt to the ground. It had never been worse done better or so promptly.
As it was, the fire-brigade arrived and set to work just at four and thinks to the water supply prepared by the Scouts, it was able to deal successfully with the fire.
Well done, Scouts!

Tasmanian Scouts.
The Scouts in Tasmania have proposed the chief scout with a handsome walking-stick made out of the native wood of their country. This was handed to him at a large gathering of Tasmanians in London by the Hon. Mr.
McMillan, who in the course of his speech, warmly praised the Boy Scouts for their good work.
I am very pleased and proud to have seen a white reminder of the nobility of the Tasmanian boys, and I hope that next year, I may have the chance of honouring them in person for it," said the Chief Scout.
If any Scouts think that they were anything to Scotland, the best way in which they can show any thanks to the Chief Scout, as he himself said, is by doing what they are doing now, and that is by enjoying the Scout camps and making themselves into smart, useful, and efficient Scouts.
The happiness which you give him through the reports of your good work, and actual deeds is far greater to him than any present that money could buy.

Derbyshire Scouts.
Colonel Seely, County Commissioner for Derbyshire, presented the Badge of Merit the other day to Scout Key, of the Westhampton Troop.
Last summer when the troop were camped at Derbyshire, several children were surrounded by the fire, and did not notice that the water had been poured on them.
A number of people on the way home saw the danger, but they did not either they lacked presence of mind or courage to do so.
However, the Scout, seeing the children's plight, waded through the water, and although in places it came up to his neck, he managed to bring them all safely land.
Colonel Seely said there might not have been great risk in what Scout Key had done, but many people had lost their lives in a similar manner through being caught by the incoming tide. He was glad to find that as a Scout, Key appreciated his duties, which he performed with so much bravery, and that he was prepared to help everyone in difficulty.
"I am delighted to present this medal of merit," concluded the Commissioner,
"and I hope you will assist others in times of difficulty. I congratulate you."

Every way clean in mind, body and actions.
3. Trustworthy, his honor is always above question.
4. Brave, not only in emergencies, but in everyday life.
5. Sociable, a friend to all.
6. Willing and cheerful about his proper work.
7. Obedient to all proper authorities.
8. A friend to animals.
9. Saying that he may be able to support himself and others.
10. Useful through doing one kind of every day.
11. Obedient to all proper authorities.
12. Courteous, especially to women and children.
Anyone who lives according to these laws will in no way transgress upon the rights or privileges of others. There is nothing to lead one to believe that there is anything military about the organization and there is no preparation for war. The scout law does not necessarily have to be used in a military sense.
It is true that the scout organization is not altogether the same in the United States as it is in Canada. There the movement has in many cases got into the hands of military men who are making it more or less of a military organization.

On August 11 at Bering scouts will have assembled from all over the province of Saskatchewan for the Bering during the Dominion Fair. It is estimated that there will be about five hundred scouts in Regina that day and they have prepared to give a large demonstration of the boy scout work.
Among the exhibitions will be a scientific drill.

The idea of having a scout day for exhibition is a good one and one that the Edmonton Exhibition Board is enthusiastic will take up. If the scouts from all over the province were to assemble in Edmonton they would make a big impression and in fact be one of the features of the exhibition.

The New England League has twenty-eight men hitting .200 or better team, leading the list.

Mr. Typewriter Buyer,
City.

Dear Sir:

For ten years the Underwood was the only represents of the visible front stroke principle in typewriter construction. During this period the new principle was developed, perfected and the essential features fully protected by basic patents.

Other manufacturers, recognizing the superior merits of the Underwood and the unparalleled demand for the new typewriter, have been forced to adopt this style of construction and are remodelling or reconstructing their machines to harmonize as closely as possible with the principle which for so many years they strenuously opposed.

It is scarcely necessary for us to point out to you the wisdom of installing a machine which has stood the test of time rather than an experiment—a machine which has been the leader in a principle which has revolutionized the typewriter industry.

Yours very truly,

WHY THE GLIDDEN TOUR FAILED

Glidden Tour Not Held This Season

Motor Truck as a Profit Maker

History of the Famous Car Which Has Failed to Materialize This Summer—The Various Tours and the Reason Which Led to Its Abandonment

The Glidden Tour of 1911 has been postponed on account of lack of entries. The disposition received from Detroit under recent date, and apparently there is not much interest being taken in this event, that for years was to be the automobile world's "Motor Age" is a fact. It is a fact that there is but a single entry from the Motor Age of the automobile—the city of Detroit. The proposition now is to hold the event in the fall.

The correspondent further states: It is certain that it will take a lot of persuasion from the A.A.A. authorities to get anything like a representative contingent of cars into line from the local plants. In fact, 1911 seems to be a very quiet season, so far as the factories and their interest in public competitions are concerned. There seems to exist a feeling that the big competitions are too risky for manufacturers with established reputations for their product to patronize with profit. This was particularly noticeable in the southwest event at Indianapolis Memorial Day, in which but one Detroit factory was represented, and this in the face of the fact that the Detroit manufacturers lead the world in the quantity and general popularity of their product.

Station Entered

The event that finally culminated in the new well-known tour was the first annual tour of the American Automobile Association, starting July 25, 1907, and led as its objective point St. Louis. Sixteen machines started from New York and joined themselves to 11 others from various New England towns. Almost all the cars reached St. Louis, the tour being more in the nature of a combined run than a competition.

Thirty-two automobiles completed in the 870 mile A.A.A. tour in 1908, the first contest for the G. J. Glidden touring trophy. Starting from New York, the itinerary was through Hartford to Berlin Woods, N.H., and return by Concord and Lewis, to New York. Percy Pierce was awarded the trophy. Four others finished with clean scores. No official observers were carried, the contestants as a whole observing the performance of the competing cars, and at the end of the tour voting for their three entrants whose cars in their opinion had made the best records. In addition the Glidden commission employed a formula which took price, equipment and general touring conditions into consideration in awarding the trophy. First class certificates were given to 22 contestants who completed the tour and arrived at all night contests before the official closing time. Four second-class certificates were awarded to those who completed the tour but failed to make all contests on time.

The Third Tour

The third annual A.A.A. tour in 1909 and the second Glidden tour was a 1,200 mile run from Buffalo to Detroit Woods, via Utica, Saratoga, Lake George, Montreal, Quebec, and Lunenburg. Me. Forty-eight machines started, 12 secured perfect scores, 19 completed the journey with penalties and 20 dropped out along the way. Percy Pierce retained the trophy. The 1907 tour had 40 competitors. The route was from Cleveland to New York (about 1,570 miles). Owing to changes that in previous years some cars had been rebuilt between daylight and dawn at many of the stops to enable them to continue next day, more stringent rules were made to prevent such happenings. Owing to the impossibility of framing any code of regulations that would satisfactorily eliminate all but one or two cars from first place, it was decided in framing the rules to award the trophy to a club, instead of to an individual, as previously. By this change successful competitor received a certificate. Twenty-one finished with clean scores. The Buffalo club won the trophy. The 1908 tour was from Buffalo to Saratoga, by way of Philadelphia, Albany, Boston, Bangor, Me. (1,510 miles). An observer was carried in each car and other hard conditions made. Forty-six cars started, 23 arrived at Saratoga with clean scores. The trophy was not awarded.

Thirty Cars

In 1909, 30 cars completed for three trophies—the Glidden, the Hoover and the Detroit. The route covered 2,609 miles from Detroit to Kansas City. The conditions were more exacting than ever. Twenty-four of the 30 contestants successfully accomplished the tour; eight of the 24 without road penalties and two of the eight were adjudged perfect. The Glidden trophy was won by a Pierce-Arrow as was the Hoover cup. A Chalmers-Detroit secured the Detroit prize.

The 1910 tour covered a distance of 2,551 miles. Competition was limited to cars of strictly stock models, and in order to assure this makers were required to file sworn statements of the types, dimensions, equipments, etc. The cars were subject to a penalization according to a point system that took mechanical failures into consideration, as well as arrival at a control at any other than a specified time. Twenty-seven cars started, average day's run was 198 miles, longest being 212 miles and shortest, 50.

Disappointment

Disappointment has been felt after each tour. Sometimes the rules were and to be unfair—cars were penalized for arriving at a place before schedule, and in some cases high-power and low-power cars were bound by the same rules and it was felt that such conditions were fair to neither class. But the committee for each tour tried to remedy the defects of the rules for the preceding tours and contestants were not displeased with the idea of the tour, but only with some of the conditions.

The lawsuits and intense personal quarrels that resulted after the 1910 event was taken as an index that a 1911 Glidden would never be undertaken. However, the quibblers who profited were not yet ready for their quietus and the event was announced for the year, with the manufacturers' results as announced. It is to be hoped that Canadian manufacturers will heed the lesson learned by those of the United States, and if the merits of their goods need demonstrating to the people of this country try to have some means and resources at their disposal to send out their product on missionary enterprises if they so desire, and thus be saved heavy contributions to law firms, who are the only real beneficiaries of past Glidden tours. It can be safely assumed that the announcement made is the funeral dirge of what was once hoped to be a benefit to the automobile industry.

HONOR IS PAID TO JULIETTE MODU

Fair Maid of 20 Summers Who Cost Germans a Battle, Remembered

(Globe Cable Service)
Paris, Aug. 14. — At half-past four the other afternoon a little group of men in black frock-coats and top-hats stood in the roadway outside a little house in Bievres. With them were two men in blouses who fixed a small metal plate to the house front and then disappeared. On the plate were the words, "Juliette Modu lived and died in this house." There was no need for any more, for every man, woman, and child in the little town of Bievres can tell the story of Juliette Modu who was one of the few Frenchwomen authorized to wear the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor.

Juliette Modu was a telegraph clerk, and was twenty years old when the war broke out in 1870. She was telegraph clerk in the little town of Bievres. One afternoon the Germans took the town and Juliette took her brother's suit and carried him to the German post office. She hid the telegraph apparatus so that the Germans should not be able to use it, and when they struck her and she did even better. All night long telegrams were passing to and from German headquarters, and Juliette Modu contrived to tap the wires. She tapped them to such purpose that she was able to hand over most important news to the French generals, and the news cost the Germans a battle. Juliette was taken prisoner, tried by court-martial and sentenced to death as a spy. But Prince Frederick Charles found out for her. Frederick Charles was taken prisoner, tried by court-martial and sentenced to death as a spy. But Prince Frederick Charles found out for her.

A few months afterwards, when Baron Larrey died, he left his entire fortune to the hero Juliette Modu, who had been working, quietly earning her $25 monthly in the telegraph department. The house at Bievres, where she lived and died a spinster, was a portion of her legacy.

Discussion as to the Superiority of a Motor Car Over the Horse and Cart as an Asset to a Retail Business—Business Man Writes for the Capital

The motor truck question is not one that can be passed by with indifference as something that does not catch the interest of any particular business man or individual. That is to say, because of the indifference shown toward the motor truck and its advantages, its influence is potent.

Whether you are a business man using delivery service, or an individual who must buy goods from someone who has horse or wagon or motor truck in delivery service, the motor truck has some influence on you.

For example, if you are a business man using horse wagons, your competitors may use motor trucks, and by outdoing you in efficiency of delivery work may steal your customers from you. In other words, it is not so much a question as to whether you personally desire to be interested in a motor truck or not, but a question of business expediency in keeping, at least, up to your competitors.

Another Side

On the other hand, if you are not a user of horse wagons, and are only interested in the delivery problem in so far as it touches upon delivering purchases, do you, as you are, perhaps not getting the service that is due you if you purchase from those who do not use the most up-to-date method. Sometimes it is of much importance to the individual purchaser of goods to receive them promptly and in good condition. It is often a matter of serious importance, and so the motor truck interests you, as an individual, in that it has an influence upon your daily life either in a positive or negative way.

These trucks are becoming more and more part of day to day as the use of motor trucks increases and the needs of them become apparent. The whole community, therefore, is influenced by the motor truck, and you cannot doubt that influence; it is so woven into the affairs of today.

A brief review of the many ways in which the motor truck is advantageous to the public will not be out of place in this first article, in indicating how much influence it has upon our daily lives, and showing to what a large degree it is important to each of us that the installation of motor trucks become more widespread.

Economical delivery, or the saving of expense in any branch of a business, man is enabled to quote a lower price for his goods than if he adopted extravagant methods. This is of vital interest in the ultimate purchaser of his goods, for it means that that purchaser will pay a minimum price instead of paying for wasteful extravagance on the part of the business man.

Getting merchandise from the factory to the user involves a large amount of handling and considerable expense in shipping and cartage, etc. The more that these expenses are reduced, the more chance there is of a purchaser obtaining the articles of food, clothing and other necessities and luxuries at the lowest possible price.

That the motor truck enables the producer, or the dealer, to get that merchandise into the hands of the user with less expense than by the old method, the chief claim of the motor truck on the intervals of business houses and the customers served by them.

Whether or not a motor truck can be used profitably in any particular instance is a matter that must be particularly considered. It is a matter that must be studied one and decided entirely upon the circumstances surrounding the particular business involved.

It is not safe to say that motor trucks can displace horses in every class of service. No wise motor manufacturer will make this claim. Each case should be studied on its own merit and recommendations made entirely upon facts. It is true that in some cases the horse and wagon are more economical, or better suited in some respects, to an individual delivery service than the motor truck wagon.

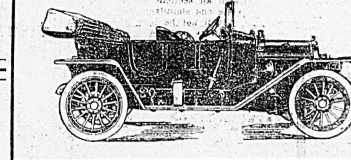

Most of all, enormous saving and universal application should stamp any motor salesman with a mark of doubt; nothing but the purest selfishness in trying to make a sale where-possible would induce any salesman to make extravagant claims and to state that the motor truck can replace the horse in every instance.

Athabasca Landing Has Now Become an Important River Point

Growth of the Prosperous Town Strategically Located at Southern Limits of the Waterways or the Hinterland

The town of Athabasca Landing, one hundred miles north of Edmonton and twenty-five miles north of the central railway of the province, situated strategically on the most southerly bend of the great water traffic route of the north, and the starting point for all water traffic further bound for the west or northwest, has this year received a progressive movement in western Canada in a degree unequalled by any other community of like similar magnitude. Thoroughly awake to the future which lies before it as the coming gateway city of the hinterland, its citizens have left no stone unturned to ensure its rapid commercial development. Athabasca Landing has in fact become a river port of the first magnitude.

Optimism Justified
That the optimism which has been displayed, the intense faith in the town's future, are more than justified becomes abundantly evident by a brief consideration of the natural advantages which are the heritage of its citizens, and should further demonstration be required a visit to the landing on any day throughout the season, when loads and loads of pipe, boiler, steam engines, canvas boats, supplies for man and beast, mixed loads of settlers' effects, farming implements and the carcasses of pioneers bound for the fertile Peace River lands, may be seen upon its streets, would undoubtedly carry conviction.

East Tributary Territory
Tributary to Athabasca Landing, to the north, is a vast tract teeming rich in minerals, and in agricultural wealth, a country vaster than the territory lying between Winnipeg and the Hudson and capable of producing an infinitely greater amount of wealth. For no other portion of the prairie provinces are to be found mineral resources of such value.

3000 Miles of Waterways
Water transportation extending over a distance of over 3000 miles has made of Athabasca Landing the principal port of all this river traffic. The town is the Northern Transportation Co., equipped with all modern conveniences for comfort, and a fine line of service with a wireless telegraph service, ply between the Landing and Ground on the Lesser Slave Lake, the starting point for one of the most important overland routes to the Peace River country. The Hudson Bay Co., Hilsop and Nasel, the fur traders, and other concerns have boats of the most modern type upon the waters of the Athabasca which is rapidly becoming one of the busiest of river highways. The asphalt resources of Fort McMurray and Fort McKay, the petroleum resources of these districts, and all the other forms of mineral wealth which are now beginning to be exploited, all must inevitably contribute towards the upbuilding of the city, for there is no other avenue by which these valuable products can find their way to the markets of the world.

Tax Rate 12 Mills

This year the town has a total assessment of $247,810, with a tax rate for 1914 of 12 mills. Substantial improvements in roads and sidewalks are being installed this season, and a start is being made in the installation of a sewer system. Application for incorporation has been made to the provincial government and will doubtless be granted in the very near future.

During the year real estate has been exceptionally active. Property sold five months ago for $850 could be obtained for $3,000 today.

Live Cattle, Board of Trade and Canadian Club

During recent months its aggressive board of trade and city council have taken steps to ensure the progress and progress of the town, and a future of greatness to the capitalist and settler resident in Central Alberta. Athabasca Landing brought itself into line with the town and city and many times its size by the formation of a Canadian Club. The Athabasca Landing Canadian club organized by Mr. Kehoe has a very active program in the first place of this kind to be organized in town on the outskirts of civilization.

PARISIANS ENJOY SUMMER WEATHER

Paris, Aug. 1.—"Wherever it is hot," one may hear this homely old saying of a day when Paris had a taste of real summer weather. I caught a deeply going into the Palais Bourbon with white shoes, and looking quite pleased with himself. The golf-collar is still to be invented as an adjunct to the French summer costume, but the kummersbund is here, oddly in vogue with wearers preponderant in those parts. The really classic figure is the Frenchman with a black alpaca coat, white linen trousers, a Panama hat, and a rakish twist behind an immense blue tie with white spots, a handkerchief of brilliant hue and design, half-way out of his pocket, the whole mounted by a gray cotton umbrella. This venerable type still exists, but is becoming rarer.

Good Public Buildings
Building during the present season has been unusually active, and in addition to the government buildings—post office, government telegraph office, dominion land office and immigration hall—opened this season, five church edifices, and a public school, and other first-class public buildings, are erected. The financial needs of the town are met by a couple of banks. The Imperial Bank has been doing business in

REAL MEANING OF GERMAN GESTURE

(Globe Cable Service)
Paris, Aug. 1.—What is the meaning of the German gesture? Why go to Agadir when it would have been so easy to negotiate pleasantly with France? The "Globe de Paris," which foretold, six weeks ago, the German intention to make something out of the French expedition to Fes—if possible a big slice of the French Congo—now tells us that the "strong manner" was added to mark descent at French retaliation with Alsace-Lorraine.

The Paris papers have been commenting freely on the way in which the Kaiser's government was satisfying the local demands for autonomy; hence, when the moment came the Wilhelmstrasse was not displeased to turn the tables. "Nothing is more natural," remarks the Paris journal, "than for us to imagine that Germany is grateful to us for our attitude. So, in return for the little attentions towards the last provinces, the Germans have decided on a campaign of pay-backs in Africa. I have seen many explanations less intelligent of the situation."

Again, one of the Alsatian deputies in the Reichstag declared a fortnight ago that one must beware of Britain-Hollweg. "He will seize the first opportunity for repeating the 'coup' of the Kaiser when he visits Tangiers. He needs to re-establish his popularity before the next elections to be the Reichstag. And so the 'coup' from the blue" was intended as much to please the Germans on the eve of the elections—as to displease the French.

SOME FRENCHMEN HAVE QUEER IDEAS

Paris, Aug. 1.—"Wherever it is hot," one may hear this homely old saying of a day when Paris had a taste of real summer weather. I caught a deeply going into the Palais Bourbon with white shoes, and looking quite pleased with himself. The golf-collar is still to be invented as an adjunct to the French summer costume, but the kummersbund is here, oddly in vogue with wearers preponderant in those parts. GENERALLY BELIEVED KAISER WAS ONE OF THE FIRST TO GO TO MOROCCO AFFAIR.

(Globe Cable Service)
Paris, Aug. 1.—The modern Frenchman has taken an inventive turn with his summer clothes. He has been analyzed by reason of much carding of tailors' circulars from "Haut de France" and taken naturally to his flannel suit in summer—he is the exception, the large exception. The ordinary Frenchman, if you produce a hot sun, becomes playful, satirical, and disports himself in the strangest garb. Sitting opposite to me in my club, is a representative specimen, who looks uncommonly like a diver on a beach, if you can imagine a diver regaling him-

FAMOUS PAINTING EASILY DUPLICATED

(International News Service)
London, Aug. 1.—The alleged original of Gainsborough's stolen Duchess is now to be seen at the Baille gallery, in Bruton street, under conditions which make it possible to form an idea as to its artistic worth. Although the documentary evidence in its favor is so clear and convincing that any legal mind will accept it as absolutely trustworthy, the picture itself does not advance the claims made on its behalf.

There is little, if any, evidence of Gainsborough's brush work to be seen on the canvas, which must have undergone many restorations, and bears a thick coat of shiny varnish. What is to be seen now reveals a coarseness of touch which was alien to Gainsborough's art. How much of this may be due to subsequent repainting, it is difficult to decide.

In this connection it is interesting that Mr. Foster in his declaration distinctly states that Gainsborough, when asked to paint the portrait of Lady his ability to paint in the much-admired manner of Reynolds, but, without Betty Foster, said that he would show something to the "butterfly patches" with which Reynolds endeavored to imitate the "impasto" of the Italian school. Of course, if Gainsborough deliberately adopted style of painting different from his usual practice, this student of his work must expect some account for the difficulty every in trying to discover his brush work in the portrait at the Baille gallery.

Whatever conclusions may be arrived at from comparing the two rival pictures which are claimants to the distinction of being Gainsborough's, it seems fairly established that both of them represent Lady Foster, the second wife of the Duke of Devonshire, and not Georgina, his first wife.
